AN ARCHÆOLOGICAL SHERLOCK HOLMES

A remarkable flair for discovering archæological remains is possessed by Professor Jules Formige, who has to his credit a large number of important archæological discoveries.

Since 1920 Professor Formige has been concentrating on the vicinity of the famous Roman amphitheatre at Orange, one of the finest examples left by the Romans. It is still used to-day, and the performances held in it are spectacles which attract visitors from afar. Quite recently Professor Formige discovered at this spot 200 pieces of Roman sculpture, Roman coins, and other fragments and ornaments. He also uncovered a Roman gymnasium and temple, the latter 140 feet long by 80 feet wide. Near the ramparts of Orange he unearthed a city gate, 75 feet wide, dating back to the Roman occupation.

Professor Formige is a veritable Sherlock Holmes among archæologists. Whenever he views new ground where remains are likely to be found he stands perfectly still and asks to be left alone. His meditation will last perhaps half an hour before he gives the slightest sign He has been minutely observing every inch of the ground around him. Some uncanny intuition seems to guide his deductions, and he will point rapidly to different places, which are at once marked out. When the digging begins it is rare that he has not hit upon the entrance to some Roman villa or even more important building. The same extraordinary gift, appearing almost like second sight into the past, has enabled him to discover many precious hidden frescoes in old churches.

"Archæology has been my playmate and workmate for three decades," says Professor Formige, "and it is really only normal that I should feel and sense things which escape other observers. My eyes are doubtless quick to spy tell-tale clues and to note obscure evidence. A bit of carved stone meaning nothing to the ordinary spectator may signify for me the existence of a Roman forum or buried gate near by."

The researches of this French savant have taken him all over France, especially in the south, which abounds in remains of a great past, and besides Orange, he has made important discoveries at Vienne, Vaison, Fréjus, Béziers, St. Remy, and Arles. In two churches, one in Aix-en-Provence and the other in Fréjus, he discovered and excavated two baptistries dating back to the fifth century. His crowning work has been the extraordinary restoration of the Chateau of Tarascon, a beautiful medieval castle, which has just been opened as a Provencal Museum.

IRISH TRANSPORT

FROM CHAOS TO EFFICIENCY

Speaking at a general meeting of the Wexford Branch of the Railway Clerks' Association at Rosslare Harbour, Councillor Martin O'Sullivan outlined the rapid changes now taking place in the transport industry both in Northern Ireland and the Free State. Where there was complete chaos and disorder a couple of years ago there was now being steadily and gradually built up an all-round efficient machine, catering to the very fullest extent for the necessities of the country. He paid a special tribute to the zeal and enterprise of the various departmental chiefs, both road and rail, who were tackling the problems of co-ordinated transport with a considerable measure of success, and traders now had little cause for complaint.

Mr. W. P. Greene, Chairman, Irish Divisional Council, stated that a well-regulated system of transport, operating under a single control, was bound to be of great help in our present economic change-over. The establishment of small industries all over the country, side by side with the greater tillage movement, meant a share of trade for everybody and a better spending community. The railways paid large sums in wages, and are now our greatest industry. It was gratifying to note that a measure of prosperity was returning to the railways, and the speedy restoration of the 7½ p.c. cut, which was agreed to as a temporary relief when times were bad, would make for a more contented and more efficient staff.

Mr. J. Cahill, Chairman, Wexford Branch, presided.

GALLO-ROMAN TREASURE HAUL

A Gallo-Roman treasure has been found near this Normandy city, famous for its magnificent Gothic cathedral. Workmen unearthed 37 precious objects, including gold rings, bracelets, pearls and coins, hidden in the second century. Tax evasion is the theory of the French archæologists who investigated the find; for it is recorded that in this region the Romans had great difficulty in collecting taxes, the inhabitants being skilful in hiding their wealth. The Cæsars who should have received the taxes are dead and gone to dust, but the riches of this early inhabitant, in spite of his efforts to evade payment of the taxes in the year 135 A.D., have been confiscated by the French Government, and have at last reached the coffers of the State.

THE METHODIST CHURCH

MEETING OF STANDING COMMITTEE

The Standing Committee of the Methodist Church in Ireland held its stated monthly meeting on the 11th inst. The President of the Church, the Rev. T. J. Irwin, D.Litt., presided. In the absence of the honorary secretary (Mr. A. M. Fullerton, O.B.E.), business was conducted by Mr. W. M. Elliott, honorary assistant secretary. Cordial tributes were paid to the life and work of the late Rev. C. H. Bateson, C.B.E., secretary of the Army, Navy and Air Force Board of Great Britain, and by a standing vote the committee expressed its sympathy with Mrs. Bateson.

The Rev. Hugh McKeag, D.D., having intimated that for health reasons he was unable to attend the forthcoming Conference on Faith and Order, the Rev. William Corrigan (Belfast) was appointed in his place. The other representatives of the Church are the Rev. R. Lee Cole, M.A., B.D., and Mr. T. St. John Bagnall.

Permission was given for expenditure in connection with the trust property on the following circuits:—Belcoo, Co. Fermanagh; Newtownstewart, Co. Tyrone, and Edgarstown (Portadown). At the request of the Cootehill Circuit, a commission was appointed to visit that circuit, and similar commissions were appointed to visit several centres in Counties Mayo and Donegal. The Rev. J. W. Carrothers, M.A., LL.D.; Mr. David Collen and Mr. J. Robertson Coade, were given the powers of the Committee to decide on further expenditure in connection with Bray Church.

Numerous sectional committees were appointed to consider and report on matters which had been sent down to the Standing Committee by the Conference. It was decided that the most important of these sectional committees shall meet in Belfast on Tuesday, 5th November. A letter was read from the Rev. John McCaffrey, B.A., stating that a gentleman, who for the present desired to remain anonymous, had offered to provide presidential robes for the use of the President of the Church. It was decided to thank cordially the gentleman for his offer, and to submit it to the Conference, which alone can determine matters of this kind.

Ardara Methodist Church, in the heart of County Donegal, had an enjoyable treat last week, when to a full house Miss Sylvia Fannin, of Dublin, gave an address on the new Methodist Hymn Book and conducted community singing. Mr. C. H. Russell, of Strabane, presided. The Rev. D. Wesley Morrow, minister of the church, expressed the thanks of the congregation to their visitors.

The Women's Missionary Council for the Portadown District has had a successful meeting at Banbridge, presided over by Miss Collen, of Rostrevor. The total raised for missions on the district last year was the highest yet reached. Mrs. Wilfred Stafford, of Hyderabad, gave an interesting account of Indian life. The Rev. Wilfred Stafford, B.A., and the Rev. W. G. Lee also took part in the gathering.

The Rev. J. Wisheart, of the South Derry Mission, has accepted the invitation of Lurgan High Street Circuit to succeed the Rev. Albert E. Carson, B.A., as superintendent of the circuit at the next conference.

The Rev. J. J. Beacom, of Tinahely, has accepted the invitation of the Glastry and Portaferry Circuit to succeed the Rev. R. A. Knowles as its superintendent at the next conference.

Miss Olive Robertson, of Cork, who has been appointed by the Missionary Society to the Segbwema Hospital, West Africa, and who will sail from Liverpool on October 30th, bears a name honoured throughout Irish Methodism. Her father is a highly valued member and official of the Cork Circuit. Her uncle, the late Rev. J. C. Robertson, M.A., B.D., was Principal of Edgehill Theological College, Belfast, and President of the Methodist Church in Ireland in 1920. Her grandfather, the Rev. James Robertson, D.D., was twice called to the Presidency of the Church—viz., in 1897 and in 1906.

SNARING LINNETS

MAN FINED AT SWORDS

At Swords District Court yesterday, before Mr. McCarthy, D.J., Patrick Ward, of 25 Summerhill, Dublin, was summoned for snaring linnets at Seatown, Swords, on September 13 last.

Guard O'Conner, Swords, stated that as the result of a report received in the barracks he went to Seatown, where he saw two men. Ward was operating a net which measured 24 feet by 8 feeet. Near him was a decoy bird which had a contrivance attached round its body underneath its wings, known as a brace. At that time ten linnets had been captured. On being accosted, Ward seemed very reluctant to stop catching the birds, saying that this was his sole means of livelihood. He was getting sixpence each for the birds from people in Dublin. He had been summoned at Howth Court a short time ago and would like to continue catching birds.

In his defence, Ward said that he was unaware that the close season for linnets was in operation. He was married and had four in family. Justice.—You were in court before, and despite of you being fined you keep on catching linnets? I did not know that I was doing wrong.

Superintendent Walsh said that Mr. C. B. Moffat, secretary of the Irish Society for the Protection of Birds was in Court and could be heard, but the Justice intimated that he was satisfied with the facts of the case. In imposing a fine of 20s., the Justice said that if the defendant came before that or any other court on the same offence, he would be punished severely.

When the Superintendent asked if the Justice would make an order forfeiting the decoy bird, the defendant said that it took two years to train it. The decoy bird now has gone.

Patrick O'Reilly, of 33 North Cumberland street, Dublin, was summoned for aiding and abetting. He said that he had gone out to Swords to gather mushrooms and had encountered Ward, whom he had not known previously. The case against him was dismissed.

CIRCUIT (CRIMINAL) COURT

LARCENY FROM CHURCH

WOMAN CHASES THIEF

(BEFORE JUDGE SHANNON.)

Mrs. Mary McConville (35), St. Stephen's Green, was indicted for thefts, or attempted theft, from Corpus Christi Church, Home Farm road; St. Michael's Church, Dun Laoghaire; from the Great Northern Railway, and from the Star of the Sea Church, Sandymount. She was further charged with receiving stolen articles.

Mr. P. J. McEnery (instructed by the Attorney-General) prosecuted.

Miss Margaret O'Connor gave evidence of missing her handbag, which she had left on the seat when she went to the altar in Corpus Christi Church.

Mrs. Annie M. Clarke said that the accused woman had been kneeling in front of her at Mass. When Miss O'Connor had gone to the altar Mrs. McConville moved up along a side aisle towards Miss O'Connor's seat, and "rummaged through" Miss O'Connor's handbag and put it back on the seat. When Miss O'Connor was coming back Mrs. McConville went up to the altar.

Outside the church, the accused woman ran along the road and boarded a 'bus. Witness also boarded the 'bus. At Westmoreland street Mrs. McConville got into a Sandymount 'bus, and again the witness followed her. At College Street Station the witness stopped the 'bus and called out a Guard.

Miss Mary J. Burke, Glenageary, gave evidence of missing her handbag when she was attending Mass at St. Michael's Church.

Patrick Casey, assistant hotel manager of the Great Northern Railway, identified a pepper caster, value 2s. 6d. It was missing from a breakfast train.

Mrs. Christina Conway said that the accused woman was sitting near her at Mass in the Star of the Sea Church on 30th May. She was the only person near, and she "took such a quick departure" that the witness became suspicious and found her handbag missing.

Mrs. McConville, giving evidence on her own behalf, denied all the accusations.

Judge Shannon, in summing up, said that Mrs. Clarke had acted "very properly and very well," if the charges were held proven, in regard to the theft at Corpus Christi Church.

The jury found the accused woman guilty.

RECEIVER SENT TO JAIL

Mrs. Margaret Dwyer (52), Jervis street, Dublin, was charged with receiving six "Leathermac" coats, value £14, knowing them to have been stolen, in January last. In his summing up the Judge said that to the State this was a very important case. The authorities were always anxious to bring home guilt to receivers of stolen property. In this case thirty-six coats were stolen from the establishment of the Irish Leathermac Company. These would not have been taken, or other property in like circumstances, unless the thief knew quite well there would be a ready market for the stolen goods. The police authorities had to be very careful in their search and watch over dealers in all the Dublin markets, and when a case was brought to Court it deserved the jury's most careful consideration.

The jury found the accused woman guilty, and she was sentenced to six months' imprisonment.

From the dock the prisoner asked for another chance, and Judge Shannon said: "It is time some of the receivers of this city were caught."

CALLING OF JURORS

Judge Shannon announced at the opening of the Michaelmas Sittings of the Circuit Criminal Court a new arrangement of the jury-panel which, if the jurors would support him by their attendance, would convenience them. Jurors numbered 1 to 150 inclusive would attend this week, and from 151 to 300 inclusive, next week, as from Monday. He warned jurors that if the attendances were bad he might find it necessary to call the whole panel together; and might call over jurors on any morning on penalty of fines, without previous warning.

THE ERNE FISHERY

MOTION FOR AN ACCOUNT

SEQUEL TO MUCH LITIGATION

An application was made on behalf of the Attorney-General, a defendant, with a number of fishermen in the Ballyshannon district, in the action of Major R. J. Moore, of Ballyshannon, and other members of the Erne Fishery Company, for an order for the taking of an account of the fish caught by the plaintiffs in the tidal waters of the River Erne from the falls of Assaroe to the bar at Ballyshannon since the judgment of the Supreme Court in a motion in the action on the 27th June, 1927.

Mr. Lavery, K.C., who, with Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. Nunan (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), appeared for the applicant, said that in the action the plaintiffs had claimed that they were entitled to the exclusive possession of this fishery, and had brought a motion for an injunction to restrain from fishing in it a very large number of individuals who had claimed a public right of fishing in the waters mentioned. The Attorney-General was named as defendant to represent the entire body of the public, so that the public as a whole might be bound by the order of the Court. An injunction was refused by the High Court, and on appeal to the Supreme Court an injunction was granted upon terms, one of which was that the plaintiffs should give an undertaking to pay damages, in the event of their ultimate failure, to any persons who could show that they had suffered damage by having been excluded from the fishery. The plaintiffs undertook to keep an account of the fish caught, and, on that undertaking being given, the Court put the plaintiffs into exclusive possession of the disputed fishery. It was the duty of the Attorney-General to bring that order before the Court, and to ask the Court to say what action it desired to have taken in regard to that undertaking of the plaintiffs.

PROCEEDS OF FISHERY

Mr. Patrick Lynch, K.C., with whom was Mr. McGuckin, K.C. (instructed by Mr. Frank Gallagher), for the fishermen defendants, suggested that, if the Court made the order now asked for, the question of accounting should be transferred to the High Court, as on it might arise matters affecting the fishermen, who would be entitled to make whatever case they might be advised in regard to the proceeds of the fishing in these waters since the time of the making of the Order.

Mr. Jellett, K.C., who, with Mr. Overend, K.C., Mr. Phelps, K.C., and Mr. Newett (instructed by Mr. R. H. Reid), appeared for the plaintiffs, said that when the question of an account arose on a former occasion the Attorney-General said that he did not want an account, and did not ask for it. The Attorney-General now came in and asked for an account, the foundation of which must be based on the fact that he had suffered damage at some time through the plaintiffs being in exclusive possession of the fishery, but nothing of the kind had happened here. The defendant fishermen, who were represented in court when the Attorney-General abandoned any claim for an account, never had intervened, and had left the matter where it was, and from that day to this they never had served any notice of motion regarding it. Neither the Attorney-General nor the fishermen defendants could claim to have suffered any damage that would entitle them to take action against the plaintiffs, and, in his submission, it was absolutely untenable and should be refused.

Chief Justice—I suppose you kept the books as directed?

Mr. Jellett—Oh, yes. We undertook to keep accounts, and we have done that.

The Chief Justice, giving judgment, said that so far as the motion before the Court was concerned, an account never actually was directed, but in lieu of giving any injunction the Court ordered the plaintiffs to keep books pending the trial of the action, and presumably they had done that. It seemed to him that the Court could not direct an account with no object in view. The defendant fishermen had made no claim one way or another, and it seemed to him that no case had been made for an account, and that the motion should be refused.

Mr. Justice FitzGibbon and Mr. Justice Murnaghan agreed.

The application accordingly was refused.

SURCHARGE OF £5,718

NO EXTENSION OF TIME TO APPEAL

Mr. J. A. Costello, K.C., with whom was Mr. Patrick McGilligan (instructed by Messrs. Kerr and Hickey), appealed on behalf of Thomas Reilly, formerly secretary of the Leix Board of Health, against an order of the High Court of 19th April last refusing to allow the appellant an extension of time to enable him to take appropriate proceedings to have made absolute, notwithstanding cause shown, a conditional order of certiorari that he had obtained on 3rd May, 1935.

Counsel said that the appellant had appeared in the High Court in person, and up to the present had conducted his case very disastrously. Mr. Reilly was surcharged on 4th August, 1934, by Miss Browner, Local Government auditor, in thirteen items, amounting to £5,718 18s 7d. The auditor showed cause, and Mr. Reilly, having perused the rules of the Supreme Court of 1905 and overlooked the rules of 1911, thought that he had six weeks in which to prepare his case, whereas he had only six days, and the conditional order was discharged. He had already been warned by the High Court of the danger of embarking on proceedings of this kind without legal aid, and the High Court refused his application for an extension of time. He now submitted that, in the circumstances, the time should be extended.

Both Mr. J. A. McCarthy, K.C., with whom was Miss Kimpton (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), for the Minister for Local Government and Public Health, and Mr. T. P. McCarthy, K.C., and Mr. Art O'Connor (instructed by Messrs. O'Connor and Coonan), for Miss Browner, the auditor, submitted that the application for an extension of time was not bona fide.

The arguments having concluded, the Court unanimously refused the appeal. They further dismissed an appeal by the same appellant from the order of the High Court discharging the conditional order and allowing the cause shown. They affirmed the decision of the High Court and allowed one set of costs to the auditor.

INSURANCE POLICY IN BANK

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Mr. O'Dell (instructed by Mr. J. Fitzgerald) applied on behalf of the Hibernian Bank to raise the amount of an insurance policy lodged with them by Patrick Fingleton, Inch, Leix, and for a declaration that the sum of £800 was well charged on the defendant's lands. Counsel said that the defendant had lodged a policy of insurance on his life with the Scottish Equitable Assurance Co. with the bank, and it had now matured, and he had refused to sign the necessary release to the bank. The policy was for £400, and there was £800 due by the defendant to the bank.

Mr. P. J. Gaffney, Secretary of the Farmers' Protection Association, said that he had received a telegram from the defendant saying he was ill, and asking him to appear for him as a witness.

Mr. Justice Johnston said that as Mr. Gaffney was not an advocate he could not hear him.

Mr. Gaffney said that were it not for the intervention of his association there would be many more bank actions in Court.

Mr. Justice Johnston made the order sought.

Mr. Micks (instructed by Messrs. Montgomery and Chaytor) appeared for the Scottish Equitable Assurance Co.

An inquest was opened and adjourned yesterday in Steevens's Hospital, Dublin, on the body of Mrs. Margaret Hogan (43), of 189 Keogh square, Dublin, who died in the hospital from injuries received in a motor accident on Saturday last.

CLAIM FOR £4,000

AN APPLICATION REFUSED

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

In an action in which Patrick Somers, 44 Parnell road, Harold's Cross, Dublin, is plaintiff, and Joseph C. Erskine, William J. Good, William J. Bannister, Valentine E. Kirwan, and the Harold's Cross Public Utility Society, Ltd., are defendants, the plaintiff appeared in person, and said that the action was against the Society and the four named defendants, who were the management of the Society, to recover from them the sum of £4,000. Mr. Erskine was the solicitor to the Society and had a mortgage on premises which plaintiff owned. Plaintiff said that his deeds were held up, and £3,000 was appropriated by the defendants for an amount they claimed to be due to them by an agreement, which he denied. Because of the way in which his money was held up, he was unable to employ counsel or a solicitor. His application to the Court was for discovery of documents.

Mr. O'Dell (instructed by Mr. J. C. Erskine), for the defendants, submitted that the application for discovery was unsustainable, as it was not usual in this country to order discovery before the defence was filed. It was only on Saturday last that the plaintiff filed his statement of claim, which was a document of 52 paragraphs. It was not prepared in accordance with the rules, and they were preparing a motion for the purpose of setting aside the statement of claim on the grounds that it was unintelligible, gave a wrong joinder of the parties, and disclosed no cause of action.

Counsel added that neither he nor Mr. Kingsmill Moore, K.C., who appeared with him, could understand what it meant.

Mr. Justice Meredith said that he had glanced through the statement of claim, and he could not understand it.

Mr. O'Dell said that all the defendants were well-known professional men. Mr. Erskine had brought an action against the plaintiff before Mr. Justice Johnston to raise the amount of the mortgage, and the plaintiff pleaded that he did not know what the mortgage meant.

Mr. Justice Meredith said that he could not grant the application of the plaintiff, who had not defined the documents he wanted discovered. He could not grant the application also until the defence had been lodged. The application would be refused, with costs, and he gave the defendants liberty to apply to Mr. Justice Johnston to take the case into his list if he thought fit to do so.

KERRY FISHERY PROSECUTION

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE SULLIVAN, MR. JUSTICE HANNA, AND MR. JUSTICE O'BYRNE.)

Mr. Comyn, K.C., with whom was Mr. William Roche (instructed by Mr. Joseph C. Guihan), applied on behalf of Denis Lynch, Cloghane, Castlegregory, Co. Kerry, to have made absolute a conditional order of certiorari to quash a conviction of the District Justice and the Circuit Judge of the Castlegregory District Court area, fining Lynch £2 and costs on a charge, at the suit of H. Birdon Alton, clerk to the Limerick Board of Fishery Conservators, of using a net for the taking of salmon within half-a-mile seaward from the mouth of the River Owenmore, at Cappagh, Cloghane, on the 28th May, 1934, contrary to the Fisheries Acts, 1842 to 1925.

Mr. Binchy, K.C., and Mr. William Binchy (instructed by Messrs. Marshall and Macaulay) appeared for Mr. Alton.

Mr. Comyn submitted that the conviction should be quashed, as there was no adjudication of the offence charged; that the conviction was in respect of a supposed offence which was not charged; that it did not state when the fine and costs were to be paid or that the fine should be applied in the manner directed by the Act of 1869; that it ordered imprisonment in default; that it purported to be made on the summons which was wrongly recited, and which did not set out any offence within the meaning of the Act, and was not amended before the conviction or at all. He submitted that the District Justice's order was not based on the summons before him, and said that it was admitted that the Circuit Judge's order made on appeal could not stand, as there was a serious discrepancy between it and the order of the District Justice, and because it was not, in fact, a correct copy of the actual order made in the inferior Court.

Mr. Binchy, replying, said that he thought the reason why the District Court Justice changed the words in the summons from "unlawfully using a net within half a mile seaward from the mouth of the river," into "unlawfully fishing at the mouth of the river" in his order, was that probably the evidence was that the fishing took place just outside the mouth of the river. He admitted that the order was not satisfactory, in view of the summons, but he submitted that the order was consistent with the offence charged in the summons. The words "at the mouth of the river" in the order, taken in conjunction with the recital of the charge, could mean only that Denis Lynch was convicted of fishing within half a mile seaward from the mouth of the river. He agreed that the order of the Circuit Judge on appeal could not stand.

The Court made the conditional order of certiorari absolute with costs.

CLAIM FOR PRIZE-MONEY

A BRITISH GUIANA WINNER

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE JOHNSTON.)

Mr. Nolan Whelan (instructed by Mr. M. J. K. Dore) applied on behalf of Philip Gunning, a solicitor's clerk, of High street, Newtown, Georgetown, Demerara, British Guiana, for payment to him of £478 13s. 6d., which had been lodged in Court by the Irish Hospitals' Sweepstakes Trustees, after deducting costs of lodgment.

Counsel read affidavits showing that the applicant purchased a ticket in the Irish Hospitals' Sweepstakes on the Manchester November Handicap, 1930. He left the ticket for safe keeping with a Mr. J. Brummell, who since had died. The ticket drew a non-starter named Cavendo, the prize money being £491 5s. 6d. When Mr. Gunning requested the return of the ticket he was informed that it had been placed in a syndicate of 36 tickets organised by a Mr. J. E. Parker, of Water street, Kingstown, Georgetown, and that Mr. Parker was claiming the prize money. Claims to the prize money had been received from Mr. Parker and Mrs. Mabel Fernandez, Georgetown.

Mr. Nolan Whelan said that Mr. Gunning stated he was not informed of the existence of a syndicate until after it was intimated that the ticket had drawn a prize. All the defendants had been duly served with notice, and there was no appearance for them.

Mr. Justice Johnston directed that the costs of the applicant's solicitor be taxed and paid, that the Hospitals' Sweepstakes Trustees be allowed £4 4s. costs, and that the residue of the sum lodged in Court be paid out to the applicant.

Mr. B. Moran (instructed by Mr. P. H. O'Reilly) appeared for the Irish Hospitals' Sweepstakes Trustees.

(BEFORE MR. JUSTICE MEREDITH.)

Mr. W. O'B. Fitzgerald (instructed by Messrs. Barry G. Galvin and Son) applied on behalf of Messrs. Dwyer and Company, Limited, Cork, the plaintiffs in a mortgage suit in which the defendant is Stephen Hoban, High street, Tuam, for an order allowing them to accept an offer of £750 for the defendant's licensed premises at High street, Tuam. The judgment of the plaintiffs for £253 was registered against the premises, and there were also judgments against them registered by the Imperial Tobacco Company and National Bank, Limited. Both these companies had signed consents to the present application of the plaintiffs.

Counsel said that he had an affidavit from an auctioneer in Galway, stating that the amount of the offer was, in his opinion, more than the licensed premises were worth.

Mr. Justice Meredith accepted the offer.

There was no appearance for the defendant.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT

RAILWAY COMPANY SUED

WRONGFUL DISMISSAL ALLEGED

(BEFORE JUDGE DAVITT.)

Michael Doyle, Marine terrace, Bray, claimed a declaration that he had been dismissed by the Great Southern Railways Company from his position as guard without any reasonable cause and in violation of an agreement which, among other conditions, placed him within a class of "permanent employés," and that, as such employé, he was entitled, as from the date of his dismissal on March 6th, 1935, to the benefit of the agreement made with the company and the trades union representative.

The defendant company denied that there was any class of employés of a "permanent" character. The plaintiff's contract with the company was subject to one week's notice by either party to the contract. The defendant company also denied that the plaintiff was, on the date of his dismissal, ready or willing to perform his contract of service.

Dr. H. Raverty, Bray, stated that he examined the plaintiff on March 6th, and found him suffering from influenza. He certified him unfit for duty. He next saw Doyle on the 13th March, and on the 20th, and he was still unfit for work.

William O'Donovan, who was stationmaster at Bray, stated that a strike of the employés began on March 5th. The plaintiff did not go on strike that day, but he stayed out on the following day. Witness sent a messenger with a note to Doyle's residence, but the messenger, although he visited the place twice and knocked at the door, received no answer. Doyle, on March 13th, came to the office and presented witness with a certificate to be signed in order to entitle him to receive sick benefit from the Employés Friendly Society. Witness declined to sign the certificate. There were about 250 men employed at Bray Station.

Abram Martin, a boy-porter, in evidence, said that he saw Doyle in a publichouse in Bray on March 6th.

James Hayes, who was a passenger guard before the strike, but now a porter, stated that he saw Doyle among a number of other men on strike in the Harbour Bar on the evening of March 5th.

Robert Fennell, District Superintendent at Bray, stated that in an interview with Doyle after the strike he told Doyle that he had absented himself from duty on March 6th without permission, and by so doing had automatically dismissed himself. Doyle said that he was sick and produced a medical certificate. Witness told Doyle that he had evidence that he was a member of the Rail and Road Federation, and that he had been seen around Bray.

The Judge expressed the view that the plaintiff was not guilty of such misconduct as would justify his immediate dismissal, and he adjourned the further hearing of the case to permit the defendant company to re-consider their attitude towards the plaintiff.

Mr. Cecil Lavery, K.C., and Mr. Alex Lynn (instructed by Mr. J. F. Murtagh) appeared for the plaintiff.

Mr. E. J. Kelly, K.C., and Mr. Joseph Healy (instructed by Messrs. W. G. Bradley and Sons) appeared for the railway company.

Mr. Ernest Wood (instructed by Mr. Joseph Gleeson) appeared for Mr. C. D. Watters, Irish Secretary of the N.U.R.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

BROKE INTO GARAGE

Patrick Brophy (20) was charged with having broken into the garage of Messrs. Huet, Limited, Lower Mount street, on 19th May last.

Guard J. Cullen (153 B) said that the accused man, with three others, had broken into the garage on the date in question. He had found him at his mother's address in Lower Baggot street and arrested him.

Inspector Maher said that, when charged and cautioned, Brophy said:—"The charges are right. I have nothing to say."

Brophy was remanded on bail until Thursday next.

BROKE WINDOWS

Mrs. Rebecca Whittaker, Railway street, was sent to jail for two months, with hard labour, for having maliciously broken two windows in the dairy of Mr. A. Robinson, 10 Railway street, on Sunday.

Mr. L. Trant McCarthy, solicitor, for the defendant, said that his client had taken too much drink. She would, he said, in reasonable time, pay compensation for the damage, which amounted to £13 9s.

DRIVING CHARGE

Described as works manager in a motor firm in the city, John J. Jameson (33), of Rutland avenue, was charged with being drunk in charge of a motor car at Grove road, Rathmines, on Saturday night last.

He was remanded on bail until October 29th.

Mr. E. H. Burne, solicitor, defended.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

Andrew W. Gray, Holmpatrick, Skerries, a 'bus driver in the employment of the G.N.R. Company, was returned for trial on a charge of the manslaughter of Kathleen Markey (20), Killester, on the Howth road on 17th July last. There was also a charge of dangerous driving.

When Mr. J. P. Murnane, who (instructed by Messrs. Hoey and Denning, solicitors) appeared for the defence, mentioned the second charge, the District Justice said that in certain cases, as he had been informed, it was regarded as right in law and in natural justice to bring a man back to a summary Court and have him tried on a lesser charge after a judge and jury had acquitted him on the greater charge. He believed, however, that one was merged in the other. The practice to which he objected was a monstrous miscarriage of justice.

Mr. T. Clarke (Chief State Solicitor's Office) prosecuted, Mr. E. Wood (instructed by Mr. J. Gleeson) represented the N.U.R., of which Union Gray is a member, and Mr. G. Byrne, solicitor, appeared for the Dublin United Tramways Company.

FINED FOR TAKING CAR

Thomas O'Shaughnessy, of Dartmouth square, and Edmund Leamy, Annavilla, Ranelagh, were fined £5 each when charged on remand with taking a car from outside a house on Clonskea road without the consent of the owner, Mr. Albert Conneff, St. Helen's road, Booterstown.

The owner said that while visiting friends he left the car outside the house, and when he came out it could not be found. He reported the matter to the police, and later when the car was found a gallon of petrol was missing.

Mr. E. H. Burne, solicitor, who appeared for O'Shaungnessy, said that his defence was that, as it was raining hard, O'Shaughnessy, being under the influence of drink, did not care where he went for shelter. He had just drunk half a bottle of whiskey.

Mr. C. O'Daly (instructed by Mr. P. C. Moore) appeared for Leamy.

CORROSIVE POISON

WOMAN'S DEATH IN DUBLIN

At the Rotunda Hospital, Dublin, yesterday, an inquest was held on the body of Ellen Doyle (35), a native of County Cork, who died in the hospital on Saturday last. It was stated that the woman was found ill in her room in the house of Mrs. J. Farrell, her employer, on October 1, and removed to Mercer's Hospital, from where she was later taken to the Rotunda. At the time when Mrs. Farrell found her ill she had given to Mrs. Farrell a bottle containing some tablets.

Dr. Dockery said that death was due to the effects of a corrosive poison similar to that contained in the bottle. Two of the tablets, he said, would cause death.

The Coroner returned a verdict in accordance with the medical evidence, and added that the poison was self-administered while the woman was temporarily insane.

FEIS CEOIL'S GOOD WORK

DEFICIT DUE TO TRAM STRIKE

APPEAL FOR LARGER MEMBERSHIP

SURPRISE that the membership numbered less than two hundred was expressed by Alderman Hubbard Clark, who presided at yesterday's annual meeting of the Feis Ceoil Association. Proposing the adoption of the annual report, he said that he would like to remind, not only the citizens of Dublin, but the people of the country generally, that virtually all the administrative side of the work of the organisation was voluntary, and, speaking as a City Father, he had no hesitation in saying that those enthusiastic workers, especially the ladies on whom the responsibility rested, had every reason to feel satisfied with the success of their efforts during the past year.

As the report showed, he said, this was the thirty-ninth annual meeting, and the Feis Ceoil held in May last was, from a musical and educational standpoint, very satisfactory There had been 1,028 entries, and the adjudicators' comments on the various classes were highly complimentary, not alone to the competitors, but to their teachers, for the amount of time, care and attention they had shown.

There was, unfortunately, a deficit of £59, and that would have to be made up out of the capital fund. The loss was occasioned by the attendance falling off owing to the 'bus and tram strike, which had held up the whole transport services of the city for a long time. A number of very important organisations had to be disbanded altogether because of the absence of transport, but those in charge of the Feis persevered in holding the festival, and they were justified by the results, even though they showed a deficit.

Looking at the different places all over the country from which competitors came, he had no hesitation in saying that the organisers had done much, not only in the musical and cultural life of the city, but of the whole country. He thought, however, that more support should be forthcoming from parts of the country outside Dublin.

THE REPORT

The annual report referred to the effect of the strike on the competitions, particularly in the choral events, in which Dublin choirs were prevented from competing. A good number of choirs from Northern Ireland, however, had ensured keen and interesting competitions.

The Committee expressed keen regret at the death, during the year, of Dr. E. M. Fannin, who had taken an unfailing interest in the Feis, particularly in choral competitions. His memory would be kept green in the work of the Sutton Singers, the choir with which his name was so closely associated.

In seconding the adoption of the report, Mr. Henry Maguire said that it was owing to the unfortunate transport strike that there had been a falling off in receipts, but their difficulties had been tided over wonderfully by the ladies and others who kept things going.

The report was adopted.

In moving the re-election of the honorary officers—Miss Alice Griffith as hon. secretary and Mr. J. E. Geoghegan and Captain H. M. Fitzgibbon as hon. treasurers—Mr. Edmund Lupton, K.C., said that the consistency of the honorary officers was proven, and their services were highly valued.

The motion was seconded by Mrs. Boxwell, and carried unanimously.

Mr. Dermod O'Brien, President of the Royal Hibernian Academy, proposed the election of Messrs. George V. Mortier and Evan P. Griffith as scrutineers.

Seconding the motion, Mr. J. E. Geoghegan said that the one thing they were all keen about was to have new members. There were only about two hundred members in the Association in the whole of Ireland, and he thought that if each of them could add but a single new member during the next year, it would help them a great deal.

The motion was carried.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

A motion was proposed by Mrs. P. J. McCall to amend the constitution governing the election of the Executive Committee. The practice hitherto has been to send out a complete list of members of the Association, all of whom were eligible for election to the committee, and the twenty-five members securing the greatest number of votes formed the Committee, with powers of co-option. Mrs. McCall thought that many votes were lost in this way, and her suggestion was that in future candidates for the Committee should be nominated by members of the Association, and must give their consent to being nominated, and to act if elected. Forms of nomination should be issued to members in due course.

Mrs. Alex Stewart seconded the motion, and said that it would make for the introduction of new blood on the Committee.

Mr. Lupton, K.C., said that the members had it already in their power to do everything that the motion proposed, but he was in favour of making the alteration if it would help the Feis Ceoil. He suggested, as an amendment, however, that outgoing members of the Committee should not need nomination, but should be eligible for reelection, and that their names should ipso facto be included on the ballot paper with those of the newly nominated members.

Mrs. McCall agreed to the suggested amendment, and the motion, with Mr. Lupton's amendment included, was adopted unanimously.

Play safe with children's colds, Mother! Use the remedy that thousands upon thousands of other mothers have tested and proved safest and best—Vick brand Vapour-Rub.

There is nothing to swallow—nothing to upset delicate little stomachs. You just rub it on throat and chest at bedtime.

The instant it is applied, it begins to warm the chest, to "draw out" the tightness, like an old-fashioned poultice.

At the same time, its healing, medicated vapours go, with every breath, direct to the air-passages—where colds lodge.

A RECORD OF GOOD WORK

CO-OPERATION OF PUBLIC BODIES

THE Provincial and community of the Order of St. John of God in charge of St. Augustine's Colony for Mental Defectives, at Obelisk Park, Blackrock, County Dublin, yesterday held a reception of visitors to the colony, where fifty patients are being cared for and trained in agricultural field work and other suitable trades. All the visitors expressed enthusiastic appreciation of the remarkable work carried on, and called for its extension.

The Very Rev. Brother A. Donegan, Provincial, said that their workshops were still in a very crude and elementary state, and the chapel was too small. Since the sixteenth century their order had made a special study of mental welfare, and at the present day the Order conducted mental hospitals and institutions in almost every country in Europe. In 1930 a separate Province of the Order was formed for the Irish and English brothers, and in the same year the late Cardinal Bourne invited them to take up the care of Catholic mentally defective boys in England.

MAINTENANCE

In the Free State they found that, though mental diseases were, on the whole, very well catered for, and though mental defective children were well cared for at St. Vincent's, Cabra, they found that very little was being done for mental defectives above school age. Consequently they had offered their services and the estate. In 1931 the colony was opened with the approval of the Department, but progress had until recently been very slow, while the financial position had caused them great uneasiness. Each year ended with a financial loss, and periodical loans had to be raised to meet current expenses. Although the various county boards were circularised and some of them had been visited, the almost invariable reply received was that the maintenance fee was too high. He might mention that the local authorities in England paid 23s. 6d. per week for each defective supported by them, and in the Free State, where the cost of living was no lower, almost half that figure was considered too high.

One notable exception to that attitude was that of the Dublin Board of Assistance.

All round, he declared, more attention was being paid to the mental defective problem and this year their institution had more than doubled its numbers.

The Lord Mayor, Alderman Byrne, T.D., said it was amazing that the Brothers had done for mentally defective boys at their colony in Potter's Garden, London. If they had not made the boys self-supporting they had at least improved them by fifty per cent.

WELL SPENT MONEY

"If," he added, "the authorities here knew what could be done in this matter, by proper handling of the boys after they left school, there was no doubt that they would take second place to none in their desire to look after such children." What institution, he asked, could feed, clothe and educate a boy for various walks in life for 16s. per week per head? There were in nearly every village one or two mentally defectives, and it would be a saving to the ratepayers and advantageous to the boys, if the local bodies sent them to that institution instead of putting them into County Homes and leaving them there for all time. There was still room for fifty boys in the institution, which he recommended not alone to Dublin, but to the thirty-two counties of Ireland.

Mr. G. P. Cussen, Senior Metropolitan Justice, said that he was satisfied that to increase the population of Obelisk Park would be a gain to the State. He was perfectly aware that there were more than fifty boys who would be glad to come to that institution and who would benefit from it, and whose residence there would be a profit instead of a loss to the State.

Senator J. T. O'Farrell said that the work being done by the Brothers was of a most humane and Christian character. Parents would have great satisfaction in knowing that in that institution their children would be as well cared for, and, in most cases, unfortunately, better cared for than if they were kept at home.

A SOCIAL OBLIGATION

Dr. J. Fitzgerald, Assistant R.M.O., Grangegorman Mental Hospital, said that this was the only country in the world, with all their hospitalisation, where there was no legislation to deal with mental defectives. There was a moral and social obligation on any State to look after their less fortunate brethern—the mentally affected.

The question was one not merely for the Minister for Local Government, but also for the Minister for Education, who should introduce legislation to raise the school-leaving age from 14 to 16 years in the case of mental defectives.

While the initial expense of treatment for mental defectives might be heavy, it would eventually repay itself. It cost 21s. per week to maintain a patient in Grangegorman, while a patient at Obelisk Park cost only 16s. per week to maintain, and there was no doubt that the children being trained by the brothers could become useful social units.

Dr. J. A. Harbison, Dublin County M.O.H., said that for years they simply talked of insanity as grouping every deviation from the normal, and so allowed people to associate every deviation from the normal with the atmosphere of insanity, and so developed a feeling of hopefulness. The problem was one which struck at the roots of civilisation.

Dr. J. Hannigan, T.C., said it was disappointing to know that insanity was increasing in the country. There were mentally defective children in the Free State in county homes, mental hospitals, farmyards and back rooms. That system must be changed.

Mrs. Maud Walsh said that in the treatment of mentally defective children they were about fifty years behind the times. In order to get a patient into an institution such as they were attending that day they had to pauperise them by sending them through the union.

EMPLOYMENT

Mr. D. Coyle appealed to industrialists to give boys trained in such institutions a chance on completion of their treatment.

The Rev. R. Devane, S.J., said that it was the duty of the State to make every effort to come to handigrips with the problem of mental defectives. They required some central body to come together to draft a programme to submit to the Government and to get it sufficiently interested to introduce legislation.

The Rev. H. B. Dobbs, M.A., All Saints', Newtown Park, Blackrock, said that he had occasion to come there sometimes, because the charity of the Order extended even to him, and he desired to acknowledge the courtesy he had always received there and to place on record the happy relations that existed between the patients and the Brothers who devote themselves to their care. It was a pleasure to him to know that there was a Home like that which could afford to those boys who are misfits and devoid of their normal faculties, protection against the hostilities and harshness of the world, which was still more harsh on those with less intelligence than the majority.

Dr. J. P. Brennan said that it would be very much more to the point if the Minister for Local Government set up a commission of inquiry into the subject of mental defectives than to send economic experts to Geneva to impose sanctions on Italy or Abyssinia.

Other speakers were:—Messrs. P. S. Doyle, T.D., Chairman, Dublin Board of Assistance; P. Belton, T.D., Chairman, Dublin County Council; J. P. Dooge, Chairman, Rathdown Board of Guardians; Dr. J. G. O'Rielly, Assistant Medical Officer Dublin Union; J. Costello, Chairman, Grangegorman Board, and M. F. H. Brunicardi.

Among those present were:—Messrs. J. J. Perry, Registrar to the Chief Justice; Dr. J. J Boland, Medical Officer to the Colony; Thomas F. McNamara, the Very Rev. Francis de Sales Whittaker, O.S.J.D.; the Rev. T. Griffin, B.A., Chaplain to the Colony; the Rev. Brother T. O'Connell, Prior, and the Rev. Brother G. Madden, Bursar.

Mr. Morgenthau, Junior Secretary of the United States Treasury, yesterday called upon M. Regnier, French Minister of Finance. He insisted that his call would be "simply a matter of courtesy."

To-Day's Motor News

BARR MEMORIAL TROPHY

SATURDAY'S TRIAL IN THE NORTH

The last Northern Ireland event of the year to count in the decision of the Motor Cycle Inter-Club Reliability Championship will take place on Saturday next, when the J. C. Barr Memorial Trophy trial for solo machines only will be run by the Belfast and District Club. Entries close on Thursday with Mr. E. Reilly, 29 Shaftesbury square, Belfast.

In view of the bonus marks to be picked up for travelling outside their Centre's area this trial is very important to Free State teams struggling to improve their position in the championship tables. For that reason it is expected that the South will be well represented.

The trial will be held over a course of about fifty miles. The rules contain nothing revolutionary, but it is notable that average speeds required will be set out in the route cards. Awards will be on the 25 per cent. basis, and the entry fee is 7s. 6d. (members of the Belfast and District Club 5s.).

In Dublin on Saturday the Leinster Club are to hold a treasure hunt.

CONTINENTAL TEAMS

Notwithstanding the war in Abyssinia Italian racing "stables" are looking forward to next year's sport, though it is doubtful if there will be much racing on the Continent unless the political atmosphere clears up unexpectedly soon.

As previously stated in the Irish Times, there was a rumour that Nuvolari might be retiring, but now it appears that the Scuderia Ferrari are anxious to fix him up as their leading driver for 1936. Dreyfus, the French driver, and Farina, who drove a Maserati at Donington a few weeks ago, also are expected to be on the Ferrari team.

Probably the most interesting news from the Continent is that Bugattis next year are going to take Grand Prix racing rather more seriously. The Bugattis were outclassed in most of this year's Grand Prix events.

It is said that a new car coming well inside the Grand Prix formula weight, and with a single seater body has been produced at the Bugatti works. It is believed to be the first of a team of cars being built specially to challenge German supremacy in the Continental events for next year. Wimille, Taruffi and Veyron are expected to be the drivers.

W. F. Ayrton (M.G.) had the best time in the wheel-changing competition.

DUBLIN CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

AMERICAN MINISTER'S VISIT

The American Minister paid a visit to the Council of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce at the monthly meeting held yesterday.

The President (Alderman J. Hubbard Clark), who occupied the chair, in welcoming the Minister to the country and to the Chamber, stated that the Chamber had been looking after the interests of the business community of Dublin for more than 150 years.

In the course of his reply, the Minister referred individually to the many Irishmen who had assisted in building up the country which he now represented. He thought, therefore, that, in addition to the Americans' ever-present wish to make money by means of trade, there was a sentimental tie between the two countries, which should assist in the sale of Irish goods in America.

The Council received reports on the Committee inquiring into Patent, Design and Trade Mark Law, Part III. of the Control of Manufactures Act, the Control of Imports Act, and Quota Orders Nos. 1 to 25; Certificates of Origin and Customs Clearance Charges.

The Secretary, in drawing attention to several matters, stated that the list of electors for the Dublin Port and Docks Board was being revised, and claims for inclusion in the register must be lodged with the Secretary to the Board before 4 p.m. on Monday, the 21st October. The present list had been placed in the members' room for inspection by members, and would remain there until that date.

Several matters were referred to subcommittees, among which were the Government's amendments to the Conditions of Employment Bill and the evidence submitted to the Greater Dublin Tribunal.

The American Federation of Labour Convention has voted unanimously in favour of a thirty-four hours week.

HIGH-GRADE MILK

FACTORS IN ITS PRODUCTION

PAPER READ AT ENGINEERING SOCIETY

"THE first essential in the production of high-grade milk is a healthy cow," said Mr. Peter Dolan, Chief Veterinary Officer of the Dublin Corporation, in the course of a paper entitled "The Scientific Production of High-grade Milk," which he read before the Scientific and Engineering Society at the Engineers' Hall, Dublin, last night.

Mr. Dolan said that cows should be subjected to the tuberculin test every six months, and tagged or tattooed for identification purposes. The failure to isolate affected animals, bad cowsheds and dirty conditions were important factors in spreading the disease. In the elimination of bovine tuberculosis their first step should be to encourage the establishment of self-contained herds, which were maintained by the rearing of heifer calves from selected cows. The isolation of the herd in well-fenced farms was necessary.

The healthy cow must be kept clean, and the clipping of the hindquarters and washing of the udder now were general in high-grade dairy farms. The best results were obtained by the installation of a water-pipe behind the cows, so as to ensure that each cow was washed with clean water. Where hand-milking was practised it should be dry-milking. Machine milking required special attention to details, such as the washing, rinsing and sterilisation of all the parts.

The milking of cows in a special shed attached to the dairy offered the greatest possibilities in the production of high-grade milk, and got rid of many of the obstacles met with in the change-over to the production of this grade of milk.

STERILISATION

The sterilisation of all utensils and appliances was essential, and should be carried out by steam. The water supply should be good and plentiful, and should be capable of cooling the milk in summer to 60 degrees Fahrenheit.

Dairies, wash-houses and sheds should be constructed so that they might be cleaned easily. In the construction of drainage chanels care should be taken to have them simple and free from fittings which would be difficult to clean. Concrete was the most economical material for flooring, as it was non-absorbent and easy to clean, but it was not the best material for the cows. The buildings on most dairy farms could be adapted to the requirements of the production of high grade milk. Elaborate buildings were a great help, but without proper outlook by the attendants they would not ensure success. Milk was a great medium for the development of bacteria, and, in a short time after it left the cow's udder, if the conditions were bad, organisms multiplied rapidly and souring occurred in a short time. More than one-third of the 22,000 gallons of milk consumed in Dublin daily was reasonably safe milk.

Mr. Douglas Mallin, F.C.S., who proposed a vote of thanks to Mr. Dolan, said that an attempt was being made by the Government to take old diseased cows off the market. Already cows of that description had been purchased in Kerry and disposed of.

A HIGHER PRICE

Mr. F. Parkes, A.M.I.E.E., who seconded the vote of thanks, said that, if people paid the higher prices for milk, dairymen would be encouraged to instal the most modern appliances.

Supporting the vote of thanks, Mr. R. N. Tweedy said that sufficiently drastic measures had not been taken to see that clean milk was not just a rarity, but the commonplace.

Mr. I. E. Porte said that he had seen an instance where milk from cans was put in empty milk bottles that had been placed outside consumers' doors.

The vote of thanks was passed with acclamation, and Mr. Dolan replied.

A SPIKED HAY-FIELD

CARRICKFERGUS MAN'S CLAIM

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

A malicious injury claim of an unusual character was heard by Judge Thompson at the Belfast Quarter Sessions to-day, when John Picken, French Park, Carrickfergus, claimed £50 compensation in respect to damage to a horse, a reaping machine, and two fields of hay containing about eight acres by reason of a quantity of spikes having been placed in the ground.

Mr. Nicholson (instructed by Mr. Stanley Haggan), for the applicant, said that the occurrence took place on July 1st and 2nd. It was, counsel said, a rather unusual claim. Mr. Picken was the owner of a farm in the locality of Carrickfergus, and when he went to cut his hay crop in July he found it had been spiked throughout, the two fields containing eight Irish acres, with short iron spikes.

The result of this was that when Mr. Picken commenced to cut the hay his reaper was caught in the spikes and it was considerably damaged. He had then to get the crop cut by hand, as a result of this Mr. Picken lost a considerable sum. In addition, a valuable horse, which was in the reaper, became so affected with the constant stopping that it refused to work any further.

Applicant corroborated counsel's statement, and said that he sold the horse for £20. He estimated his loss on the crop at £10. The damage to the machine cost £6 0s. 2d.

The Judge—Have you any idea who was responsible for this?—No.

Had you any quarrel with any neighbours?—No, your Honour.

To Mr. J. D. Chambers (instructed by Mr. Harper), for Belfast Rural Council—The difference in the price of cutting an acre by machine and by hand would be 10s.

How many tons of hay would you have to the acre?—About 2½ tons. He estimated that he had lost five tons of hay.

MEATH AND DUBLIN FRUIT GROWERS

VALUE OF SPRAYING

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DROGHEDA, Monday.

The benefits of spraying of raspberries, and soft fruits generally, was emphasised at the annual meeting of the Meath and Dublin Fruit Growers' Association, which was held yesterday at Duleek, Co. Meath.

Mr. George King, who was re-elected Chairman of the Association for the third successive year, said that the money which the Association had spent during the year on the purchase of sprayers was money well spent. This year, he continued, the Meath County Committee of Agriculture were giving the Association a grant of half the cost of two cascade sprayers and six knapsack sprayers. The total cost of these would be about £63, and when they had used up their credit balance on the year (£27) they would have to borrow about £36.

Mr. James McKenna said that he heard some people say the spraying did more harm than good, but he could say that he knew it did not.

The meeting decided to purchase the additional sprayers, and arranged the prices that members would be charged for their use.

The Chairman also reported on the result of an interview which a deputation from the Association had with the Great Northern Railway Company regarding the transport facilities for fruit for next season. It was, he said, agreed that there would be no change in the charges for transport of fruit to the Dublin markets, and the company also agreed to all the proposals put forward by the deputation regarding the collection of the fruit by the company's lorries.

The following officers were elected:—Chairman—Mr. George King. Vice-Chairman—Mr. P. Curley. Hon. Secretary—Mr. P. McCarthy. District committees were also appointed.

The Belgian Red Cross has issued an appeal on behalf of the "sick and wounded in East Africa."

TRAMWAYMEN UNDER NOTICE

CONDITIONS IN THE SUGAR INDUSTRY

FROM OUR INDUSTRIAL CORRESPONDENT.

Over 20 tramwaymen have received notice from the Dublin United Tramways Company terminating their employment.

These men received notice of dismissal last June, but the dismissals were not carried out in consequence of the improvement in receipts during the summer season.

The men concerned were originally taken into the service of the company before the Eucharistic Congress in 1932. The majority of them have been laid off on occasions since.

It is understood that if these dismissal notices are put into operation certain cars will also be taken off selected routes.

The position is engaging the attention of the Irish and Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Unions.

THE SUGAR WORKERS

The directors of the Irish Sugar Company met a delegation from the Irish Trade Union Congress yesterday to discuss trade union conditions in the factories during the coming campaign season. The meeting, which was held under the auspices of the Ministry of Industry and Commerce lasted all day.

Senator Thomas Kennedy, Miss H. Molony, and Messrs. Michael Drumgoole (President) and E. Lynch (Secretary) represented the Congress. The Unions directly concerned in the industry are the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union and the Irish Engineering Industrial Union.

When the Congress officials have consulted these two bodies on the position, the discussions will be resumed.

At a meeting of British and Irish Steam Packet Company dockers employed on the north side of the Liffey, held in Liberty Hall, proposals for altered employment arrangements were adopted.

These proposals, which have already been accepted by the company, are that 100 dockers will be employed permanently for a 45-hour working week. The men will receive a weekly wage of 66s.

Certain other proposals which were put forward at a conference between the firm and the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union were agreed to with slight amendments.

ATHY STRIKE OVER

The head office of the Irish Transport and General Workers' Union has received information that, as a result of the work of their local officials, a settlement has been reached in the Athy Sewerage Scheme strike.

The men have resumed work on the understanding that some of the dismissed workers would be reinstated.

STOMACH SUFFERER DISCHARGED FROM HOSPITAL AS INCURABLE

Now Eats Good Meals

There is no need for stomach sufferers to despair of relief if they have not tried Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Almost every day letters arrive from one-time "incurables" who have been put right by Maclean Brand. Read this letter from Mr. J. H., of Birmingham:—

"Four years ago I suffered agony, and hospital treatment was useless. I have rolled over in the garden so great has been the pain. I was X-rayed each hour for 7 hours and was later told that I had a Duodenal Ulcer and must undergo an operation. I refused and was discharged from the hospital as incurable. I then started to take Maclean Brand Stomach Powder and Tablets. Soon after, all pain vanished, and the pain and agony has not returned. I can now sit down to a good meal without any fear, before even a cup of tea was distasteful to me."

Why not make your digestive troubles vanish the same swift way? Maclean Brand Stomach Powder is as effective in banishing flatulence, biliousness, heartburn, as the more serious digestive complaints. But make sure that it is the genuine Maclean Brand—the "signature" brand. Just look for the "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" signature on the bottle and you can't go wrong. Powder or tablets, never sold loose, 1/6, 2/3 and 5/3. At all chemists.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

The P. and O. : An Irish Administrator : Industrial Alcohol
National Characteristics : Irish Pilot's Mishap

Sir Alan Pim

I am interested to hear that Sir Alan Pim, K.C.I.E., who has just been appointed to investigate the financial and administrative system of Kenya Colony, is a distinguished graduate of Trinity College. He entered the University in 1889 from the Society of Friends' School at Bootham, Yorkshire, and graduated in 1893 with Senior Moderatorship (and Studentship) in Mathematics, after gaining Scholarship in the same subject. He entered the Indian Civil Service in 1894, and became Secretary to the Board of Revenue of the United Provinces in 1910 and Secretary to the Government in 1912. He was officiating Finance Member of the Government of India at his retirement in 1930.

Sir Alan's new appointment is not the first that he has held since leaving the Indian Civil Service: he has also been entrusted with financial inquiries on behalf of the Government in British Honduras, Zanzibar, Basutoland, Swaziland, and the Bechuanaland Protectorate. Surely an imposing list of important commissions on behalf of His Majesty's Government, and a record of service of which his old University and his country may be proud.

Industrial Alcohol

Recent references to the manufacture of industrial alcohol from the potato remind me of some of the older uses of this staple article of food. As appears from a paper read before the British Association over a century ago the potato was used in many novel ways outside the kitchen. The pulp was fashioned into snuff-boxes, children's toys and even picture frames. Those versed in the art of perfumery turned it to good account; and, not infrequently, the spirit of the potato masqueraded in the domino of "Eau de Cologne." More disquieting still for tipplers of the day, so-called Cognac and much that went under the name of brandy was largely "spirit of potato." In many instances the raw material for these liquors, distilled from potatoes, was imported into England from the Continent and re-exported to the Colonies as the genuine produce of the grape. Germany and Poland are said to have done a brisk trade in this commodity a hundred years ago. A more domestic use for the potato in the time of our great-grandfathers was that of quack medicament. Chilblains and eczema were often treated by a lotion of the water which ran from the potato in the process of its manufacture into spirit. Washerwomen found this water a good cleanser of woollens, and it was put into the wash tub for this reason, as well as to prevent the ills that washerwomen are heir to. "There is nothing new under the sun." Possibly our new alcohol factories might later make of this water a useful by-product. It can at least be tested.

An Irish Actor

Mr. Breffney O'Rourke, a friend tells me, is to make a welcome re-appearance in Dublin this month. He is coming to take a leading part in a play at the Gaiety, and we will not have the pleasure of his good company for more than a week. Old playgoers who remember his acting at the Abbey, the Queen's, and other theatres will rejoice that he is coming back for even such a brief stay. Unlike others whom I could mention, Mr. O'Rourke never fails to keep his old Dublin cronies well posted on his doings and his travels by characteristically racy letters. His last stage appearance here was in the rôle of the prisoner three or four years ago in a grim and realistic prison drama by Mr. Bob Brennan. On that occasion, I remember, he seemed to tower over the rest of his fellow-players, so impressive was his acting. His return now provokes the rather saddening reflection that if all the old Abbey actors still playing abroad—the Sinclairs, O'Donovans, Hutchinsons, Diggeses, Farrells, and so forth—were to come back at the same time, and accompanied by earlier and later Abbey actresses likewise now playing to foreign audiences, we should not have theatres enough to give room for them and those still resident here. Dublin seems to breed more players and playwrights of the front rank than it does producers—a fatal defect in the modern theatre.

National Traits

A correspondent writes:—Your editorial reference the other day to the national characteristics of different peoples recalls the ancient Irish scribe's observations on this point. This commentary will be found in the introduction to the Book of Genealogies, compiled by the famous historian, Dubhaltach MacFirbhisigh in 1650, and edited for the Stationery Office by Mr. T. O Ráithbheartaigh, M.A., two or three years ago. Having quoted the famous passage "from an old book" on the distinction between the two main Irish stocks and their personal characteristics, our historan wrote: "I do not propose to say absolutely that races may be recognised with certainty by their temperament or appearance, though it might possibly have been so in early times until the races often became intermixed afterwards; for we see daily in our time and we hear often from our ancients that every kin of Ireland has in itself a similarity of appearance and character, and even of habits, one with another; and not only is that usually so, but it is said that every people inhabiting one land have within themselves a similarity with each other, and that they all have each one character by which they may be recognised, as can be understood from this day," which he quotes.

The verses, as translated by Mr. O Ráithbheartaigh from this genealogical tract, read: "The architecture of the tall Jews and their truly fierce envy; the large size of the Armenians without deceit, and the strength of the Saracens. Astuteness in the Greeks with valour, great pride among the Romans; the obduracy of the floating Saxons, and the unruliness of the Spaniards. Tell ye avarice in the Franks, and anger in the true Welshmen—here is the just knowledge of the stocks, the gluttony of the Norse and their commerce. I will not conceal the high spirit of the Picts, the beauty and lust of the Gaels; Giolla na Naomh tells it in verse, O Christ, let it be worthily preserved." Kuno Meyer gives a slightly different version from an Egerton MS. This old poet, Giolla na Naomh O Huidhrin, is not very complimentary to some of these peoples, and my correspondent thinks some of the Gaels of our day will not thank him for trouble; but it is remarkable how closely he approaches to modern conceptions in his references—for example, to the strength of the Saracens, Greek astuteness, Roman pride, Spanish unruliness, and the obduracy of the sea-going Saxons.

Mr. F. W. Griffith

I was pleased to see that my young air pilot friend, Fred Griffith, will be flying again within three months. His crash at Saint Remy-de-Province last week was certainly most unlucky, and its cause—sudden engine failure—is, fortunately, one which is becoming rare in civil aviation. Mr. Griffith, although only twenty-two years of age, is recognised as one of the best commercial pilots operating from Croydon airport at the present time. He spent much of his early youth in New Zealand, and when he returned to Ireland two or three years ago he took up flying as a career. For some time he flew with the Irish Aero Club at Baldonnel Aerodrome, and later became chief pilot to Everson Flying Services at Kildonan, Finglas, after gaining experience on a large number of different types of aircraft in England. It was while he was based at Kildonan that Mr. Griffith made two splendid flights for this newspaper—both against time—from London to Dublin with photographs of the Duke of Kent's wedding, and this year of the Royal Jubilee. His flight with wedding pictures last November was a great performance, since his was the only machine to leave Heston airport, London, that day owing to foggy weather over the greater part of England.

Flying to Ethiopia

When a project of Mr. Griffith to run an air service between Dublin and Liverpool was rejected by the authorities he left this country and joined a commercial aviation company at Croydon Aerodrome. His wide experience made him invaluable, and he has made many flights to all parts of Europe, mostly on charter trips to pick up photographs for newspapers. When I last saw him, in August in the pilots' room at Croydon Airport, he was very enthusiastic about the trip which ended in his accident. Griffith was to fly to Addis Ababa to obtain pictures of the Italo-Ethiopian hostilities and get them back to London. He was very proud of being chosen by his chief, Mr. Brian Allen, for the work, and was busy getting himself into training for the long, fast flight which he would have made on his return journey. His machine, a Percival "Gull," fitted with every possible device to assist piloting and navigation, was a long-range monoplane, designed to fly from London to North Africa non-stop. I am told that another pilot, who is well known in Ireland but whose name is being kept a secret, is also going to Ethiopia on a similar job to that which Griffith was to have carried out. I wish him better luck.

The P. & O. Company

It is just a hundred years since Willcox and Anderson tried the "bold experiment" of running a regular steamship service to Portugal and Gibraltar, and suggested to the Government a plan for establishing a mails service to replace the intermediate Lisbon sailing packets and the steamer, which ran intermittently to Gibraltar under Admiralty directions. The proposal was coldly received at first, but within two years the pioneers were assigned their first contract—with a substantial subsidy—and to carry it into effect they founded the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company. Willcox and Anderson were enterprising London merchants, with no experience of mails conveyance, but they were astute enough to invite the aid and advice of the old City of Dublin Steamship Company—itself the earliest of the regular services—from which the P. and O. Company was the outcome. The expert adviser was Captain Richard Bourne, "concerned in the Irish mails," whose name appears as a foundation director of the P. and O. Company, and he and the two first partners are jointly credited with having inaugurated the system by which the conveyance of all overseas mails was transferred from Admiralty control to the shipping companies.

QUIDNUNC.

CHRIST CHURCH CATHEDRAL

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—Father Ronan is reported in your columns as having said of Henry the Eighth: "The Cathedral he handed over to Dublin Castle officials and retainers; the lands of Clonken he bestowed on the new Dean of Christ Church for his personal use." Such a statement, if he made it, would be (to put it mildly) misleading. It would suggest that the Prior and Augustinian Canons were driven out and a new Dean and Chapter intruded in their place.

But what are the true facts of the case, known to every student of the history of the Cathedral? The "new Dean" is only the former Prior under a new title, and the Chapter, so far from being "Dublin Castle officials and retainers," are the former Augustinian Canons.

An interesting sidelight on the attitude of the Prior and Canons towards their change of title is given by the account-book of the convent, preserved in the Cathedral Library. The cellarer, or whatever official was responsible for the catering, gives us the details and prices of the special dainties which he provided on the occasion of "the stallacion of the dane"—the installation of the Prior as Dean of Christ Church. One might suggest to Father Ronan that men do not celebrate with feasting a change of which they disapprove.—Yours, etc.,

JOHN L. ROBINSON.

OLD DUBLIN SOCIETY LECTURE

The history of Dublin Castle and its connection with the Catholics of Ireland was dealt with in a lecture delivered by Dr. R. Dudley Edwards to the Old Dublin Society last night.

Having given some interesting points about the history of the castle, Dr. Edwards said that the control of the country had fallen into the hands of the Dublin cliques, but the religious divergence was perpetuated and the people were alienated from the Government. The surrender of the government from London to Dublin Castle was felt in its effects in the present generation by the wiping out of the landlord system and the deposing of the Dublin administrators, who, for 300 years, misgoverned the country. Mr. T. Kelly, T.D., presided.

FILM NOTES

The Rest of the Programme

Why so Poor? : Crooners and "Comedians" : Another Garbo Film : Gracie Fields

FROM OUR CINEMA CORRESPONDENT.

WHEN we have an evening free and decide to spend it at the cinema, our choice of programmes is governed by the "feature" films. They are the films which are advertised on the hoardings and in the newspapers, and they are also the films which are criticised. We make our selection from among them, and decide upon the one which seems the best.

Actually, of course, the "feature" film occupies only about half of the programme—sometimes less than half. At least an hour of our visit to the cinema will be taken up in watching the "supporting" films, and these we must take completely on chance. We know that there will be a news-reel, but beyond that we know nothing, except when such celebrities as Mickey Mouse or Laurel and Hardy are advertised. Yet a bad supporting programme can almost spoil the whole evening, and it is surprising that the cinema producers do not seem to have realised that it is quite as important to have good short films as good long ones.

The general standard of these "shorts" never has been very high, and I am not at all sure that it is improving. In fact, the preliminaries to the big picture are usually either dull, or vulgar, or both. We sit there, hoping vaguely that something amusing or interesting will be shown, but it seldom comes, and our relief when the whole business is over is mixed with a feeling of irritation.

* * *

Why——?

WHY are so many of these films bad? The knockabout comedies and some of the cartoons are amusing enough, and a few of the travel films are interesting—but not many. Why do producers seem to think that life in a foreign country cannot be described properly unless the speaker makes feeble jokes all the time? Why must films about sport—which could be really interesting—be accompanied by a torrent of words to the effect that what is being shown is the most stupendous example of physical energy that could be witnessed? Must we have all those films in which the central figure is a crooner, and whose plots are arranged in order to give him the chance of bursting into song every two minutes? Above all, must we have the "variety" films? If we wanted to see variety, we would not have come to the cinema. To this list I can add the comedy—often, I am sorry to say, made in England—which trails dismally along for what seems like hours, telling a story which everybody knows by heart already, and featuring actors whom one has never seen before, and does not wish to see again.

*

A NUMBER of these bad films are "quickies," made by American or English companies to fulfil the regulation that a certain proportion of the films shown in England must be home-made. Others, again, are films which have to be shown because they go with the main film on the principle of "block booking." Sometimes it is worth while to avoid them by timing one's entrance to the cinema with the start of the main film, but that is rather an uncertain policy; for now and again the best thing on the programme will be one of the short films. The whole situation is most unsatisfactory, and I wish something could be done about it.

The Painted Veil

THERE is nothing very new in the story of the erring wife who finally comes to her senses while helping her doctor husband to fight epidemics in foreign parts; and "The Painted Veil," which is being shown at the Savoy this week, is rather below the standard that one would expect of a film in which Greta Garbo appears. But it is always worth while to visit a Greta Garbo film. She is not beautiful in any strict sense, she wears the most grotesque clothes at times, and there are things in her acting which one can only describe as mannerisms, but she is one of the great figures of the screen. There is an intensity about everything she says and does, and it gives her power to make the well-worn situations of "The Painted Veil" seem to be moving and significant. Herbert Marshall, who takes the part of the husband, is also very good, and probably his performance would have seemed even better if one did not have to compare it with that of Miss Garbo.

GRETA GARBO.

Laurel and Hardy appear in a new comedy called "The Live Ghost." Incidentally, there also appears a man whose name I do not know, in the part of a "drunk." I have seen him in this kind of part about a dozen times, and he is always very amusing.

GRACIE FIELDS takes part in her usual type of film—robust humour, plenty of songs, and a strong flavour of Lancashire—at the Metropole. She is not one of my favourite film stars, but she certainly has a kind of homely directness that is rather engaging, and all her films are immensely popular. "Look Up and Laugh," which is cast in the same mould as those which have gone before it, is almost bound to have the same success. In it Miss Fields is a revue actress who returns to her home town in order to help her family in their struggle to keep their shop going. As the shop happens to be a music shop, it gives her plenty of opportunity for song, and at least one of her efforts is likely to be whistled in the streets for some time to come.

Other Films

SIR JAMES BARRIE seems to be coming back to popularity—at least, so far as the cinema is concerned. It is only a few weeks since we saw Katharine Hepburn in "The Little Minister," and now a version of "What Every Woman Knows" is being shown at the Grafton. It is competently acted, especially by Helen Hayes, who has yet to give a really bad performance. She takes the part of Maggie Wylie, and the other principal parts are filled by Brian Aherne, Madge Evans and Dudley Digges.

"The Clock Strikes Eight," at the Capitol, is a rather ordinary "mystery" film, whose action takes place at an American university. Perhaps its best feature is the acting of a young and comparatively unknown cast, which includes Wendy Barrie, Arline Judge, William Frawley, William Benedict and Benny Baker. More may be heard of some of these names.

On the Capitol's programme is also a cartoon of Popeye, the Sailorman. While my allegiance to Mickey Mouse is unshaken, I confess to a distinct liking for Popeye.

If anyone is likely to outdo Janet Gaynor in her particular brand of charm it will be Jean Parker, who appears in the Corinthian's film, "Princess O'Hara." The death of "King" O'Hara—a genial Irishman of the "sure and begorra" type—leaves Miss Parker with a large family on her hands, and the situation is complicated by the fact that she is accused of stealing a famous racehorse. However, all comes right in the end.

The new cinema in Stephen's Green, which is being built on the site of the Turkish Baths, is now nearing completion. It will be opened to the public in the course of the next few months- possibly before Christmas.

IRISH IN BUSINESS

PLEA FOR WIDER USE

LECTURE AT DUBLIN ROTARY CLUB

THE progress made in the Irish language movement so far was not commensurate with the vast amount of energy, time and money that had been expended, said Mr. Cathal O'Toole, speaking at a weekly luncheon of the Dublin Rotary Club in the Metropole yesterday. "Too much has been attempted and too little has been achieved," he said.

Mr. O'Toole was advocating that it was desirable and practicable that there should be a considerable extension of the use of the Irish language for business purposes.

Having spoken of the work done during the past thirteen years to make effective the State policy of restoring the national language, he said that, while there had been a terrific drive made to turn English-speaking school-children into Irish speakers, very little Irish was even yet generally spoken anywhere outside the Gaeltacht areas. Irish was seldom heard in the Dail or at the meetings of local public bodies, particularly when they desired any Press publicity, and, outside the fior-Gaeltacht, it was scarcely ever used in the courts.

Government officials were encouraged to make use of Irish; but, apart from a few departments where there was a concentration of Irish speakers, the amount of Irish used for Government business had not gone much beyond the "A chara" and "Mise le meas" stage yet.

THE CIVIC GUARDS

The only one really bright spot in connection with Government services was the Civic Guards, who were, under their Commissioner, Colonel E. Broy, progressing steadily and surely towards becoming a Gaelic-speaking force.

The one great section of the population which had not yet shown any real interest in the language revival movement was the business community. He was convinced that if the business community took up the matter earnestly they could do more in twelve months for the restoration of the language than could be done by all the State officials. All that was needed on their part was the maximum of goodwill and enthusiasm and the minimum of energy and effort. Goodwill should be easily forthcoming from all who regarded themselves as loyal citizens of the State; enthusiasm could readily be engendered by everyone taking a special delight in being himself first convinced that he was rendering an essential national service, and then by getting his friends ad business associates to step into line with him.

TOO MUCH COMPULSION

Proposing a vote of thanks, Rotarian K. Kenny said that persuasion rather than compulsion would help the language movement. There was still too much compulsion.

Seconding the vote of thanks, Rotarian Hughes said that there had been a great expenditure of money on the language since the establishment of the Free State. That was a point which should weigh with business men. It was a disappointment to find that all this expenditure had not really been justified up to the present time.

The President (Mr. Oswald Jamison), referring to the suggestion that public speeches should be made in Irish, said: "I often think that it might be a very good thing if some public speeches were made—and reported—in a language which few people understood."

On behalf of the Rotary Club of Carlsbad, Germany, Rotarian Oswald Muller Dubrow presented to the Dublin Club a beautiful gold and enamel rotary wheel. Thanks were returned by the President, and a vote of thanks passed with acclamation.

Rotarian Dallas was presented with a silver cup and replica won during the recent golf competition. Rotarian Dixon was also presented with a golf prize by the President.

Rotarian R. A. Jones, President of the Colwyn Bay Club, was welcomed by the President, and returned thanks.

A quantity of upholstering materials was destroyed in a fire which broke out in the premises of Messrs. N. Cranmer, 27 Denmark street, Dublin, yesterday. Severel lines of hose were laid, and the fire was out in about an hour.

SCHOOL ATHLETICS

NEED FOR ORGANISATION

The lack of organisation in athletics among Irish Schools was dealt with in a recent broadcast by Mr. A. M. Raffan, of King's Hospital, Hon. Sec. of the Dublin Schools' Athletic Union. Mr. Raffan has been responsible for a great deal of the organisation work, which has brought into being the union of which he is secretary, and he is greatly interested in the project of having the schools of the whole of Ireland put their weight behind a scheme for athletic improvement.

Many schools, Mr. Raffan admits, have sports days, but these, he says, are usually the only occasions in the different schools when any attention is paid to athletics, and, as often as not, there is almost no training for the events.

Proper training and equipment are the most important things for athletes to watch, and often the mistake of letting a boy take part in too many events in one day's sport is made.

Four events in one day should be regarded as the limit for one boy, as more than that will result in his being strained, and it often happens that a boy who is allowed to compete too often in school sports will become "burnt out" before he has reached manhood.

Apart from the good done by athletics in a physical way, there is often found to be a considerable gain of self-respect to a boy who, though something of a "dud" on the football or cricket field, can put up a good performance at the high jump or sprint. Size and muscle, also, are not of such great importance in athletics, so that even the youngest of pupils in the schools can be catered for.

An objection which has been raised to the proposition of organising school athletics is the position of the country schools, which, it is said, are handicapped by the necessity of travelling long distances. This however, can be overcome to a great extent by arranging for special vouchers which the omnibus companies are always willing to grant to schools.

The County Dublin Schools' Athletic Union is an example of what organisation can accomplish in this matter. There are twenty-two schools in the union, which is run by a committee on which each school has a representative. The affiliation fee is ten shillings, and championships are held each May for which no entrance fee is charged. Contests are held between the schools each year, and the results of this competition in improving the standard of performance is shown in the altered records of the last few years.

"THE Marriage of St. Francis," which now is in its second week at the Gate Theatre, Dublin, is a noteworthy inclusion in the Dublin, Athlone and Cork programme for to-night, when Act I. of the play will be relayed to listeners. The play, by Henri Gheon, has beeen translated from the French by Father Martindale, S.J., and music specially composed by Adolphe Gebler. Micheal MacLiammoir will be heard in the part of St. Francis.

Two more distinguished Irish artists are coming to the Dublin microphone in the cause of Irish art. To-night Mr. George Atkinson, R.H.A., and Mr. Sean O'Sullivan, R.H.A., will debate: "The Position of the Arts and Artists in Irish Life." Mr. Atkinson is head of the Metropolitan School of Art, treasurer of the Royal Hibernian Academy, and a member of the Board of Governors of the National Gallery. Mr. O'Sullivan, whose portraits are among the most notable of to-day, includes the study of Dr. W. B. Yeats, purchased for the nation by the Haverty Trust. (Dublin, 7.55.)

Miss Coralie Carmichael, who will be heard by listeners to the Dublin Broadcasting Station's relay from the Gate Theatre to-night of the first act of Henri Gheon's "The Marriage of St. Francis."

This morning the new ship H.M.S. Penelope will be launched at Belfast by the Duchess of Abercorn. A descriptive commentary on the proceedings by Lieutenant-Commander R. Woodrooffe, R.N., and the Service, conducted by the Rev. R. C. H. Elliott, will be relayed from Harland and Wolff's shipyard, Belfast.

The String Orchestral Concert in the Western programme will be relayed from the National Museum of Wales. The strings of the Western Studio Orchestra have been augmented, and Reginald Redman will conduct. Eda Kersey, who is the solo violinist, will play Handel's Sonata A5 (Violin Concerto) in B flat, adapted for strings by Hans David. The programme concludes with Tchaikovsky's Serenade for Strings, Op. 48.

The opera broadcast to-night in the North Regional programme consists of Acts I. and II. of Puccini's "La Bohême," relayed from the Empire Theatre, Liverpool. It is being performed in Italian by the Royal Opera Covent Garden Company, conducted by Sir Thomas Beecham. In the cast are Lisa Perli as Mimi, Odette de Foras as Musetta, and Rodolpho will be sung by Dino Borgioli.

Henry Hall, the popular conductor of the B.B.C. Dance Orchestra, will be heard to-night in a less familiar programme. In "The Band Box," they join forces with the B.B.C. Theatre Orchestra, under Stanford Robinson. They do not say what is in the band box; they only invite us to listen and find out. "Songs from the Shows," representing Sidney Jones and Cole Porter as contrasting composers, will be repeated to-night in the Regional programme at 9. Variety will be responsible for fifty minutes of the Scottish programme. It offers an attractive programme of its kind, with some good names among the entertainers.

Among the foreign transmissions, two that should attract many listeners will come from Vienna and Hilversum. Vienna will relay "Tannhauser" in full, when the performance will take place under the direction of the distinguished conductor, Furtwängler. A slight drawback to this broadcast is the early hour at which it starts.

From Hilversum (1,875 metres) listeners will hear the Maestricht Municipal Orchestra in a Dvorák programme. The works for performance are the "New World" Symphony and the 'Cello Concerto in B minor, when Piatigorski will play the solo part.

By special arrangement, Radio Athlone will to-night be able to broadcast a half-hour's recital by Stanislav Frydberg, the celebrated Polish violinist. Professor Frydberg is not only an interpreter of great music, but is himself a composer of rare ability. He will play for Irish listeners a programme of Slav music from the Polish and Russian composers, and will also include in his recital unpublished compositions of his own.

Professor Frydberg's devotion to the violin has transcended all other interests in his life. Although he made his first appearance on the concert platform at the age of ten at Lodz, and studied with success for eight years at the Moscow Conservatoire, he is a lawyer by profession. Through his advocacy he won fame and wealth. Married to the daughter of a Russian General A.D.C. to the Tsar, he was one of the victims of revolution. From 1917 to 1921 he remained in Russia, his property was confiscated and he was sentenced to death. During a long imprisonment he was allowed to keep his violin, and played to his fellow-prisoners, many of whom were shot. His music secured his reprieve and release, and he was set free, but banished. Returning to Poland he again successfully practised law, devoting all his spare time to the study of the violin. In 1932 he took up the violin as a career, and, going to Germany, gave over sixty concerts for the unemployed. Professor Frydberg has a high opinion of the musical qualities of the Irish people.

EXPLOSION ON OIL TANKER

THREE OF THE CREW MISSING

BELIEVED TO HAVE BEEN BLOWN AWAY

EXTENSIVELY damaged by an explosion, followed by a fire, when in the English Channel on Sunday, and with three of her crew missing, the Norwegian oil tanker Barfonn crept into Portland yesterday.

She was under her own power, but was accompanied by the destroyer H.M.S. Wrestler.

THE EXPLOSION

The Barfonn had thousands of gallons of oil on board, and the explosion occurred thirty miles south south-west of Portland Bill, the vessel being bound from Havre to Falmouth.

The majority of the crew were in their quarters at the time, but three men were in the fore tank, the scene of the explosion, and no trace of them has been found. As a result of the explosion the fore part of the vessel was reduced to a wreckage, and the top mast was carried away, putting the wireless out of action.

ASSISTANCE SUMMONED

Coastguards, noticing the flames, summoned assistance from the Navy, and H.M.S. Wrestler, on the instructions of the Commander-in-Chief, Home Fleet (Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse), went to the ship's aid.

One of the first of other arrivals was another Norwegian tanker, the Temeraire, the lifeboats of which took off sixteen of the Barfonn's crew, proceeding with them later to Avonmouth.

Wrestler took out fire-fighting equipment and reached the Barfonn at about 3 a.m. By getting a wire aboard the destroyer was able to keep the stern of the blazing vessel up to the wind, as a result of which the flames went out over the bows.

After the fire had been subdued the Barfonn was able to proceed under her own power with fourteen of the crew.

CAPTAIN'S STATEMENT

Captain S. Waage, of the tanker, on arrival at Portland, told a reporter: "It was the destroyer which saved the whole of us."

The three missing men are Second Officer Hetland, Able Seaman Hovland, and the carpenter named Gelsing. It is presumed that they were blown overboard by the force of the explosion.

Only one other member of the crew was injured, and he was taken aboard the Temeraire.

The third mate, Mr. Paulsen, stated: "I was on the bridge when there was a terrific explosion, and everything suddenly blew up with a roar."

Joseph Buggiord, the cook, said: "I was in bed, but the force of the explosion blew me right out of my bunk."

On the arrival of the Barfonn at Portland Admiral Sir Roger Backhouse sent one of his flag officers from H.M.S. Nelson to the tanker to inquire about the crew.

After the damage has been surveyed the Barfonn will go on to Falmouth for repairs. Among other vessels which stood by when the ship was in flames was H.M.S. St. Just.

NEWSPAPERS BURNED

HOLD-UP OF VAN RECALLED

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

The hold-up of a Dublin newspaper van near Dunmurry on June 17 last was recalled at Belfast Quarter Sessions, when, by consent, a claim by the Irish Press, Ltd., was settled for £10.

Mr. P. A. Marrinan, for the applicant, said that the claimants' motor van, containing newspapers for delivery in Northern Ireland, was held up near Dunmurry by four men armed with revolvers, who imprisoned the driver and his assistants in the van, and subsequently, after driving some distance, took the papers out. Having poured the contents of the car's petrol tank over them, they set fire to and burned them.

The Judge assented to the settlement.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

MR. JAMES G. ROWELL'S LECTURE

An authorised lecture on Christian Science was delivered last night at the Mansion House, Dublin, by James G. Rowell, C.S.B., of Kansas City, Missouri, member of the Board of Lectureship of the Mother Church, the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

In the course of his lecture, Mr. Rowell said that many people have been healed of disease and sin through reading and studying Science and Health. As the truth about God, man, and the Divine Comforter dawns in receptive human consciousness, the fetters of fear, ignorance, and sin are severed. When these bonds are seen to be false and devoid of power, men turn, like the prodigal son, from the snares and delusions of material sense to the spiritual facts of divine consciousness, the Father's house, where health, peace, and abundance—all good—are awaiting the awakened repentant ones.

All disease and sin should vanish before the spiritual light which enters consciousness through the reading and study of the truth of being unfolded in the Christian Sceince textbook, and amplified through other channels provided by Mrs. Eddy. This complete freedom from disease and sin would result invariabaly, except that not infrequently there is on the reader's part a deep conscious or unconscious love of sin, fear of suffering, or unwillingness to exchange the material, the false, and fleeting for the spiritual, the true, the eternal. In its ministry of reconciliation, Christian Science uncovers and destroys the human hatred of truth and the devious, subtle workings of error in its hidden, mental ways of deluding, deceiving, and defrauding mankind.

OLYMPIA THEATRE

The Four Aces gave an interesting performance in the form of a vocal orchestra last night. Among the leading performers were also Carl Balliol and Jessica Merton. The last-mentioned who are Adagio dancers, demonstrated skill, nerve and judgment in their exhibition. The Four Roadsters contributed an act of their own, which included some songs. P. K. Mills was another singer. Bud, Barry and Co., in a burlesque entitled "'G' Men," afforded many laughs, and Girda Vallee, tap and acrobatic dancer; Bert Hopping, the comedian cartoonist; Billy and Idylle Shaw, Austral and Arthur, and the Four Tressillians completed the entertainment.

POSSIBLE AIR RAID PRECAUTIONS

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE BRIGADE IN BELFAST

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

The Lord Mayor of Belfast presided at the meeting of the General Purposes Committee of the Belfast Corporation to-day. A communication was received from the Honorary Secretary, St. John Ambulance Brigade, 16 Donegall square, South, intimating that, in connection with the air raid precautions, the Home Office in London had invited the assistance of ambulance and nursing authorities throughout the country, and that the St. John Ambulance Brigade in Northern Ireland were prepared to take up the work. Several of their members already had been trained, and arrangements had been made that all units would receive the necessary instruction.

The Brigade wished it to be understood that, should the occasion arise, they would undertake all the duties required of them, not only in rendering first aid to sufferers, but also for their transport and the decontamination of affected areas.

The Committee expressed appreciation of the decision of the St. John Ambulance Brigade to undertake this work, and hoped that their services in this direction would not be called upon.

LAUNCH OF CRUISER AT BELFAST

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

BELFAST, Monday.

To-morrow the light cruiser Penelope will be launched from the east yard of Messrs. Harland and Wolff, Ltd.—the first naval launch at Belfast since the Great War. The Duchess of Abercorn will name the new cruiser, and the naming ceremony and the religious service customary on such occasions will be conducted by the Rev. Canon Elliott, M.A., Rector of St. Patrick's Parish, in which the shipyard is situated, while the singing will be led by the Queen's Island Choir, under the leadership of Mr. J. Vine.

The Duchess of Abercorn will be accompanied by the Governor of Northern Ireland (the Duke of Abercorn). Other guests at the launching ceremony will include the Prime Minister of Northern Ireland (Viscount Craigavon) and members of the Cabinet, the Lord Mayor of Belfast, the Chairman of the Harbour Board, and a large number of representative citizens, who will be entertained to luncheon. The Admiralty will be represented by Admiral Sir Drury St. Aubyn Wake, K.C.I.E., C.B., Director of Naval Equipment.

The keel of the Penelope was laid by the Duke of Gloucester in May, 1934, and it is expected that she will be in commission within twelve months from the date of the launch. The machinery, which has been built by Messrs. Harland and Wolff, will be installed at Belfast, and the armament also will be completed on this side.

The Penelope is a light cruiser of the Arethusa class, sanctioned in the 1933 programme. Her sister ships, Galatia and Arethusa, already are in commission, and the Aurora is being built at Portsmouth.

TENDER FOR ANOTHER CRUISER

It is understood that Messrs. Harland and Wolff have tendered for another cruiser in connection with the orders that will be given out shortly. There is keen competition from the Clyde, the Tyne and other shipbuilding centres. If the British Government decides to make good the deficiencies in the Navy, as seems probable, Belfast will be expected to receive a quota of the work.

GAIETY THEATRE

Even the suggestion of six saxophones playing simultaneously would be quite enough for some people, but the "Saxoswains," lead by Hal Swain, in this week's programme were humorists as well as clever instrumentalists.

Hal Swain and his Radio Band had a finished crispness of style, and the twelve members inspire a rhythmic lilt into the melody—if there be any melody in modern dance music—which so often is blurred in a larger band. A saxophone solo by Hal himself was particularly good

With a popular band figuring in the programme, music-hall audiences seldom expect much from the supporting cast, but the return of Arthur Prince was indeed, welcome. With Arthur Prince ventriloquism is an art: his "voice-throwing" with "Jim" and his new life-sized doll, "Monty," were truly remarkable.

Peter White, "the" comedian, lived up to his reputation, but should have realised that the audience last night were more appreciative of his humour than of one or two of his objectionable "jokes"

The B.B.C. newcomers, Odette and Kay, gave a number of original songs with a topical flavour, and the Keith Sisters were a good pair of team jugglers. Kathleen Stanley, dancing soubrette, and Yeomans and Starr, two light-footed whirlwind comedy dancers, completed the programme.

THEATRE ROYAL

The applause which greeted the singing of Helen Binnie and the musical interlude of the theatre orchestra last night, indicate what many of the public want by way of entertainment. There is also a variety of charming scenery and dresses and plenty of graceful dancing. Helen Binnie's versatility as a vocalist is remarkable. She is particularly good with Sid Field in "The Cabbage and the Rose" duet. Sid is also seen to advantage in "Learning to Golf," and the Road of the Crooked Lamp Posts. Scotty Morrison, who has a collection of different coloured hats, is amusing. Henshall's 24 Young Ladies are a very well trained troupe, who appear in some well arranged ensembles. The cotton plantation, in which some old-time melodies are played by Max Fisher and his American Banjo Band, is a very colourful scene.

MENTIONED IN GENESIS

BIBILICAL CITY DISCOVERED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

JERUSALEM, Monday.

An ancient temple dating back to 3,000 B.C. has been found on the site of Hai, the Royal city of Canaanites, which is mentioned in the Book of Genesis, together with fragments of sacrificial offerings and broken earthenware characteristic of that age.

Complete fortifications which have been excavated point to the destruction of Hai having occurred about 2,000 B.C., says the Palcor Agency.

The excavations, which were carried out under the supervision of a Palestinian woman, also revealed a huge gate belonging to the earliest period of the ancient city. Further excavations, financed by the late Baron Rothschild, are being continued by the French National Museum at Dir Diwan, near Ramallah, seven miles to the north of Jerusalem.

Hai, the Royal city of Canaanites, is situated to the east of Bethel. The Israelites were smitten here after the fall of Jericho. The town, with its inhabitants, was completely destroyed by Joshua.

It is referred to in Chapter 12 of the Book of Genesis as follows:—"And he (Abraham) removed from thence unto a mountain on the east of Beth-el and pitched his tent, having Beth-el on the west and Hai on the east, and there he builded an altar unto the Lord."

UPROAR IN PARIS COURT

THE TRIAL OF INSPECTOR BONY

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Monday.

There was uproar in the Paris Correctional Court to-day, where ex-Police Inspector Bony, who came into prominence over the Stavisky case, is being tried for violation of professional secrecy and for having abstracted photographs from the police archives.

The photographs were of a pretty brunette, Mlle. Andree Cotillon, who had been sentenced as a girl of 15 years for a trifling offence, and who alleged that Inspector Bony had used these photographs of her for blackmailing purposes several years later, when she had become a rich young woman.

Following an insinuation to-day by the accused, Mlle. Cotillon told the Court in round terms just what she thought of him, whereupon the counsel on both sides joined in the slanging match and there was such an uproar that the sitting had to be suspended.

There was another scene later when one of the witnesses, Baron de Lussatz, described how he had been arrested by Inspector Bony in connection with the mysterious death of Judge Prince on the railway near Dijon, and he gave the following account of the conversation which then took place:

"I asked Bony," said de Lussatz, "do you really think me capable of committing a murder?"

"No," answered Bony, "but I have got to produce a murderer."

Turning to the prisoner de Lussatz then cried: "Now, Bony, you will lie if you say that that is untrue."

Bony, in reply, merely shrugged his shoulders, but the wild tumult again broke out, and the sitting was once more suspended.

STREAMLINE TRAIN DAMAGED

Two coaches which were being shunted ran into the rear of the "Silver Jubilee," buckling the face of the guard's van and splintering the woodwork.

It was feared that the train would be unable to make the London run, but later it was stated that she would run as usual.

The train was put into Walkergate sheds for examination and repainting.

The "Silver Jubilee" made history on her first run a fortnight ago, covering the distance from Newcastle to London infour hours.

UNEMPLOYMENT PROBLEM

MR. ANDREWS'S REVIEW

IMPROVEMENT IN LINEN TRADE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

PORTADOWN, Monday.

OPENING an unemployed welfare centre at Portadown to-day, Mr. J. M. Andrews, Northern Ireland Minister of Labour, said that the considerable number of unemployed in the district was due largely to the depressed condition of the linen trade. In his opinion, Portadown depended too much on that industry—there were too many eggs in the one basket—and if other industries could be established in the district along the lines adopted across the Channel it would help matters.

He was glad to learn of the new bacon-curing factory in the town, which employed about a hundred men, and which would probably increase that number before long. In addition to that, the linen trade was improving, and he was hopeful that a considerable number of looms and spindles now idle would be restarted at an early date.

The unemployment problem, about which they had heard so much for the past ten to fifteen years, was due to many causes, and particularly to the fact that during the Great War other countries learned to manufacture for themselves a great many commodities which they had previously bought from them.

AFTERMATH OF THE WAR

Therefore, as a result of the War, they continued to suffer, and it seemed that the lesson which should have been learned from that war had not had the effect it should have had, as war was still being talked about Unemployment, Mr. Andrews continued, was incapable of being solved under existing conditions.

He went on to criticise Mr. Lloyd George's new deal proposals, which, he said, were mainly an expansion of the relief schemes which the Northern Ireland Government had practised since getting into power fourteen years ago. "The back to the land" scheme was desirable, but the only satisfactory plan was to make agriculture more profitable to the farmers, and so enable them to employ more workers. The British Government had actually made Mr. J. H. Thomas Minister of Employment, but after a time he was glad to seek the shelter of the Colonial Office.

CREDIT SCHEME

Referring to the Douglas Credit Scheme, Mr. Andrews said that he agreed that the world's power to produce had exceeded the people's power to consume; but the proposals to overcome that by a £5 per month dividend to everyone would probably lead to trouble, as no Government could give credits without raising money to redeem those credits. The scheme, he also understood, wanted to levy and control industry and fix the price for all commodities produced. That would require a very large staff to fix and re-fix prices, because most home manufactures were produced from imported materials, the prices of which they had no power to regulate.

A levy on industry would increase production costs, and the £5 per month might not really increase the purchasing power of the individual at all, as inflation might follow. Consequently, the new position might be worse than the old.

"You might say," he went on, "how are our unemployed to get employment. I feel that the only way is that industry should be allowed to rest on a secure foundation, so that it would prosper and expand and not be unduly fettered, or attempts made to unfairly control it. People will not invest money in industry unless they feel their investments are secure. Therefore, I feel it is injurious that so many attacks—attacks that are fashionable to make in some quarters—are made as to how industry should be controlled"

THE CURE

Concluding, Mr. Andrews said that if the peace of the world could be preserved by the nations realising they were dependent on each other, more than some of them realised for the necessities of life, increased employment would result. It was some satisfaction to feel that things were improving, and unemployment was not only falling in Northern Ireland, but also across the Channel. When employment improved in Great Britain it also improved in Northern Ireland, so it was essential that they should continue to be linked up with that great commercial kingdom. (Applause.)

Later, Mr. Andrews, who was appointed an honorary member of the Welfare Centre, inspected the local unemployed garden allotments and started competitors in an unemployed cycle race.

Mr. T. A. Shillington (President Portadown Chamber of Commerce and Chairman of Committee) presided.

THE QUADRUPLETS

MAKING SATISFACTORY PROGRESS

George, Albert, Victor and Alfred, the four sons born on Saturday last to Mrs. Victoria Harmsworth, of Matthias road, Stoke Newington, are all well at the Royal Free Hospital, and Mrs. Harmsworth's condition is also satisfactory.

There has been a change in the feeding of the quadruplets. Since three o'clock yesterday afternoon they have been given peptonised breast milk, three drams every three hours. They still have one minim of brandy every six hours.

It was stated last night that their condition was very satisfactory and that they are progressing well.

While the four babies lie sleeping in ceaseless electric light, doctors and nurses keep watch over them. The temperature of the room never varies, and everyone who approaches the cots must be masked and gowned. No one—not even the mother—has been allowed to touch them yet.

A doctor attached to the hospital yesterday said: "They will be in the hospital for some time yet. One does not like to speak about the future, but one feels that for every day they live they have a better chance. If all goes well, it will be weeks before they leave.

"The care of quadruplets does not call for any special technique. They have the same treatment as have all small babies. The only difference is that there are four of them."

THE IMPRISONED VICAR

Followers of the Rev. Dr. Samuel Shannon, Vicar of St. Luke's Church, Leicester, who is in prison for contempt of Court, in refusing to appear for his public examination in the Bankruptcy Court, have informed the Rev. J. The churchwardens conduct Services every Sunday outside the church. Five persons were present at each of the Services held in the church on Sunday, conducted by the Rev. T. R. Luscombe.

EARS BACK TO FRONT

MISTAKE ON AUSTRIAN STAMP

"TIMES" TELEGRAM.

VIENNA, Monday.

A stampede of stamp collectors was produced in Vienna in June by an observant philatelist discovering that the smiling Lower Austrian peasant portrayed in the blue six groschen stamp wore his ears back to front. Some 200,000 of the stamps were sold, no doubt to the gratification of the postal authorities.

The stamp then disappeared from circulation, but has now reappeared, and examination shows that the peasant has, in the meantime, visited one of those surgeries at which faces are lifted and other facial defects corrected, for his ears have been turned round and are now normal.

She was detained in hospital for some weeks, and died last Saturday fortnight after leaving hospital.

TOM MOONEY'S APPEAL

SUPREME COURT TURNS DOWN REQUEST

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

The United States Supreme Court to-day again declined to give a ruling upon the case of the American labour leader, Tom Mooney, who has been in prison for 18 years for alleged participation in a fatal bomb outrage in San Francisco in 1916.

Mooney's lawyer, Mr. Frank P. Walch, had appealed to the Supreme Court to take up Mooney's application for release from prison, but the Court declined to do so on the grounds that all facilities of the lower Courts have not yet been exhausted. The case is still being heard in California.

A rumour was current in Berlin yesterday that the British Ambassador, Sir Eric Phipps, had called on the Foreign Office to inquire as to the German attitude on sanctions against Italy. The rumour was denied to Reuter both by the German Foreign Office and the British Embassy.

NEWS SUMMARY

IRELAND

The Supreme Court yesterday refused an application on behalf of the Attorney-General as defendant, with a number of fishermen, in the action of Major R. J. Moore and other members of the Erne Fishery Company for an order for the entering of an account of fish caught by the plaintiffs in the tidal waters of the River Erne.—(Page 2.)

Speakers at the annual meeting of the Feis Ceoil Association in Dublin yesterday mentioned the good work done during the past year, and explained that the deficit of £59 was due to the lack of transport during last year's tram and 'bus strike Surprise was expressed at the fact that the Association's membership numbered less than two hundred, and it was suggested that more support should be received from places outside Dublin.—(Page 3.)

Opening a new unemployment welfare centre at Portadown yesterday, the Northern Minister of Labour (Mr. J. M. Andrews) said that he was glad to say that the linen trade was improving, and he was hopeful that many more looms and spindles which had been idle for some time would be restarted at an early date.—(Page 5.)

GREAT BRITAIN

Speaking at Glasgow last night, Mr. Neville Chamberlain said that Britain would not be turned from her purposes by any reproaches which Italy might make.—(Page 8.)

The Monmouthshire miners' underground strike was reported last night to be spreading. The number of men remaining in the three affected pits as a protest against the employment of non-unionists was estimated at upwards of four hundred.—(Page 7.)

ABROAD

The Co-ordinating Committee of the League of Nations, consisting of 52 of the 54 States members of the Assembly, yesterday decided to impose financial sanctions against Italy. Hungary and Austria made reservations, and the Argentine delegate spoke of constitutional difficulties.—(Page 7.)

SPORTING

At Brighton yesterday Gipsy Lad won the Hollingbury Plate.—(Page 10.)

At Uttoxeter Buckthorn won the Hartington Steeplechase.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL

London Stock Markets were in an undecided condition, and no strong feature was apparent, except in one or two Industrials.—(Page 12.)

In Lombard street discount rates were easy. £340,000 in gold bars was sold at 141s. 9½d. per oz. Silver was unchanged. Sterling was steady.—(Page 12.)

Britain's Election

It seems to be fairly certain now that the general election in Great Britain will be held next month. The exact date has not yet been made known, but the experts are talking of November 20th, and the party organisers are basing their calculations on that date. Speaking at Glasgow last evening the Chancellor of the Exchequer told his audience that the Government had been reproached because it would not wait until next spring to go to the polls. The main criticism of its decision to hold the election before Christmas was because the crisis caused by Italy's action in Abyssinia still was in full swing; but Mr. Chamberlain explained very properly that there was no reason to assume that conditions would be any better four or five months hence. The world, he said, was not at the end, but only at the beginning of a long period of "difficulty, doubt and anxiety," which probably would be marked by intermittent crises of a more or less serious nature. It was essential, therefore, that the British Government should be in a position to speak for a united people; and, above all, it was essential that popular support should be obtained for the Government's programme of re-armament. Mr. Chamberlain spoke of repairing the waste and deficiencies in the national defences that had occurred during recent years, and there is no doubt that there has been a regrettable amount of slackness. What he really meant, however, is that Britain's fighting forces must be placed upon a proper footing—in other words, that at least a "one Power standard" must be achieved. He pointed out, as we think very soundly, that, if Britain had been armed adequately, the present crisis over Abyssinia never might have arisen. Most of the commentators on the causes of the World War agree that if Sir Edward Grey had informed the Germans at the beginning of the July crisis that Britain would fight on France's side there would have been no war; and, although the circumstances are vastly different, we are convinced that if Britain had been in a position to lay down the law to Signor Mussolini three or four months ago, his plans for the invasion of Abyssinia would have been abandoned.

In one respect, therefore, Mr. Stanley Baldwin will appeal to the nation next month on a confession of failure. He must tell the people that Britain's policy of unilateral disarmament has been a fiasco; that while she has been beating her swords into ploughshares the other nations of Europe have been beating their pruning-hooks into spears. Britain has fallen in terms of armaments almost to the rank of a second class Power—with the result that she has been unable to speak with real authority at Geneva or elsewhere. The unhappy truth is that, if she wishes to maintain her position as a world Power, she must re-arm. The policy of the last fifteen years must be reversed, and the idealism that informed it must give way to a frank acceptance of facts. Britain's electors will be faced with a grave choice. They either must empower the Government to spend very large sums of money on armaments—for the nation has fallen sadly behind its rivals—or they must resign themselves to the prospect of national decline. The whole business is a terrible commentary on modern civilisation, but the facts cannot be escaped. Continental Europe is arming itself at break-neck speed in anticipation of another World War within the next few years. British interests will be involved in almost any conceivable clash in either hemisphere, and, if she is too weak to protect them, the days of her imperial strength will be numbered. The people of Great Britain have no love for war. They hate all forms of militarism; but they never have refused to answer their country's call in times of national need. The Government, therefore, will be assured of a very substantial measure of support in any steps that it may consider to be necessary for the strengthening of the national defences, and, although the expenditure that will be involved will call for heavy sacrifices, those sacrifices will be made. Storm clouds are gathering, not only in North-East Africa, but also in Europe. Germany's might is growing with sinister speed, and the smaller nations are trembling with anxiety. The weary Titan once again is being required to gird up his loins. The short respite of the last few years of peace has come to an end.

Mr. Baldwin's Government ought to have no qualms regarding the popular verdict on the work that it has done since the financial crisis of 1931. At that time there was a real danger of national collapse; for the pound seemed to be on the slippery slope, and if the National Government had not taken control of the situation very serious consequences might have followed. In the event, the experiment was a notable success. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald never was a particularly brilliant Premier; but he always had Mr. Baldwin at his side, and the Conservative Party, with true patriotism, gave the fullest support to an Administration, the leader of which it had little reason either to love or to trust. Now that crisis is only an unhappy memory. Britain has recovered her financial and economic position in a manner which has compelled the admiration of mankind. London once more is the unchallenged centre of world finance; the export trade has been revived, and, although the spectre of unemployment still stalks the streets of Britain's cities and towns, there has been a very remarkable improvement in the general condition of the people. We believe that Mr. Baldwin will secure a comfortable majority at the polls. Naturally, after four years the Socialists will be bound to gain a certain amount of ground, and the Parliamentary Opposition probably will be increased in size. Indeed, the lack of a really strong Opposition has been one of the National Government's principal disadvantages. It is almost inconceivable, however, that the British people would return the Socialists to power at a time when a strong hand is so necessary at the national helm. We presume that Mr. Baldwin will go to the country as the head of a National Government—that is to say, he will not seek to come back with an exclusively Conservative Cabinet, although, of course, the backbone of the new Government will be Conservative. The inclusion of a few Liberals and Labour men in the Ministry will strengthen it enormously both at home and abroad. May we express the hope that one of the new Government's first steps will be to tackle the perennial "Irish problem"? A lasting settlement with the Free State would be a source of real strength to Great Britain, and we believe firmly that such a settlement can be achieved without much difficulty if men of good-will on both sides of the Channel resolve that it shall be achieved.

A Novel Strike

The coal-mining strike which has put four hundred men out of work in Monmouthshire introduces a new form of coercion into industrial disputes in Britain. On Sunday some seventy colliers descended into the bowels of the earth at Ynysddu, and announced their intention to remain there indefinitely as a protest against the employment of certain non-union workers at an adjacent pit. Their action has been inspired, no doubt, by a similar move during a recent continental strike. The British workers, however, have been sensible enough not to copy the foreign example in every detail, and the horrors of a hunger-strike will not be added to their self-imposed sufferings. Food is lowered to them at regular intervals. At a late hour last night it was reported that more than three hundred men at two other pits has decided to "stay in" also, and there is grave fear that the strike may involve the whole of the South Wales coalfields. In a dispute of this kind it is difficult to draw the line between what is and what is not a legitimate means to attract public sympathy to the cause of the striker. The "staying in" may be considered a logical inversion of the "lock-out," but the obvious weakness of such a method is that it must tend to create in the neighbourhood such an atmosphere of strain and hysteria that the realities of the situation may be lost to sight. It is, obviously, a potent weapon, but the pressure which it brings to bear upon the management is scarcely fair. To surrender at once upon the point at issue is to invite the employment of the same device again at an early date; but to resist this novel form of dictation is to incur hostility and to prolong suffering which is nothing the less real because the men have brought it upon themselves. Only a very serious grievance could justify such a step by the men, and it is by no means clear that the matter in dispute is of vital importance. No workers have been discharged, and no diminution of wages is in prospect. The original strikers ceased work because they objected to the employment in a pit owned by their company of eighty men who do not belong to their union. Their demand that these men should be discharged unless they joined it immediately could not be accepted by the company. The point at issue is important, and, despite the unusual device adopted by the workers, it seems essential for the future of British industry to resist the principle that a stoppage, which must mean loss to the whole community, is the proper means to decide a disagreement affecting only the relations between unions.

A Nation's Health

The annual report for 1934 of the Chief Medical Officer to the Ministry of Health in London provides welcome evidence of the wonders wrought in England by the local public health authorities. Although food prices are rising, even in the most distressed areas of the country there is a remarkable improvement in the physical well-being of the people, and particularly in the rate of infant mortality. The rate figure refers to the deaths of children under one year of age, and last year, with fifty-nine, it was the lowest ever recorded. In 1916 the rate was 70, and this has been decreasing gradually until it reached 64 in 1933, and the new low record for last year. Such a result would be gratifying in a time of general prosperity; but it is truly magnificent when unemployment is rife, financial depression still is widespread, and changes in the age-constitution of the population imposes heavy burdens on the shoulders of young fathers in the form of the care of aged relatives. This decrease in infant mortality has come at an opportune moment; for the birth rate last year showed an increase for the first time since 1880, and although the Chief Medical Officer admits that he cannot estimate the significance of the rise, he is ready to believe that the improvement henceforward will be regular. In 1880 the birth rate was 35.4 per thousand, and this total fell steadily throughout the subsequent years until, in 1933, it became 14.4 per thousand. For last year, however, it showed an increase of .4 per thousand, and although the rise is very small it may be evidence that in 1933 the nadir was reached. Further statistics show that medical science gradually is winning the battle with the graver types of disease, though scarlet fever and diphtheria have been, unfortunately, prevalent during the past two years. There is a marked fall in the incidence of pneumonic diseases, cerebro-spinal fever, enteric fever, smallpox and infantile paralysis, while the death rate from tuberculosis in 1934 again was the lowest ever recorded. Admittedly, the 1934-1935 winter was unusually mild; nevertheless, it is certain that this dread disease at last is losing its hold on the population. Unfortunately, cancer remains a terrible danger, and with a total of 168 per thousand it was the second most prolific cause of death.

Tragic Comedy

Many miles removed from our shores there is something of the operetta about the present regrettable war. In the hill fastnesses of Ethiopia gambol the warriors of the Negus, flaunting their monkey hair epaulettes; through the lowlands beneath the Italians, in black shirts and plumed topees, build roads at break-neck speed to get at those whom they wish to civilise. Living on the point of a hunting knife, the Italian representative in Addis Ababa refuses to leave the land of the enemy; and before Signor Mussolini's astonished legions south of Adigrat appear thousands of the foe, offering to distribute eggs—at the current market value—in place of death and destruction. With war whoops and impassioned dances the Ethiopians acclaim the slaughter of 2,500 invaders on the blood-stained ground of Adowa; gently the Italians deplore the death of two or three careless soldiery and the unlucky indisposition of several more. Dublin reaches eagerly for its stop press editions, asking: "How many of the quare fellows is dead?" in reference to the dependents of Haile Selassie; and Rome states authoritatively that her crusaders never sprayed poison gas to irritate the constitutions of her friends to be. The general trend of opinion, however, seems to be upon the side of the invaded. Much publicity is given to the report that baboons at present are drilling in the Ethiopian woods, soon to be prepared to drag the hair from many an Italian head; and there is no holding the tale of the revolt of the lesser monkeys. Marmosets and others, enraged at the tyranny that compelled their ancestors and extant husbands, sweethearts and wives to bounce in degrading fashion upon barrel-organs, now seize a stone upon the first scent of an Italian, and cast it violently between the eyes of their hereditary masters. Sporting enthusiasts re-tell the story of how the Ethiopians dug lion traps at vantage points on the front, and in them caught four Italian tanks; and "Wal Wal, Abyssinia," has supplanted completely the once popular "See you Friday." This latest endeavour of Signor Mussolini's is a disgraceful thing; but can one weep when a poet sings:

"Haile Selassie
Thought Italians déclassé.
The Wops were much ruder
About the Lion of Judah."

LONDON LETTER

BRITISH REPRESENTATION TO ITALY

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
MONDAY NIGHT.

THE British representations to the Italian Government to-day that Addis Ababa and Diredowa are open towns with large foreign communities, intimate that it is felt here that only military points should be bombed, and that towns which contain foreign nationals should be respected. The representations are supported by other Powers, and have been made in view of the possibility of air raids by Italian 'planes in the course of the next few days. It is something that Signor Suvich, the Italian Foreign Under-Secretary, has replied that he will notify the military authorities, but that Italy will forego the advantage of air raids on the Abyssinian capital is thought unlikely. The Italians find that their aeroplanes do them great service in terrorising the native population of the country.

Uneasiness in France

M. Laval's statement during the week-end, which was intended to reassure public opinion concerning the common action by Great Britain and France, has caused doubts on the measure of public support behind the French Government in favour of sanctions. Despite assurances that the two countries are acting in unison, it is evident that there is a strong body of opinion in France which desires a limit to be placed upon their adoption. If a political upheaval in France, with all its international repercussions, is to be avoided at the present time, M. Laval may find it necessary to dilute his policy in order that conflicting opinions may be brought into a modified programme. The policy of Britain and France may have been kept on parallel lines so far, but there is a danger that differences may arise when the extension of sanctions is considered.

The New Parliamentary Register

As the Government is anxious to get the general election over as soon as possible, no time will be lost in fixing the date, and it is not unlikely that Mr. Baldwin will make a decision to-morrow. Dates near Armistice Day and the day of the Royal wedding must, of course, be avoided. It is required by the law that nominations shall be made on the eighth day, not including Sundays, after the issue of the proclamation dissolving Parliament, and that the polling shall take place on the ninth day after nomination. In political circles it is thought that the dissolution will be on October 30 or 31, and the election on November 19 or 20. More electors will be able to vote than in any previous election, as the new register, which comes into operation to-morrow, will include thirty-one million names—over a million more than in 1931. As before, the register will show a preponderance of women over men, but not to quite the same extent.

Mr. Macdonald and Seaham

In spite of assertions to the contrary, and, it is said, the persuasions of his friends, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald will again contest the seat of Seaham Harbour. He will be opposed by Mr. E. Shinwell, a former Minister of Mines in the Labour Government, who is a very bitter fighter—so bitter that members of the Labour Party fear that he will bring about a sympathetic reaction in favour of Mr. Ramsay Macdonald. It is not at all improbable that the ex-Premier in such circumstances would be given the women's vote, which would be of very material assistance. The Conservatives are anxious to keep Mr. Macdonald in the Government, and, should he be rejected at Seaham, a safe seat will be found for him as soon as possible.

A Fight Against Time

Mr. Lloyd George intends to take part in the election campaign, and is working every day at his political headquarters, where the Council of Action will meet on Thursday to formulate plans. It has a declaration of policy ready, but at present the number of candidates is small, and, to judge from present appearances, may be smaller. The Council is unable to decide whether or not to run candidates until it has some information on how the party candidates will answer the questionnaire which it intends to submit to them. This paper is not yet prepared, and by the time it has been presented to the 1,400 candidates, and the replies considered, there will be little time to find men to contest possible seats. It is the intention of the Council of Action to concentrate activities principally in the direction of influencing the unsettled vote in places where it may have an important bearing on the result—particularly in regard to the 250 divisions where there will be no candidate of any liberal shade of opinion.

Japan and Geneva

Germany's membership of the League of Nations concluded to-day, but her withdrawal is not likely to be marked in the same way as the departure of Japan. A few minutes before ten o'clock in the morning, when her notice took effect, the resident Japanese Consul-General, Mr. Yokiyama, handed to the Secretary-General the requisite number of Swiss bank notes, and thus fulfilled and closed Japan's obligation of League membership. In the evening the Consul-General engaged one of the big hotels in the city, and gave the most spectacular party ever held in Geneva. It was attended by all the delegates opposed to Japan, in addition to the others. In Geneva nobody ever refuses an invitation to a party.

Movements of British Troops

The international situation has brought about great differences and changes in the work of the War Office, and the normal trooping season arrangements are quite upset. The "Movements" Branch of the War Office has experienced a very difficult time, as the programme for the autumn—usually a matter of routine—had to be drastically altered to meet the demands of Gibraltar, Egypt and Malta for additional troops. Troopships chartered to proceed directly to Bombay have had to alter their programmes to take in Aden, Port Sudan and other centres, and it is notable that for part of the voyage they have been given an escort of destroyers.

The Restoration in Greece

King George of Greece does not intend to return to the throne until he has been recalled by a majority of votes in the plebiscite to be held early next month. Yesterday, for the first time since he left Athens eleven years ago, his name was included in the liturgy throughout Greece at all the Church Services. Another point of importance is that the recall of the King of Greece is hailed with satisfaction by the Balkan States—Turkey, Roumania and Jugo-Slavia—all of which have offered congratulations. The King's brother, Prince Paul of Greece, arrived in London to-day to visit the King and discuss the possibilities of the situation.

Military preparation for youths of from 18 to 20 years is proposed in a private member's bill tabled in the French Chamber of Deputies yesterday by M. Theodore Valensi, who also proposes obligatory physical education in schools, with State-paid medical inspection, obligatory instruction in swimming in baths or rivers, and athletics for all students over 16.

BAN ON FINANCIAL AID TO ITALY

LEAGUE'S RECOMMENDATIONS TO THE NATIONS

COMMITTEES TO CONSIDER BOYCOTT AND SALES EMBARGO

MR. DE VALERA INTERVENES ON BEHALF OF RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS

THE delegates of fifty nations agreed at Geneva last night to ban all financial aid to Italy. Austria and Hungary alone made reservations, and Argentina indicated that she would ask for special consideration in view of her large Italian population.

Red Cross, humanitarian and religious institutions will be exempt from the credit ban.

The next step is the consideration of a plan for an embargo on raw materials for Italy and a complete boycott of Italian exports to member States.

A Sub-Committee, set up on the proposal of the French delegate, will study these problems, and also examine in what circumstances mutual aid can be given to States particularly affected by the economic measures.

Air raids on towns and villages in the Ogaden area were the only movement on the war front yesterday, and, according to a Rome message, the long-heralded Italian advance in that area has been held up by heavy rain.

The Abyssinians are becoming accustomed to the enemy bombers, and the raids are not producing the consternation they did at first. One incident which at least proves that the anti-aircraft skill of the natives is improving occurred at Harar yesterday, when two vultures were brought down in mistake for enemy 'planes.

The Italians claim that their policy of "gold and propaganda" is gaining them many adherents, and numbers of native chieftains are said to be transferring their allegiance.

Count Vinci, who is reported in ill-health, is expected to depart from Addis Ababa to-morrow. He will meet the Italian Consul from Magalo, without whom he refused to leave, at Adama, on the Djibuti Railway, and the whole party will proceed direct to the coast.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, in a speech at Glasgow last night, said that the feelings of the Italians had been further embittered and their hostility deliberately directed against England by those in authority.

DIFFICULTIES OF ARGENTINA

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL

GENEVA, Monday.

The delegates of fifty nations this evening agreed to recommend their Governments to ban all financial aid to Italy.

As expected, the Austrian and Hungarian delegates made reservations. The latter declared that his country was a debtor, and not in a position to grant credits, and, therefore, not interested in the question of financial sanctions. He said, however, that he would refer the matter to his Government.

The Chairman of the full Co-ordinating Committee, which thus accepted the resolution of the Committee of Eighteen passed earlier in the day, announced that it was understood that Red Cross and humanitarian institutions in Italy would be exempt from the credit ban.

Mr. de Valera (Irish Free State) said he hoped that the same exception would apply to religious institutions, and it was agreed that this should be so.

FLAME-THROWING TERROR

The Naples Correspondent of the Havas Agency states that the Italia is sailing from there to-day for Massawa, Eritrea, with 80 officers and 1,184 men of the Gran Sasso Division, who will be formed into flame-throwers' sections.

ARGENTINE'S DIFFICULTY

The Argentine delegate made a statement which was interpreted as implying that Argentina would press for special consideration in the application of certain sanctions. According to the provisions of the Argentinian Constitution, he said, there are certain steps that the executive power cannot put into effect. He requested that the Committee should take into account the special situation of the Argentine, which has over a million Italian settlers.

The Committee of Eighteen then met again to elect the new sub-committees proposed by the French. These were:—(1) A sub-committee to start immediately examining the application of measures for an embargo on raw materials and essential products which are necessary to Italy for the conduct of hostilities, and a complete boycott of Italian exports to countries members of the League.

(2) A sub-committee to examine at the same time in what circumstances the principles of mutual aid set forth in Paragraph 3 of Article 16 can be realised in the economic domain.

QUICK RESULTS WANTED

The French resolution adds that "the two sub-committees shall work with the greatest possible expedition." As and when each sub-committee shall arrive at any concrete decision on any point, this shall be submitted to the Committee of Eighteen.

Previously the Committee had set up a legal sub-committee consisting of Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Greece and Poland to consider legal problems.

At the end of their previous meeting this afternoon the Committee of Eighteen issued the following communiqué:—

"The Committee met, with Señor Vasconellos (Portugal) in the chair. It first entered upon a discussion with regard to the declaration made by the Argentine representative with regtard to the procedure required by the Constitution of his country for the application of the financial measures proposed. To meet this difficulty the United Kingdom representative proposed that the following passage should be inserted in the proposals relating to financial questions:—

"'The Governments are invited to put into operation at once such of the measures recommended as can be enforced without fresh legislation, and to take all practicable steps to secure that the measures recommended are completely put into operation by October 31st, 1935. Any Governments which find it impossible to secure the requisite legislation by that date are requested to inform the Committee through the Secretary-General of the date by which they expect to be able to do this.'

"This proposal was accepted.

"The United Kingdom representative also proposed the following resolution:—'With a view to facilitating for the Governments of the members of the League the execution of their obligations under Article 16, it is recognised that any proposals for action are made on the basis of the following provisions of that Article: The members of the League agree further that they will mutually support one another in the financial and economic measures which are taken under this Article in order to minimise the loss and inconvenience resulting from the above measures, and that they will mutually support one another in resisting any special measure aimed at one of them by the Covenant-breaking State.'

"This proposal was referred to the full Co-ordinating Committee for consideration."

SANCTIONS RESOLUTION

Following is the financial sanctions resolution passed by the Committee:—

"Governments of States members of the League of Nations will immediately take all measures necessary to render the following operations impossible:

"(1) All loans, direct or indirect, to the Italian Government, and all subscriptions to loans issued in Italy or elsewhere, directly or indirectly, by the Italian Government.

"(2) All bankers' or other credits directly or indirectly destined for the Italian Government.

"(3) All loans destined to public bodies, persons or corporations established on Italian territory, as well as all subscriptions to such loans issued in Italy or elsewhere.

"(4) All bankers' or other credits destined to public bodies or persons or corporations established in Italian territory.

"(5) All issues of shares or other capital for public bodies, persons or corporations established in Italian territory."

SKILL OF M. MAXIMOS

Much of the credit for to-day's progress must be given to M. Maximos, the Greek President of the Financial Sub-Committee, and to M. Coulondre, the French technical expert.

M. Maximos steered the financial resolutions through the Committee with skill and speed. The terms of the resolution are as watertight as it is humanly possible to make them. They cover every possible form of credit, financial operations, direct or indirect, between the Italian Government; Italian institutes, financial or otherwise; Italian business firms and Italian individuals.

The resolution will not interfere with private banks or their deposits abroad.

It will not interfere with payments of instalments on loans already issued, but not fully transferred; but it would prevent the issue of the second section of any loan, even if the first section had been handed over.

ANGLO-ITALIAN CLASH FORESEEN

The "Berliner Tageblatt" Correspondent at Geneva told his paper yesterday: "A clash between Great Britain and Italy in the Mediterranean is considered here as the unavoidable effect of the present friction."

CRITICISED

The attitude of the Argentine delegate has given rise to some comment and adverse criticism. He claimed special considerations for his country, first on the ground of its large number of Italians, and secondly on constitutional considerations.

The Mexican delegate remarked bluntly that he had no fears in this matter. Mr. Howard Ferguson pointed out that Canada, like other signatories of the League, also stood to lose heavily. He was supported by Mr. te Water, the South African delegate.

It is to deal with such Constitutional questions that the Legal Committee has now been set up.

The full Committee will meet to-morrow afternoon, and if the same rate of progress is maintained, it should be able to reach a decision on the proposed boycott and embargo before the end of the week.

NON-MEMBER STATES

At the meeting this afternoon M. Litvinoff raised the question of approaching States non-members of the League. Both the British and French delegations were of opinion that the proper moment to approach non-member States would be when a definite decision had been reached for the application of sanctions.

It is understood that the representatives of Venezuela and Uruguay made reservations somewhat analagous to that of the Argentine representative, but their full implication was not very clear. Of course, in view of Venezuelan oil exports, her attitude is of considerable importance.

BRITISH BOYCOTT

BUENOS AIRES, Monday.

The "Argentine Committee for Italy" publishes advertisements in the Press calling on the one and a half million Italian residents of the Argentine to boycott all British goods.

It announces that a sub-committee is preparing a list of British firms and products which are to be boycotted.

ROME'S REPLY TO SANCTIONS

A NATIONAL TECHNIQUE

TRADITIONAL TRADE REPLACEMENT

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

ROME, Monday.

THE Italian reply to sanctions is published prominently this evening in the Tribuna. As to finance, the statement says, for thirteen years Italy has not asked for a penny of loans abroad, and will continue not to ask for loans.

"There is, therefore, no opportunity for refusing what we do not ask."

As for trade by barter and on credit, the paper says:—"For ten months Fascist Italy has been fully mobilised economically, independent of the Abyssinian conflict and the aberrations of the League. Since Italy is a country which pays her debts, the gold reserve had to be reduced in order to pay them by 1½ milliards. In view of this and the policy of quotas, which is similar to sanctions, Fascist Italy decided to act, to supervise and reduce imports, to regulate imports with exports, country by country, by well-defined agreements, and to promote a national technique of production, so as to guarantee to the nation independence in fundamental raw materials.

ALREADY IN OPERATION

"This mechanism is already in operation. Imports are regulated by a discipline superior to ordinary interests, the interests of the State. The agreements with individual countries are based on reciprocity. Whoever wishes to bring them to an end can do so. Not to buy from Italy means not to sell; not to sell means that we will not buy. This is clear.

"Italy pays, and always has paid, and she has a right to consider it an act of distrust to refuse customary commercial credits. It is forgotten that for a long time, too, many sanctionist States have been bad payers, and Italy has many frozen debts.

"The national technique is already in operation, and is producing positive results. The problem of petrol has been met with the production of alcohol from beetroot and by substituting charcoal gas. We can obtain wool from by-products of milk. As for corn, we are already sure of our supplies. As regards coal, we will reduce our consumption by using electrical energy, and we can completely replace British coal by other coal, of which supplies will not be lacking.

"One thing is clear. The traditional currents of trade, which can be held up by the exercise of stupid and useless sanctions, and for which others can be substituted, must be considered to be finished with and unrenewable."

A special supplement of the Azione Colonaile publishes a remarkable outburst against Great Britain.

ENGLAND NEVER ALONE

"When Britain says she does not intend to act alone, but only collectively, we can believe her," it says. "Never in history has England had the courage to face the enemy alone on the battlefield. Remember the part England played in the war against the heroic France of Napoleon. Remember what she did in the Great War.

"The greedy, cynical, old shopkeepers always know how to exploit the war-like qualities of people more generous and more intelligent than themselves on the battlefield. Threatening one minute, anxious and sugary the next, she is always seeking for accomplices to buy or to blackmail when she wants to pull some big business deal off, and to stifle some great or glorious spirit.

"Let England fight alone, poor creature; let her defend her security by herself, and you will see what this formidable England amounts to."

SWEDEN TO ACT

STOCKHOLM, Monday.

Sweden will follow the recommendations of the League with regard to the lifting of the embargo on arms exports to Abyssinia, it was stated semi-officially here to-day. Bofors, the big Swedish armament firm, told the Press Association to-day that no proposal for the supply of arms to Abyssinia or to Italy had yet been discussed by them. They were unwilling to say whether they could rapidly supply orders for arms placed with them by Abyssinia. Bofors is responsible for about 90 per cent. of Sweden's exports of armaments, which consist mostly of guns, explosives and armour plate.

Rest of the War News

U.S. DETERMINED TO KEEP THE PEACE

ADDRESSING the Conference of the Pan-American Institute on Geography and History in Washington yesterday, Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said:—

"Knowing the sincere devotion to peace of the peoples of the Americas, I am confident that I am speaking for us all when, in the name of our twenty-one nations, I say that we are determined to keep the peace, and we call upon the rest of the world to do likewise

"To threats of misunderstanding and war let the answer of the Americas be the maintenance of a stalwart community of nations, none of which either contemplates or fears aggression."

BETTER OUTSIDE LEAGUE

"It is better to remain outside the League," says the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung. "Germany has done the right thing," asserts the writer, who paints a not-very-flattering picture of the various policies within the League, which, he says, are trying to get the upper hand.

"It is tragic," he remarks, "to see M. Laval asking the French people to understand a policy which makes every effort to hold in his hand the British and the Italian cards without knowing himself which of them should be the trump card."

The Boersen Zeitung declares:—"It is not peace in East Africa or in Europe which determines the policy of the Quai d'Orsay, but solely the endeavour of France to arrange for a new stabilisation of her own predominant position."

Over 6,500 troops passed through the Suez Canal on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, according to the latest figures of canal traffic. An indication of Italian casualties due to sickness and wounds is given by the numbers of Italian troops returning homewards through the Canal. On Friday 617 Italian soldiers passed through on their way home, and a further small party of eighteen men on Saturday.

CONSULATE GUARD

A strong guard of Carabinieri was placed round the British Consulate in Rome yesterday. The reason for this step is not clear.

Nabil Ismail Daoud, who is en route for Djibuti with a consignment of medical stores from the Coptic hospital in Cairo, which are intended for the Abyssinian Army, arrived by train at Port Said yesterday. Enthusiastic crowds cheered wildly as he drove through the streets, accompanied by the Abyssinian Consul.

As a sequel to Saturday night's brawl between Egyptians and Italians, following a political quarrel in a café, in which one Egyptian was seriously hurt and one slightly, the Italian Consul in Cairo has ordered the immediate expulsion of two Italians who were arrested in connection with the affair.

The Correctional Court at Sarreguemines (Lorraine) has sentenced an Italian named Lenzi to a year's imprisonment, a fine of 2,000 francs, and five years' local banishment for espionage. Lenzi had been living at Forbach.

M. LAVAL SEES TWO AMBASSADORS

EXPLORING PEACE POSSIBILITIES

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PARIS, Monday.

M. Laval this afternoon received the Italian and British Ambassadors. The Premier's talk with Signor Cerruti lasted an hour, and with Sir George Clerk three-quarters of an hour.

It will be remembered that M. Laval before he left for Geneva indicated that he would be prepared to make proposals for a peaceful settlement at the moment he judged opportune. There is reason to think that the object of to-day's talk with Signor Cerruti was to explore the present possibilities of finding a formula which might be acceptable enough to all the parties concerned as to lead to a cessation of hostilities and afford a basis of settlement

Geneva's 'phone girls are dealing with the biggest rush of telephone traffic in the history of the League of Nations. They are working full pressure day and night to cope with the world's thirst for news and calls made by the diplomats to their respective Governments. Over 500 calls a day are coming to London from Geneva.

PROPAGANDA AND GOLD

MOST ACTIVE PHASE OF WAR

REPORT OF FIGHT WITH SOMALIS

BRITISH TRIBE SAID TO HAVE BEEN INVOLVED

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

APART from air raids on towns and hamlets in the Ogaden area, Southern Abyssinia, no warlike operations were reported yesterday from any of the sectors.

The Italian work of peaceful penetration by gold and propaganda continues to be successful, as news from Rome and Asmra, Eritrea, announces further defections of local chieftains from allegiance to the Negus.

There was some desultory bombing by Italian machines yesterday over Daggah Bur, Sasa Baneh and Harradigit areas, says a Harar message. The nearest place raided was Daggah Bur, about a hundred miles from here.

The Abyssinians are growing accustomed to the whistle and explosions and are no longer showing the same abject fear. Anti-aircraft defences at Harar have been strengthened and bomb-proof shelters are being hastily prepared under expert supervision.

Careful inquiry has failed to show that the Italians have made use of gas in the Ogaden area.

NEAR BRITISH SOMALILAND

DAGGAH BUR, Monday.

It is reported here, but without any confirmation, that Italians and the Mijjertein Somali tribe are engaged in a fierce battle in the south-east corner of Abyssinia, where British and Italian Somalilands meet.

The British Somaliland tribe of the Dolbahanta sided with the Mijjertein, according to these reports.

The British authorities forbade the Dolbahanta to take any action, and warned them that disobedience would entail the withdrawal of British protection. The Dolbahanta took no heed of the warning, and many casualties are said to have been suffered on both sides.

FALL OF HOLY CITY IMPENDING

BISHOP HANDS KEYS TO DE BONO

ROME, Monday.

Telegrams from Adowa state that the Abuna, bishop of the holy city of Aksum, this morning presented the keys of the city to General de Bono. At the same time he paid his homage to the Italian commander.

The Prelate wore his full vestments, and was accompanied by members of his clergy.

The capture of the city without fighting is, therefore, considered imminent. The Italians have refrained from bombing Aksum because of its holy character, anticipating that it would give in before long of its own free will.

A correspondent of the Lavoro Fascista reports that patrols of Askaris have already reached the outskirts of the city virtually without opposition. The same correspondent reports that all along the line groups of local inhabitants, who had been compelled to flee by the retreating Abyssinian troops, are returning to their homes with their animals and belongings.

In the region of Adigrat refugees have returned with over 600 head of cattle in the last few days. Groups of Ethiopian warriors belonging to enemy territory are also coming in and giving up their arms, and asking to fight under the Italian flag.

NEXT ITALIAN PUSH

With the fall of Adowa, Adigrat and Aksum, it is considered here that the first phase of the East African operations is completed, and it is expected that the second phase of the advance, which is due to begin shortly, will meet with little or no resistance, as reconnaissance flights far into the interior have revealed an "entire absence of the enemy."

It is possible that the next move on the Northern front, the push on to Makale, will await the arrival of Marshal Bedoglio, the Chief of Staff, who is due to arrive at Asmara in a few days.

It is announced from Adigrat that another large detachment of Abyssinians, comprising over 100 armed men, have presented themselves to the Italian outposts at the south of Adigrat, on the Makale road, and have asked to be permitted to join the Italian Army.

The majority of these men who have surrendered are of the Tigre race. Some of them have been employed in the past as labourers in Eritrea, and have frequently visited the Italian colony and can talk a little Italian. They explained their desertion by saying that they did not want to fight the "soldiers of Mussolini."

Several chieftains from Entiscio also have surrendered to the Italians.

TORRENTIAL RAINS

From Italian Somaliland it is learned that the Italian advance to Gerlogubi has been temporarily suspended at Gerohai by torrential rains, which have made the movements of troops impossible. The advance will be resumed when the rains stop.

COUNT VINCI

ADDIS ABABA, Monday.

Count Vinci, the Italian Minister, who is reported to be in ill-health at the house of Ras Desta, will probably leave for the coast next Wednesday.

The Italian Consul and his staff, who have been plodding their way for some weeks from Magalo, two hundred miles to the south-east, are expected at Hadama, on the Addis Ababa-Djibuti Railway, on Wednesday.

The Abyssinian Government has taken steps to accelerate the Consul's journey. He will not come to Addis Ababa, but Count Vinci will be conveyed to Hadama, and the whole party will proceed direct to the coast.

Barely three weeks after the rainy season has ended, the Emperor went to the fields near the railway station at dawn this morning and cut the first hay of the season. Priests attended the ceremony, and prayers were offered up for a good harvest and the successful conclusion of the war.

In a short address to the troops of Dedjasmatch Masasha of Kambata, who have just marched to the capital, the Emperor declared: "All foreigners in Addis Ababa and the interior are our friends. They must be treated as friends."

Extensive manœuvres of the Spanish Army are at present being carried in the vicinity of the Guardiaro River, forty miles north-west of Gibraltar. Artillery, anti-aircraft batteries and cavalry are engaged.

"LIVE" WIRES HIT BY 'PLANE

FERMOY THROWN INTO DARKNESS

DUBLIN AIRMAN FINED

HOW an aeroplane struck electric cables carrying ten thousand volts, plunging Fermoy, County Cork, into darkness, was described at the Fermoy District Court yesterday.

The aeroplane landed almost undamaged, and the pilot escaped injury.

James Ball, 34 Iona Crescent, Glasnevin, Dublin, stated to be an aerial instructor, was prosecuted at the suit of the Attorney-General on a charge of unlawfully flying an aircraft which, by reason of its low altitude or proximity to persons or dwellings, was calculated to have caused unnecessary damage to the supply wires the property of the Electricity Supply Board contrary to the Air Navigation General Regulations, 1930.

SUDDEN DARKNESS

Evidence was given by Mr. P. Sliney, the Electricity Board's local representative, that he was near the boathouse at Barnane when he saw a 'plane strike the wires, which were "alive" at the time with a power of 10,000 volts. The whole place was plunged into darkness.

He isolated that section of the town, and switched on the supply on the other side of the bridge.

John Grady, acting district engineer, stated that the damage amounted to £4 15s., which included material, transport and labour

STATEMENT TO POLICE

Sergeant P. Kennedy, Civic Guard, stated that the defendant admitted he was flying the 'plane when the accident occurred

The defendant did not appear, and the Justice (Mr. G. Farrell), in imposing a fine of £5, said that he could have imposed a penalty of £200 on defendant.

FROM "THE TIMES"

(BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT.)

OPPOSITION AND AN ELECTION

In a leading article to-day The Times remarks:—The reported decision of the Government to submit themselves to a general election in November has evoked a chorus of protest from all sections of the Opposition. The case for an early election deserves to be tested by criteria, which go deeper than conventional charges of party advantage, brought by critics who have their own advantage to consider. It was the common expectation months ago—long before the present crisis became acute—that in the ordinary political course the Government would feel impelled to ask for a new mandate not later than the early part of next year. It was agreed by their supporters, and it was far from being disputed by the Opposition, that the mandate of 1931 could not be further extended to cover the positive work of national reconstruction that lies ahead. The Government that is to carry this work through to a further stage of accomplishment needed a definite manifestation of public opinion to give authority and precision to its undertaking. Such in home politics is still the necessity. Nothing in that sphere has happened to vary or suspend it, and the Opposition would be stultifying their own daily contentions by dissenting from this view. For the moment they have put that idea in the background, and they are claiming that the over-riding requirements of foreign policy demand the retention of office by an Administration whose works they condemn root and branch.

It is unnecessary to make much of the obvious contradiction. Let the claim be taken at its face value. Is it really possible for any responsible person to hold that the Government will be better able to make its influence felt in Europe at this critical time if it allows the months up to, say, February—or, even worse, up to the statutory expiry of the present Parliament—to pass with no express affirmation by the electorate of the part which it desires and intends to play in the preservation of peace? It would be sanguine to hope that the repercussions of Signor Mussolini's reckless act will have died away within four or five months, and it would be manifestly absurd to claim that a Government whose time is ebbing away will gather strength with the departing weeks. Yet, strength will be needed, either for that patient, but active, resolution which is necessary while the fighting lasts, or for the exertions and decisions which will have to minister to its liquidation. The postponement of an election cannot make for, and must detract from, the weight and efficacy of British policy. Nor, be it remembered, can it be indefinitely delayed. Can delay ensure that a postponed election will be held in an atmosphere free from the sense of emergency? If not, a postponement will give the Opposition no relief from its grievances, while interests which rise high above partisanship will not have escaped injury in the meantime.

ABORTIVE COUP IN SALVADOR

TWENTY-SIX MEN SHOT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

PANAMA, Monday.

Salvador, the smallest of the Central American Republics, is under a very strict censorship following an abortive coup to overthrow the President, Dr. Maetinez. Twenty-six men, alleged to be the ringleaders of the plot, were summarily shot. At present the President is heavily guarded by soldiers and police with machine-guns.

UNDERGROUND STRIKE

OVER 400 MEN IN THREE PITS

ACTION OF SOUTH WALES FEDERATION

THE Monmouthshire miners' underground strike is spreading. Last night it was estimated that there were over 400 men remaining in three pits as a protest against the employment of non-unionists.

The pits and the numbers of men are:—Nine Mile Point Colliery—Rock Vein Pit, 75; West Pit, 112. Risca Colliery, 241. All the men are accepting food. They have sent boys under 21 to the surface.

Feeling is running high in the valley, and there were demonstrations yesterday as the non-Federation men, numbering nearly 100, went to the East Pit, and returned after their shift, protected by about fifty police.

Hundreds of miners, women and young boys, many armed with heavy sticks shrieked and jeered at the men as they walked in Indian file, but there was no violence.

When the special delegate conference of the South Wales' Miners' Federation was resumed at Cardiff yesterday the President gave a report of the efforts made by the Federation officials to prevail upon the owners of the Nine Mile Point Colliery to withdraw the imported labour. The conference afterwards adopted a recommendation of the Executive Council to adjourn until Wednesday afternoon, the delegates in the meantime being requested to secure from their lodges an open mandate to enable the conference on Wednesday to take whatever action may be deemed advisable, even to the extent of ordering a general stoppage in the coal-field. Meanwhile, it was stated that further efforts would be made to secure from the colliery companies an undertaking that they would withdraw the "imported labour," and able men who had worked at the pit all their lives to return to their former places.

The conference sent a message of goodwill to the men who still are down the pit as a protest.

INTERNATIONAL SUPPORT

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

BRUSSELS, Monday.

A resolution expressing sympathy with British miners was adopted unanimously by the International Committee of the International Federation of Miners, which is meeting here to-day. It states: "The International Committee congratulates the British Federation of Miners on its success in its campaign to render public opinion favourable to the legitimate claims of the mine-workers of Great Britain. In the eventuality of the British miners being forced to have recourse to a national strike, the Miners' International would meet in extraordinary, urgent session to examine what measures could be taken to assist their comrades in Great Britain."

EFFECT OF SKODA CONTRACT

INCREASED TRADE WITH CZECHOSLOVAKIA

The Skoda Works, Limited, already have taken the first step in fulfilment of their arrangement with the Free State Government to purchase Irish products in a definite proportion to the value of the contract for alcohol factories which has just been awarded to them. Under this agreement, their organisation has undertaken to purchase Irish goods in the same ratio as their chief competitors.

Last week their representative placed substantial orders for agricultural products, and made an exhaustive study of trade possibilities. The Skoda Company, which is an enormous concern with world wide connections, will establish a purchasing office in Dublin to keep in close touch with the market here, and to improve trade with Czechoslovakia generally. They are confident that they will exceed the stipulated ratio, 1 to 3, and that they will find a continued market for Irish products, not only in Czechoslovakia, but also in other countries with which they have contact.

Apart from the fact that the tender was competitive, the Czechoslovak offer had the added merit of a less expensive system of production. A committee of technical experts gave this matter careful consideration, and finally decided to adopt the system proposed by the Skoda Works, as it is already employed with great success in other countries.

It is interesting to know that although the process to be used here is a French patent, it was invented by an Irishman, Professor Young. Its chief advantage over the method employed in other countries is that it requires less fuel, and produces an industrial alcohol free from any traces of chemicals that might interfere with its use as motor fuel. Another important factor in favour of the system finally chosen is that it will not necessitate the importation of certain chemicals essential to production under other methods.

BRITISH EMPIRE UNANIMITY

CHANCELLOR AND MR. DE VALERA

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, referring in a speech at Glasgow last night to the League and Italy, said that he could not recollect any action since the War when there had been such complete unanimity in all parties of the British Empire with a policy with which many of them might seem to have little direct concern.

Even in the Irish Free State Mr. de Valera had spoken as strongly as anybody of the policy explained by Sir Samuel Hoare in his memorable speech to the Assembly, and the United States of America had clearly demonstrated where its sympathy lay.

JAPAN'S PLAN IN CHINA

MILITARY MEN CONFER

"CO-OPERATION" TO BE ENFORCED

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

DAIREN, Monday.

REPRESENTATIVES of the Japanese military authorities in Tokyo, Manchuria and China in conference here are stated to have pledged themselves to give undivided support in the carrying out of the Japanese Government's foreign policy, and particularly its policy in China.

They reached, it is declared, a complete understanding. The meagre information available here indicates that the conference agreed on a plan to convert North China into an "example of Sino-Japanese co-operation," with a view later to extending this state of things to other parts of China.

The Japanese-owned South Manchurian Railway Company is expected immediately to launch a positive economic programme in North China.

Measures were considered, it is further stated, for countering General Chiang Kai-shek, the Commander-in-Chief of the Central Government's forces, and the Nanking Government, both of whom are regarded in Japanese circles here as "obstructing Sino-Japanese co-operation."

The outer Mongolia and Soviet problems also were discussed.

SIGNIFICANCE

The significance of the foregoing arises from the fact that at various times in the last two or three years the Japanese military authorities in Manchukuo and North China have pursued a policy quite at variance from that followed by the Japanese Foreign Office. The remarkable happenings in that part of the world are largely attributable to this fact.

Big efforts have been on foot for some time past to establish a more disciplined and regular state of affairs.

The present conference was specially arranged with a view to securing the support of the Japanese naval and military forces in China for the Government's attitude in home and foreign affairs. Major-General Yasutsugu Okamura, of the General Military Staff in Tokyo, called the representatives of the respective commands together for this purpose.

Further important similar conferences are to be held in Shanghai, questions arising out of the Italo-Abyssinian crisis being among the matters to be discussed.

MR. DE VALERA'S RETURN

THE RE-ASSEMBLING OF THE DAIL

BY OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT.

It was stated authoritatively last evening that there is no intention of assembling the Dail before the date originally fixed—namely, 30th inst. A rumour to the effect that an earlier meeting would take place was probably due to the fact that it has been found desirable to summon the British Parliament a week earlier than had been previously arranged.

President de Valera is still at Geneva, and no intimation has yet reached Dublin as to when he is likely to return, but it is thought that he will be back by the end of the present week.

BOY'S LIFE SAVED

OPERATION IN GALE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

MONTREAL, Monday.

An operation performed by a ship's surgeon while the liner, Athenia, ploughed her way through a howling gale off the coast of Newfoundland, has, it is hoped, saved the life of an eight years old boy, John Reid, of Toronto, who was suffering from gangrenous appendicitis.

The story of the operation, which was carried out by Dr. C. H. C. Griffiths in the ship's surgery, while the purser, Alex W. Wetherspoon, administered the anæsthetic, and the vessel tossed in the great Atlantic rollers, was told when the liner docked at Montreal to-day.

The boy has been rushed to hospital here, and the doctors say that his chance of recovery is good, although there is still some danger of peritonitis.

EIGHTY COTTON MILLS EMPTY

SITUATION IN OLDHAM AREA

The conference of the National Chamber of Trade at Cardiff yesterday passed a resolution urging the Government to influence and assist in the establishment of new industries and the resuscitation of the old industries in South Wales and other industrial areas.

Mr. Isaac Edwards, of Merthyr-Tydfil, moving the resolution, said that he was protesting against leaving industrial towns that were depressed to die.

Mr. H. Gartside, of Oldham, mentioned that in one street in his district there were seventy-eight shops empty, and there were also eighty cotton mills empty.

The conference also passed a resolution urging the Government to keep an effective check upon all items of public expenditure, with a view to the reduction of income tax and the reduction to one penny of the duty on cheques and receipts.

ISLAND BASES FOR AIR LINE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Monday.

The Aviation Bureau of the Department of Commerce confirms that the United States is "colonising" Jarvis Baker and Howland Islands, in the South Seas, as potential bases for an air route between this country and Australia.

It is stated, however, that the islands have not been "annexed," as they were discovered by Americans originally. The New York Herald-Tribune reported this morning that four American experts have been living on each of the islands for eight months past, taking observations.

CHANCELLOR AND ITALY

REPROACHES WILL NOT ALTER THINGS

GENERAL ELECTION MANDATE

MR. NEVILLE CHAMBERLAIN, Chancellor of the Exchequer, declared in a speech at Glasgow last night that Italian reproaches would not turn Britain from her purpose.

"We have professed our readiness to help her to secure her legitimate ambitions, so long as she did that without resorting to war," he said.

"We have not sought in any way to close the door which a little while ago we sought to open to her. In spite of that, we seem to have been singled out for special resentment, and I am sure that the feelings of Italians have been further embittered and their hostility deliberately directed against this country by those in authority.

COUNTRY'S CHOICE

"I can only say we cannot be turned from our purposes by any reproaches of that character—reproaches which are without any justification whatever; for, indeed, the issues are too big.

"The choice before us is whether we shall make a last effort at Geneva for peace and security, or whether, by a cowardly surrender, we will break a promise we have made, and hold ourselves up to the shame of our children and their children's children."

As far as the general election was concerned, it had been suggested that it should wait until the spring.

"What right have we to say that by the spring this present crisis will have passed away? Do not make any mistake—we are not at the end, we are at the beginning of what may be a very long period of difficulty, doubt and anxiety, during which there may be recurring crises of a serious character."

THE MANDATE

A point on which the Government must know the mind of the country was their conclusion that they must begin to repair the waste and deficiencies of their defence.

"I am not sure that this trouble we have been having for the past two or three months would ever have occurred if this country's defence forces had been stronger."

Mr. Chamberlain indicated that the appeal to the country would be for a mandate to embark on a new programme of defence, and that in the field of social reform the attack on the problem of the special areas would continue, while attention would be given to educational reforms and the inclusion in the contributory pension scheme of those who should benefit, but are at present excluded.

LORD CECIL ON THE CRISIS

HOW TO STOP THE WAR

Lord Cecil of Chelwood, at a meeting of the Petersfield Branch of the League of Nations last night, expressed the opinion that the really effective thing for the League to do in regard to the Italo-Abyssinian war would be to cut communications between Italy and Africa, so that Italy no longer could maintain her attacking force.

The League's business, he said, was to stop war, and they must use whatever means might be necessary to achieve that end. He was very glad to see that our representatives were pressing for practical measures—something to make it impossible for Italy to carry on. If the League failed on this occasion, and did not stop war, it would produce a very serious effect on the prospects of peace for the whole world.

Speaking of the necessity of sanctions, Lord Cecil said that in the Sino-Japanese war sanctions had not been put into practice. War, with its attendant horrors, followed. They had learned that the attacking country should be forcibly prevented. If the League failed and was broken up he prophesied that the world would be plunged into war before many years were past, and it would be even more destructive than the last war. Referring to the attitude of France in holding back from applying the full force of sanctions against Italy, he said that he could understand her reasons, and it was a natural thing—France and Italy had just concluded a peace agreement.

He denied that there was anything in British history comparable to the present position of Aybssinia. If force were to be applied against Italy it must be an overwhelming force, exercised by the community of nations.

Lord Selborne, President of the local branch, who was in the chair, said that the totalitarian State, with its dictator, its spies, and its satellites, was a device of the devil for the destruction of the human soul.

VISCOUNT THURLES FINED

DRIVING A CAR WITHOUT PERMISSION

Viscount James Anthony Butler Thurles, aged 19, son of the Earl Ossory, of Bryanston square, London, was, at the Hendon Police Court yesterday, fined £2 10s. for taking and driving away a car without permission or lawful authority and £2 10s. for using a car without an insurance policy in force.

Mr. Knight, prosecuting, said that Viscount Thurles was employed as a salesman at a garage in Brooks Mews, where a car, owned by Mrs. Roberts, of Crawford street, was taken for repairs in July. When the car was ready for delivery Viscount Thurles told his employers that he had permission to use it. He took it out, and at 2 a.m. the following day he was severely injured in collision with a motor lorry at Hendon. A young women passenger was also injured.

Mrs. Roberts told the Court that she did not give Lord Thurles permission to use the car, except to take it to the garage.

Viscount Thurles gave evidence that he had lost the sight of an eye in the accident, and his passenger was still in hospital.

He said that Mrs. Roberts told him the car was comprehensively insured, and he told her that he would run it for an extensive test after the repairs had been carried out, and she agreed to this.

ATTEMPT TO BRIBE CONSTABLE

CHARGE AGAINST TYRONE MAN

MAGISTRATES IMPOSE FINE OF £20

DUNGANNON, Monday.

AT Dungannon Petty Sessions, to-day, before Mr. J. C. Austin, R.M., and other Magistrates, District Inspector Coulson charged Patrick McCool, Dernaseer, Castlecaulfield with attempting to bribe Constable McCarter, Castlecaulfield.

Mr. B. B. Hoy appeared for the defendant.

Constable McCarter said that he called at defendant's house on duty regarding registration papers. Defendant had been in the United States for the past nine years. After completing his queries defendant asked witness would he do him a favour. Defendant said that he was preparing to settle down and desired to winter some stock and that he could be doing with about thirty young heifers. Defendant added that the heifers could be bought for about £3 per head less in the Free State.

McCool asked witness whether he could get in touch with some members of the Customs patrol and arrange for the bringing over of cattle and so evade the Customs duties. Witness pointed out to defendant the gravity of his making such a suggestion to a policeman, and told him in definite terms that under no circumstances would he countenance or assist the carrying out of such a proposal.

"PLENTY OF MONEY"

McCool replied by telling witness that he had plenty of money and that he would make it worth witness's while, and also worth while for the Customs officers who would assist. McCool said that witness had nothing to fear, and that the affair would never be made known. Defendant said that he had saved £1,800 in the U.S.A.

Two days later defendant stopped witness on the Ballygawley road and asked if witness had done anything in the matter. Witness replied that he would have nothing whatever to do with it. McCool said witness had nothing to fear and to go ahead.

To Mr. Hoy—McCool had no stock on the farm. Defendant did not ask witness to find out what the Customs duty on young cattle would be.

Defendant said that he was anxious to stock his farm and asked the police officer to find out what the tariff would be coming over the border. If witness had intended smuggling cattle he would not have asked advice from a "cop."

The magistrates imposed a fine of £20.

Mr. Hoy urged a reduction in the amount. It would obviate an appeal.

Major Dickie, R.M.—Appeal? He is very fortunate that he is not going to prison for three months.

THE ABBEY THEATRE

AN IMPROVED PLAY

Charles Stewart Parnell......F. J. McCormick.
Kate O'Shea ....Ria Mooney.
"Parnell of Avondale," by W. R. Fearon.

When "Parnell of Avondale" had its first production, just a year ago, it was definitely a bad play. Dr. Fearon had plenty to say, but seemed unable to say it; his study of Parnell's life jumped from episode to episode—often they were arresting or dramatic episodes, but no thread seemed to bind them together, and the play lacked a purpose. Last night's performance shows what can be done by revision, not to speak of better acting and better production. "Parnell of Avondale" has gained a significance which it certainly did not have before, and it is hard to say whether the credit for the transformation should go to Dr. Fearon, the actors, or Mr. Hugh Hunt.

The play, it is true, still seems to be too "episodic." It shows us Parnell's meeting with Kate O'Shea, but jumps so suddenly to the husband's discovery of their love that we should have suspected the Film Censor if we had seen it at the cinema. Other leaps land us abruptly at various stages of the divorce proceedings and the changing political situation—or, rather, they did so in the first version. Now, after the first few scenes, they are not so noticeable. The tragedy of Parnell emerges—the tragedy not only of one man, whose unlucky love affair led to his undoing, but of all men who have given their lives to Ireland and have seen them thrown aside without thanks. Dr. Fearon had conveyed his meaning by the time he reached the second railway station scene in the last act, and he could, with advantage, have closed his play on that note. Parnell's death and the final allegory were not needed; it was on the bitter mob and the few loyal supporters that the curtain should have come down.

No doubt, Mr. Hugh Hunt's production had something to do with the added meaning that has been given to the play. It was extremely good, particularly in the scenes at "Committee Room 15" and at the railway station, where the producer on each occasion worked the action up to a climax by the skilful use of a very small "crowd." the acting also was improved. F. J. McCormick played Parnell with real understanding; Ria Mooney (as before) was good as Kate O'Shea; and the rest of the large company worked well together. "Parnell of Avondale" is still not perfect, but the author, the producer, and the actors have combined to give us something which is very different to what we saw last year.

MOTORIST'S APPEAL ALLOWED

"TECHNICAL, BUT VITAL," POINT

On a legal point, which Mr. Laurence Vine, counsel for the appellant described as "technical, but absolutely vital," the appeal of Maurice William Hamill, of Reading, against a conviction at Droxford, for driving a motor car without due care and attention was allowed with costs at the Hants Quarter Sessions at Winchester yesterday.

Mr. Vine said that the magistrates reduced the charge from one of driving to the danger, and thereupon fined the appellant. No evidence was given upon the reduced charge, and Hamill was not even asked to plead to it.

The proper procedure laid down by Section 35 of the Act of 1934 had not been followed.

Mr. J. Scott Henderson (for the respondents)—I cannot say anything, except obviously the section was not followed.

MURDER CHARGE AGAINST DOCTOR

THE MISSING NURSEMAID

FATHER CALLED AS WITNESS

DR. BUCK RUXTON, of Dalton square, Lancaster, was, at Lancaster Borough Police Court yesterday, remanded until October 22 on a charge of having murdered Mary Jane Rogerson.

The hearing lasted only six minutes. No members of the public were present, but a small crowd had gathered in the streets outside the courtroom.

The Mayor of Lancaster, Councillor Simpson, presided over a bench of sixteen magistrates, including two women.

The Chief Constable, Mr. H. J. Vann, said—"I propose at this stage merely to give evidence of the fact that this person is missing and evidence of arrest, and shall ask you to remand him in custody for eight days."

MISSING GIRL'S FATHER

He then called the father of the girl, who had been a nursemaid at Ruxton's house.

There was a touching scene when James Rogerson, an elderly, white-haired man, was called to the witness box to tell the Court when he last saw his daughter alive. He broke down and wept bitterly.

The Chief Constable—Had you a daughter named Mary Jane Rogerson?—Yes.

When was the last time she was seen alive?—She was at our house on the Thursday.

"What date was that?" asked the Chief Constable, but Mr. Rogerson broke down again, and some minutes elapsed before he sobbed out: "I don't know the date. It was the Thursday before she was to go away."

He then stepped out of the witness box and dropped into a seat weeping.

THE ARREST

The Chief Constable then entered the witness box. "The defendant," he said, "was brought to my office on the night of Saturday, October 12, and questioned. On the morning of October 13 I charged him that between September 14th and September 29th he did feloniously, wilfully and with malice aforethought kill and murder one Mary Jane Rogerson.

"In reply to the charge Dr. Ruxton said: 'Most emphatically no; of course not. The furthest thing from my mind. What motive and why? What are you talking about?'"

Mr. Gardner said that he wanted to make an application for Ruxton to be kept in Lancaster, so that he (Mr. Gardner) might look after his business interests.

The Chief Constable said that he had no objection to that. In fact, he would be prepared to give every possible assistance, but whether the Home Office would allow that or not remained to be seen He would get in touch to see if they were agreeable.

Mr. Gardner also made an application for legal aid.

At this point Ruxton seemed anxious to speak. "Could I," he began, but the Chief Constable and his own solicitor both advised him to say nothing.

APPEAL TO THE PUBLIC

The Chief Constable of Lancaster, Mr. H. J. Vann, yesterday afternoon appealed to the public to assist in tracing Mrs. Ruxton, the missing Lancaster woman.

He told a reporter: "We are anxious that any member of the public who has seen anyone resembling the description of the woman, whether or not in the company of the nurse, Miss Rogerson, should communicate with the nearest police station.

"We are trying to exhaust every possible source in our inquiries to find whether she is still alive or if she has left the country.

"There is a possibility that she may have gone to Edinburgh or London. At the same time the search for the missing torso of 'body No. 2' in the Moffat ravine mystery is being pushed forward all over the country. An inspection is being made along main roads and any other places where it is likely to be found."

The Chief Constable added that there was no likelihood at present of the remains of "body No. 1" being brought from Moffat to Lancaster, although eventually they might be sent for purposes of burial

FLAT MURDER APPEAL

DEATH SENTENCE CONFIRMED

Alan James Grierson (27), a salesman, sat in the dock in the Court of Criminal Appeal, London, yesterday, and listened intently to his counsel's plea in support of his appeal against conviction for murder. Three warders had charge of him.

Grierson had been found guilty at the Old Bailey and sentenced to death for killing Mrs. Louise Bertha Gann (62) in a flat in Regent's Park, London.

Mr. W. A. Fearnley, Whittingstall, who appeared for him, said that the grounds of appeal were that the verdict was against the weight of evidence, and complaint was also made of Mr. Justice Porter's summing-up, but except for one matter the whole of the defence was fairly put before the jury.

Counsel argued that there was nothing to justify the jury disbelieving Grierson's explanation of certain matters, and that, taken as a whole, the burden of proof was not sufficiently discharged. It was idle to deny that the fact that Grierson concealed himself when he knew search was being made for him would create suspicion against him.

"But when a man of cowardly fibre," said counsel, "is faced with the knowledge that, having been one of the last with a woman who was found dying, he would be faced with questions emanating from a grave suspicion, it is reasonable to expect that he would seek to hide in order to evade those questions."

Mr. Whittingstall urged that the evidence indicated that a person other than Grierson was in Mrs. Gann's flat at the time of the murder, and that this was a case of grave suspicion but no more. The Court did not call upon Crown counsel.

Lord Hewart, giving judgment, said that the jury were satisfied beyond all reasonable doubt that Grierson was the man who committed the murder. It was difficult to see how they could have come to any other conclusion. The appeal would be dismissed.

A FREE HAND IN CENTRAL EUROPE

"TERRIBLE CHANGE IN FOREIGN AFFAIRS"

DOCTOR G. P. GOOCH, President of the Historical Association, speaking at Leeds yesterday, said that the public was hearing a great deal more about Italy and Abyssinia to-day than about Germany, but, important as the Abyssinian situation was, it was nothing like so important as Germany's recovery of military strength.

Hitler had given the world a shock when he announced that the Reichswehr would be increased, in defiance of the Versailles Treaty, to 550,000.

The German Air Force, he said, was more formidable than ours, and Germany was building a fleet that would give her domination in the Baltic.

HITLER'S POLICY

Poland, whose population was only 6,000,000 short of that of France, and in a dozen years or less would be equal to that of France, had ceased to be the pawn of France, and was no longer the enemy of Germany. Italy was beginning to draw nearer to Germany. Hitler's policy was perfectly clear. He wanted to be on good terms with England—for the present—and to avoid trouble in Western Europe, so that he could have a free hand in Central and Eastern Europe.

He wanted the rich plains of Southern Russia, and he wanted to rope in Russia, but not by sending troops across the frontier into Austria if the thing could be done in other ways.

FRANCE'S ANXIETY

France, on her part, was torn between her desire to maintain her new found friendship with Italy, and to be on good terms with England. She looked with anxiety to what was happening in Abyssinia, but with far greater anxiety to what might happen on the Rhine. The stronger Germany became the more frightened France became.

"There are no signs of improvement in the relations of England and France with Germany. There is a terrible possibility of their becoming worse."

An astonishing change and a terrible deterioration had come over European affairs in the past six to twelve months. They had been hearing of the air pact, of the maintenance of Austrian independence. They heard nothing of those matters now.

BACK IN THE GAME

The situation was very much worse and very much more dangerous than it was six months ago, and the main reason was, that with renewed military strength Germany had come back into the game.

CAIRN 4,000 YEARS OLD

DISCOVERIES IN COUNTY TYRONE

Following upon the excavation of a prehistoric cairn, 200 feet long, on the Sperrin mountains, Co. Tyrone, Queen's University (Belfast) archæologists report that the cairn is of an extremely rare type, with close parallels in Brittany and Cornwall, and was probably built 4,000 years ago by immigrants coming up the Atlantic coast

The discoveries included cremated remains of human bones, a complete burial urn, and fragments of several other urns, flints and specially interesting arrowheads, all of which will be deposited in the Belfast Museum.

OBITUARY

MR. W. C. CHILLINGWORTH

We regret to announce the death of Mr. W. C. Chillingworth, of the Dublin Evening Mail, which occurred early this morning, at his residence, 29 Sandymount road, Dublin. He was actively engaged in the discharge of his duties up to a fortnight ago, when he contracted a chill and pneumonia supervened.

In addition to being the racing correspondent of the Evening Mail, with which he had been connected for the last thirty years, Mr. Chillingworth was the Irish sporting correspondent of the Press Association, the Daily Express and the Sporting Chronicle, as well as other journals. He was one of the most conscientious and hard-working members of the profession in Ireland.

He also found time to act as secretary of the Conyngham Club, the body which deals with betting disputes.

Although gifted with a sound knowledge of most branches of sport, Mr. Chillingworth confined himself for the most part to racing and coursing.

One of its most active and zealous members, Mr. Chillingworth gave yeoman service to the Institute of Journalists. He was elected president in 1931, this being the first occasion on which an Irish working journalist was appointed to that position. He had occupied most of the leading positions on the Committee of the Dublin and Irish Association District of the Institute, and for many years represented the District on the Council of the Institute. He also took an active interest in the work of the Newspaper Press Fund, to supplement the funds of which he organised numerous sporting events.

He is survived by his widow.

DR. P. E. O'FLAHERTY

Dr. P. E. O'Flaherty died yesterday at his residence, 6 Crumlin road, Belfast, after a brief illness. For more than a quarter of a century Dr. O'Flaherty has had an extensive practice in Belfast and district, and he held a number of appointments, among them that of Medical Officer at His Majesty's Prison, Belfast, a post which he had occupied for over twenty years. For about the same period he had been surgeon, first, to the old Royal Irish Constabulary and, later, to the Royal Ulster Constabulary. He was, in fact, senior surgeon to the police force in Belfast.

Dr. O'Flaherty was educated at St. Malachy's College, Belfast, and at the Royal University of Ireland. He was Examiner in Medicine at Queen's University, and for a period was on the clinical teaching staff at the Mater Infirmorum Hospital, but had to relinquish these activities in view of his public appointments. Among the positions that he held with great acceptance to the public was that of Chairman of the Pensions Appeal Committee for Northern Ireland. Dr. O'Flaherty was held in high esteem by all with whom he came in contact.

MAJOR C. O. CRAWFORD

News was received in Londonderry yesterday of the death at Quetta of Major Charles Oliver Crawford, M.C., General Staff Officer and Brigade Major of the Fifth Infantry Brigade, Indian Army. He was thirty-seven. A native of Londonderry, he joined the Royal Irish Rifles early in the Great War, subsequently receiving a commission. Major Crawford served on the Western Front, and was awarded the Military Cross and Bar. He was in Quetta during the earthquake.

MR. WILLIAM LITTLE

Mr. William Little, who died at the residence of his son, Capt. C. G. Little, M.C., barrister-at-law, 23 Richmond avenue, Clontarf, was a member of an old County Carlow family settled near Borris. He was born in Dublin in 1853, and was educated at Santry School, and entered the Civil Service in 1872, his first appointment being to the War Office. He resided in South London, and was intimately associated with the Home Rule movement. He was later transferred to Dublin, and was chief cashier of the Irish Command. He retired just before the war, resided in Mountjoy square, was associated with the late Mr. William Martin Murphy in connection with hospital work, and was the first Secretary of the Dublin Castle Red Cross Hospital. Five of Mr. Little's sons served in the Great War, and two of them also served in the Free State Army.

THE BRITISH ELECTIONS

CABINET TO MEET TO-DAY

MANY PROSPECTIVE CANDIDATES

THE British Cabinet is expected to discuss the question of a November election at its meeting to-day, when parliamentary business also will be under consideration. Objections have been raised to some of the dates suggested for the election, and opinion is turning in favour of Wednesday, November 20. Thursday, November 21, which has been advocated in many quarters is open to the objection that nominations would fall to be made on Armistice Day, November 11.

The governing factor in the determination of the polling day is the date on which the proclamation dissolving Parliament is issued. The law provides that at a general election nominations shall be made on the eighth day after the issue of the proclamation, and that polling shall take place on the ninth day after nominations, Sundays being excluded from the reckoning in both cases. Polling on Wednesday, November 20, would mean the issue of the proclamation on Thursday, October 31, and nominations on Saturday, November 9.

Dates in the fourth week of November have also been considered, but there is much more support for the third week. The usual practice is to select a Wednesday or Thursday for polling day, those being the days generally favoured by shopkeepers for the operation of the early closing system.

Sir Kingsley Wood (Minister of Health), who is also Chief Director of National Government Propaganda, and Lord Greenwood, Treasurer of the Conservative Party, were among Mr. Baldwin's callers yesterday at No. 10 Downing street. Captain Margesson, the Government Chief Whip, and Mr. J. H. Thomas (Dominions Secretary) also visited No. 10.

CONSERVATIVES AND SANCTIONS

The deputation of Conservative members of Parliament which was appointed at a meeting at the Constitutional Club, under the chairmanship of Mr. L. S. Amery, to make representations to the Prime Minister, will have an interview with Mr. Baldwin at 10 Downing street this morning. The resolution adopted by the meeting appealed to the Government to reassure the public by making it clear that it would not at Geneva advocate or be a party to any sanctions which were in any way likely to lead to war.

The Cabinet will meet in the afternoon.

NATIONAL CANDIDATES

A hundred and fifty prospective National candidates are already in the field in the 152 constituencies comprised in the Midlands, the Western and the Wessex areas.

According to provisional figures now available, of 38 seats in the East Midlands also, 32 will be fought by Conservatives, two by Liberal Nationals, three by National Labour, and one by a Nationalist, Sir Charles Markham, at Ilkeston. Only in Mansfield and West Leicester have National candidates not yet been adopted.

In the West Midlands 51 prospective candidates will contest the 53 available seats. Of these, 46 are Conservatives, two are Liberal Nationals, and three National Labour. Decisions as to Wednesbury and Newcastle-under-Lyme will be reached shortly. Every seat will be fought in Wessex, and there are 33 Conservative and one Liberal National candidates. For the West there are 24 Conservative and three Liberal National adopted candidates and members of Parliament. In East Bristol a National Government candidate has yet to be selected.

LABOUR ACTIVITY

Labour agents and organisers met specially at Transport House, Westminster, last night, to consider plans for a possible general election. It is understood that reports from the constituencies were very favourable, and that there was an optimistic attitude. Mr. J. S Middleton, Secretary of the Labour Party, told a reporter that, so far, no special meeting of the National Executive of the Labour Party had been called, but it might be summoned later in the week.

On the eve of the reassembling of Parliament, the Labour Peers will meet at Lord Ponsonby's house to elect a new leader of the Labour Party in the House of Lords, in succession to Lord Ponsonby, who recently resigned. It is highly probable that Lord Snell will be the new leader In the event of Lord Snell declining—which is unlikely—Lord Strabolgi will, it is expected, be the new leader.

SOCIALISM THE ISSUE

Major G. C. Tryon (Postmaster-General), speaking at Dover last night, said that no country or Government in the world had stood more firmly by the League of Nations than Great Britain. The Labour tendency was for war without weapons, but the policy of this country was for security and peace. The issues of the next election would be Socialism, not Labour; and Socialism had been tried elsewhere and had failed. The Labour Party was now proposing that they who had failed to manage the national finances in 1931 should take over the banks. He did not believe for a moment that they were capable of running the great business of the country. The people were not going to substitute Socialist dictators in place of Parliamentary Government.

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH

MR. LANSBURY'S VIEW

Mr. George Lansbury, M.P., was asked, at a public meeting at Rochdale last night, whether, if conscription were to be introduced, he was in favour of everybody being conscripted, and also whether he was in favour of newspapers being abolished just before an election.

With regard to the first question, Mr. Lansbury said he was in favour of every able-bodied person being conscripted, irrespective of age, adding with a smile: "I think you would not have any more wars if you sent the old men first."

He was, however, in favour of something else, and that was the conscription of wealth whenever a war took place. When there was conscription the Government conscripted everything a poor man had got, which was his body, and he thought that material wealth ought to be conscripted too.

As regarded the suggested abolition of newspapers just before an election, Mr. Lansbury said that he did not agree with that, because he thought people were growing more intelligent and would ultimately make up their own minds. If people were not capable of doing that it did not matter whether newspapers or anything else were abolished. Somebody would tell them what to do, and they would do it.

In his speech Mr. Lansbury said that he might be very silly, but he believed in the spirit of prayer. He thought that if the Churches, even now, in all lands would unite and ask for the guidance of God they would get it. He believed, too, that if the statesmen of the world did the same thing they also would get it.

BRITISH BRIDGE LEAGUE

STANDARD OF PLAY IMPROVED

A CURIOUS POINT OF BIDDING

SPECIAL TELEGRAM.

HARROGATE, Monday.

THE most successful congress in the history of the British Bridge League ended at Harrogate to-day. It has shown unmistakably how great has been the growth in popularity of Contract Bridge in Yorkshire and the adjacent counties, and it has also proved that there has been a marked advance in the general standard of play.

The programme for the concluding day was a light one, consisting of the final round of the Open Teams of Four contest, and the last of the five Congress Open Pairs competition. In the latter event there were 212 competitors, including a number of the leading players who had taken part in the more important contests.

The eight teams which had survived the earlier stages of the Teams of Four competition were captained, respectively, by Mrs. Clifford Dixon, Leeds; Mrs. E. Holmes, Hull; Messrs. G. Humble, Herts.; E. Bruce-Parker, Leeds; E. M. Goodman, Manchester; N. R. C. Frith, Nottingham; Harrison Gray, London; and Major Meldon, Budleigh, Salterton.

A team captained by Mr. G. Nelson, Leeds, had qualified, but as one of its members could not play to-day, Mr. Nelson withdrew, and Major Meldon's team came in to complete the number.

There was a very keen fight for first place between the teams captained by Mr. Harrison Gray and Mr. Bruce Parker, the former winning by 380 points.

The winners' total was plus 2,850, and that of the second team plus 2,470.

Mr. Bruce Parker had with him Messrs. R. Lederer, I. McLeod and G. Fell.

OPEN PAIRS CONTEST

NORTH AND SOUTH

1—Mrs. Constance Bayley and Major Dewhurst, Cheshire, plus 3,610.

2—Messrs. T. Morrison and H. Kendrew, Harrogate, plus 3,190.

EAST AND WEST

1—Major Pocock, Hull, and Major Ridley, Purley, plus 1,680.

2—Mr. A. Gotheil and Mrs. H. Sniders, Bradford, plus 1,660.

CURIOUS SITUATION

A curious situation arose during the final session, late on Sunday night, of the match between Mr. Ingram's team and the team from South Wales, captained by Mr. Simon Rivlin. The circumstances in which a decision by the referee, Dr. Melville Smith, was called for will be better understood after a reference to the cards, which were dealt as follows:—

NORTH.	EAST.
Spades—J, 7, 2.	Spades—K, 8, 6.
Hearts—K,J,9,8,7,6.	Hearts—Q, 10, 5, 4.
Diamonds—7, 5.	Diamonds—A,10,4,3.
Clubs—6, 4.	Clubs—8, 3.
SOUTH.	WEST.
Spades—9, 5, 4, 3.	Spades—A, Q, 10.
Hearts—Nil.	Diamonds—A, 3, 2.
Diamonds—8, 2.	Diamonds—K,Q,J,9,6.
Clubs—K,Q,J,10,9,5,2.	Clubs—A, 7.

Both sides were vulnerable and South was the dealer. In Room 1 after South had passed Rivlin (West) opened the bidding with the forcing call of two diamonds. Stone, his partner, said: "Three diamonds," and then Rivlin changed the suit by bidding three spades, which was raised to four spades by Stone. Rivlin next bid four no trumps.

QUESTION OF BID

Ingram (North) here interposed with the question:—"Is that a conventional bid?" and, when Rivlin answered: "Yes," Stone bid five diamonds. Rivlin replied with five no trumps, and Stone ended the auction by bidding six diamonds.

Ingram led the seven of diamonds, and, when he saw "dummy's" cards on the table, he entered a protest, on the ground that the distribution of the aces made it impossible for the four and five no trump bids to be regarded as conventional.

As the referee was watching another contest it was decided to play out the cards, and, if the referee upheld the protest, to have another deal.

Rivlin made his contract, but would have been one down had Ingram led either a heart or a club. Ingram strongly contended that, but for the belief that the no trump bids were conventional, he would not have led a trump.

In the other room Dodds played the cards at a contract of five diamonds, which he made, so that on balance there was a net gain of 770 points by Rivlin's team.

The prizes were presented to the winners to-day by the Mayor of Harrogate, Mr. R. C. Hamilton, and the congress concluded with a ball.

SOLDIERS FOR EGYPT

SIX HOURS' STAY IN ENGLAND

The 1st Battalion Manchester Regiment, after their six hours' reunion with relatives at Southampton, resumed their voyage from Bermuda to Egypt last night.

A band on the quayside, playing "The Girl I left Behind Me," provided the final scene in this "hullo and farewell reunion" of the regiment and relatives from Manchester.

Perhaps the saddest group of people on the quayside when the troopship Dorsetshire steamed away were the wives and children of the soldiers who had come from Bermuda, and could not go on with their husbands and fathers to Egypt. There were 46 wives and 76 children, who had to remain behind in England.

At the big lunch, held in the docks' quayside shed, and served to nineteen hundred soldiers and their friends, the following message from the King was read by Colonel F. H. Dorling, Colonel of the Regiment:—

"As Commander-in-Chief, I thank all ranks, past and present, of the Manchester Regiment for your loyal message, and I send the 1st Battalion my best wishes for their stay in Egypt."

This was in reply to a telegram sent to the King by Colonel Dorling, which read:—"On behalf of all ranks, past and present, of the Manchester Regiment and families assembling on October 14 to greet the 1st Battalion, who are passing through Southampton en route to Egypt, I forward the loyal duty of all to our Commander-in-Chief."

A well-dressed man, with tattooed arms, who was found dead in a disused tunnel leading from the East Cliff to the sands at Ramsgate on Saturday night, was identified last night as Frederick Walsh, whose last known address was Holland street, Brixton, London.

Life was just a misery to me, then I read about Phosferine, so thought I would try it and after taking it for about a week, I began to feel wonderfully better, so I continued taking it, and to my great joy, I was completely recovered. Whenever I get a slight bit run-down or over-tired, I just get a bottle of Phosferine, and am very soon quite alright again."

BROWN, THOMAS'S FASHION WEEK

MISS VERA SHEPSTONE'S TALKS

"How to be fashionable," is the title given to Miss Vera Shepstone's Fashion Week talks in the Fabric Hall of Brown, Thomas and Co., Ltd., Grafton street, Dublin. Miss Shepstone has been fashion announcer at the Daily Mail Pagent of Fashion and the Daily Sketch Fashion Shows, as well as fashion lecturer to many of London's leading shops.

Yesterday, before a large audience, she explained how easy it is to shop when everything is under one roof, and how inexpensively the woman of moderate means can look smart either by buying read-made garments or selecting a good pattern and then buying whatever material is best suited to individual requirements.

The rich colourings of the present season, combining wines, reds and greens, have been inspired by the Italian Exhibition, while the jewelled fashions arise from the same source. Peasant touches are seen in the wide sleeves and brilliant embroideries. For evening wear, Italian picture frocks, Grecian draperies, and richer materials, all play their part. At yesterday's talk several exact copies of film fashions worn by Loretto Young were shown.

This week the mannequins will parade daily in the tea rooms, during afternoon tea time, displaying the new Brown, Thomas fashions. Musical selections will be played by Miss Lucy Leenane's string orchestra.

SOUTHERN CHURCH FELLOWSHIP

Canon Guy Rogers, Rector of Birmingham, will be the principal speaker on "Evangelism" at a conference in St. Andrew's Hall, Suffolk street, this evening at 8.15. The Bishop of Ossory, Canon Hughes and Mr. A. T. Barber will open a discussion on "The Witness of the Church in our Parishes." The Bishop of Meath will preside and will welcome all members of the church, both men and women. Tea will be provided at 7.45.

A COUNTRY MARKET

An apple market and sale of country produce will be held to-morrow (Wednesday) in the C.M.S. Hall, Molesworth street, on behalf of the Medical Missions of the Church Missionary Society. The Society is responsible for the maintenance of sixty-seven hospitals and branch hospitals in Africa, India, China, Egypt, Palestine and Iran. These hospitals range in size from the large Hangchow Hospital, with its 500 beds, to small branch hospitals containing three or four beds, and ministering to the needs of large numbers of out-patients. The world-wide economic distress is making it increasingly difficult to meet the cost of these hospitals; and the market, of which particulars will be found in our advertising columns, is an effort to provide funds for this most worthy cause. There will be apples, vegetables, honey, cakes, etc., for sale at moderate charges, and light lunches and teas will be provided during the day.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

CALL-OVER CHANGES

Gordon Richards in Form: Likely Horses To-day

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Monday Night.

YET another favourite for the Cesarewitch was put up at the call-over of the card to-day. This time it was Mr. George Hartigan's Tommaok, who was backed down to 13 to 2, and left off a point and a-half shorter than last week's favourite, or one of last week's favourites, Woodstock.

In this case of Tommaok it is probable that there was some "insurance" money, because he was hastily knocked out in the market after he fell in the Newbury Cup with Gordon Richards.

In the meantime the horse has done well, and he is reported to have pulverised Polly Stephens in a private gallop; though what this amounts to I do not know, because Polly Stephens is not an enthusiastic worker on her own downs.

Furthermore, I doubt whether this mare is quite ready, and it was noticed that an offer of 33 to 1 against her at the call-over went begging.

Not Informative

Doreen Jane once more swopped places with Shining Cloud and was the better favourite. This Cesarewitch market has, on the whole, been more amusing than informative.

One thing has been made clear at any rate, and that is that there is no presumed "good thing" in the race, or one which the generality of the public, or for that matter the professional backers, can take to their hearts and stick to through thick and thin.

I believe that Quashed has pleased so much at home recently that her trainer greatly expects her to go one better than any filly has ever gone before in the Cesarewitch and win under 8st. 9lb.

At a Shorter Price

She was offered at 18 to 1 to-day, and it is likely that she will be at a shorter price on Wednesday when the betting opens on the course. There will be a general sifting of the wheat from the chaff then, and I am of opinion that there is a good deal of chaff to be blown away.

One thing in favour of the chance of Tommaok is that his jockey, Gordon Richards, is very fit and well—super-fit, one might say, because he marked his return to riding after an absence of exactly a fortnight by taking four races at Brighton this afternoon.

In one, the Princess Royal Stakes, which he won on Pelerine, an objection was lodged against him, but was not sustained.

There was nothing much interesting in the racing at Brighton, which was an extra date granted to the executive in recompense for the money they have spent on modernisation.

Selections

It will be vastly more interesting when we go to Newmarket for the beginning of the Second October Meeting to-morrow, and, the Champion Stakes will be run.

All those for which an acceptance has been declared are likely to turn out, and the four year-olds, Alcazar, Wychwood Abbot and Valerius, will oppose the classic three-year-olds, Robin Goodfellow and Buckleigh, second in the Derby and third in the St. Leger respectively, as well as Hairan and Portfolio.

If this were a handicap made by the Jockey Club's official, then, Wychwood Abbot would have more to do than he is confronted with, and, therefore, he should be regarded as a probable winner; but I have a great faith in improving three-year-olds at this season of the year.

Absent Since Goodwood

I would select Hairan if he had not been away from a racecourse for so long—since Goodwood—and, in the circumstances, I take BUCKLEIGH, who ran a really meritorious race when he finished third in the St. Leger, and has won since.

One may as well follow winning form and take COPPELIA as the likely winner of the Newmarket Oaks, but I believe there will be real danger to her from Mannerism.

The Alington Stakes may be won by DAN BULGER, and the Clearwell Stakes by HENRY THE FIFTH.

GALTEE MORE.

Wychwood Abbot First Choice for Champion Stakes

CESAREWITCH week is considered the second most important meeting at Newmarket. The most interesting race on the first day is the Champion Stakes, in which some of the leading three and four-year-olds match their speed.

The title is not apt this year, for neither Windsor Lad—4 years—nor Bahram—3 years—will be in the field. The best of the four-year-olds seems to be Wychwood Abbot, and the younger horses may be best represented by Robin Goodfellow. They meet on strict weight-for-age terms, so that Wychwood Abbot, last year's Cambridgeshire winner, has to concede 7lb. to Robin Goodfellow, second in the Derby this year.

It can be taken for granted that Wychwood Abbot is fit. He had a good preparation for the Duke of York Handicap, and is also being prepared for the Cambridgeshire. The weight may be too much for him in that race. He will make a good attempt to grasp the substance of to-day's race rather than wait for the shadow of a Cambridgeshire double.

Robin Goodfellow has been running well throughout the year. He has had a good rest since winning at Leicester over three weeks ago, so should not be "stale."

With this pair in the field, the others, in my opinion, can claim no deep consideration. Alcazar won easily at Nottingham the other day, but had little to beat. Portofino gave a poor show when running on this course earlier in the month. Buckleigh ran third in the St. Leger—well beaten by Bahram.

Hairan is useful, but would prefer a mile to this mile and a quarter. Valerius was well behind Pegasus last time out—no reproduction of his fine spring form. I shall give

After his display at the last meeting there is bound to be good support for

DAN BULGER

Gordon Richards seems to have gained renewed strength from his enforced rest. I think he will win the Clearwell Stakes on may find Fox Lair, Richards's mount, her most dangerous rival.

BUZZ FUZZ.

In the Newmarket Oaks my selection

COPPELIA

The Ditch Mile Nursery may be won by

RUBIS TOPAZE

and for the Visitors' Handicap

FEUD

(Gordon Richards) looks best.

LONDON BETTING

NEW CESAREWITCH FAVOURITE

TOMMAOK BACKED TO WIN ABOUT £9,000

A new favourite for the Cesarewitch was found yesterday at the call-over at the Victoria Club, London. This was Tommaok, the horse who fell when going well in the Newbury Autumn Cup and caused severe injuries to his jockey, Gordon Richards. He was backed to win about £9,000 at rates varying from 100 to 12 to 7 to 1: 13 to 2 was the final offer, which was not taken.

Woodstock was also in demand. He opened at 9 to 1, but quickly hardened to 8 to 1. He was backed to win about £8,000.

Doreen Jane was noticed at £1,000 to £100 (eight times), closing at 9 to 1, which price was taken. Shining Cloud had support at £1,000 to £75 and £1,000 to £80 (four times).

Lucky Patch went very well. He advanced from £1,000 to £60 (ten times) to 100 to 7 offered. Quashed had friends to win £8,000 at 1,000 to 75. Hoplite, Samarkand, Chrysler II., Near Relation and Hands Off were each noticed to win £4,000 at their quoted rates.

Not much business was done on the Cambridgeshire. Backers were not attracted by the price of 100 to 12 offered against the favourite, Pegasus. Not a bet was struck about him.

Law Court was supported at £100 to £7 (thirteen times). Finalist and The Blue Boy had backers to win £3,000 each.

NEWMARKET NOTES

NEWMARKET, Monday.

AFTER Saturday's heavy work, proceedings on the Heath to-day were quiet. Digby was on the Racecourse side, and, after his stripped gallop of yesterday, Hands Off took matters easily over six furlongs. Fitness will not be a barrier to his chance in the Cesarewitch, and, should the going be very soft, he will be well in the limelight.

I was not looking forward to Captain Whitaker's charge, Chrysler II., being a fighting factor. With Beary in the saddle, he covered one mile at half-speed with John James (C. Harrison). Stormpetal moved well with Knight of the Garden and Brush in a good five furlongs spin. Stormpetal has not been seen in public since finishing third to Nip Off in the Glasgow Nursery at Doncaster, but he has made nice headway since then, and should give a forward display in the Second October Nursery here on Wednesday.

C. Leader sent Bobsleigh seven furlongs at a nice pace with Guiscard, Highlander and Sedgemoor. After her good gallop on Saturday, the Cesarewitch candidate, Quashed, took matters easily over six furlongs. I shall keep Quashed on my side for Wednesday's important race.

Captain Boyd-Rochfort gave Woodstock, Alcazar and Bondsman a striding pace gallop over seven furlongs. Woodstock is in perfect trim, and it is quite obvious that he will make a bold bid for the Cesarewitch.

Frank Butters stripped Lucky Patch and Near Relation, and sent them seven furlongs at a striding pace. I am firmly of the opinion that Lucky Patch will play a prominent part in Wednesday's race. The Cambridgeshire candidate, Hairan, moved well in a nice seven furlongs spin with Vermeil II.

B. Jarvis has got the Cambridgeshire favourite, Pegasus, right up to concert pitch. He is a horse who, when once fit, does not require a lot of galloping work. With others of the team he cantered five furlongs twice.

T. E. Leader gave Black Grass filly and Philema a good five furlongs spin. Black Grass filly ran well at Yarmouth in June, and, having made good headway since, she holds a good winning chance in the Alington Stakes to-morrow. The danger to her may be Spinalot, whom H. Leader sent five furlongs with Scanderoon.

We shall have several runners for the Alington Stakes here to-morrow. I take Crested Crane, Black Grass filly and as our best, and Spinalot, who was narrowly beaten at the last Newmarket fixture by Kyles of Minard, is selected. Black Grass filly should give him a good race.

The going at Kempton Park was all against

WYCHWOOD ABBOT.

KING'S GAP (Next Best).

I prefer Limace to Penelophon and Buchanite for the Newmarket Stakes, but my vote goes to the improved

ORGANDIE.

As a son of Winalot, Cash may not be troubled by the distance of the Ditch Mile Nursery. Miss Noreen and Bedmaker gelding fought out the finish of the Abingdon Mile Nursery at our last fixture, and it should be a near thing between them; but I do not think that either will beat Shy Lassie colt, who ran well in that event, and can now meet them on much better terms. Belle Ferronniere colt, Kinclaven and Niloufer are fancied. I shall plump for SHY LASSIE COLT (Nap).

BADMINTON.

PROSPECTS FOR SEASON

Big Celebrations Planned for Branch Jubilee

LOCAL preparations for the badminton season are already well advanced, nearly all the Dublin clubs have begun their regular practice, and by the end of next week the Midland League will start operations. This seems rather late for opening, but undue crowding of fixtures may perhaps be avoided by keeping the sub-divisions of the various sections small. That would have the further effect of making the concluding stages of the competitions, in which the winners of sub-sections play off on the knock-out system, more prolonged and interesting. The closing date of entry for the Midland League is next Saturday, October 19, and club secretaries should send for entry forms to Mr. F. A. Jones, 3 St. Peter's road, Cabra, Dublin.

League matches represent the fun of the season to a great many club players, but in the case of clubs which play in one-court halls members not on the teams are apt to grumble if the hall is very frequently occupied by matches. On that account, also, small divisions are desirable. It is a sound maxim in club management that everyone should have full value, and those who, through lack of time or ability, do not play in league matches must have their chance.

A DISCORDANT NOTE

The numbers playing badminton continue to increase, while leagues, cup competitions and tournaments are steadily bringing up the standard of play. The annual general meeting of the Badminton Union of Ireland was held at the end of last month, instead of in April, as has been the custom in other years. A discordant note was struck by the Southern Branch, who, in reply to notices for the attendance of club representatives, wrote that they considered that, since the meeting was not convened within the month of April, as laid down in the rules, they considered that it was illegal. They said that, in view of this, no delegates would attend from the Southern Branch. The Hon. Secretary of the Union replied to that letter inviting a reconsideration of their decision, but up to the time of the meeting he had received no reply.

At the general meeting it was pointed out that the delegates then assembled had power to alter the rules, and that any irregularity of date might in this way be set right at once. The Hon. Secretary, however, said that the Southern Branch might feel aggrieved if this were done in their absence, and accordingly the meeting proceeded in the ordinary way, the clubs of the Midland and Northern branches being represented. The Hon. Secretary explained that there were several reasons why the meeting was not held last September, one being that all the accounts were not in at that time, and another that several important members of the Executive would have found it impossible to attend. These are, however, matters of administration. The public will feel more interest in the fact that the present Executive has arranged a programme for this season which bids fair to make it the most memorable in the history of the game in this country.

THE TOURNAMENT LIST

The usual big list of tournaments has been retained. We shall open in Dublin with the Irish Close Championship meeting some time this side of Christmas. After Christmas we shall have the Irish Open meeting at the Irish headquarters at Elm Park, and this will be specially attractive, because the international match between Ireland and England will form part of the programme. This means, of course, that all the best players in the world will engage in the championships. This season also we shall have the Midland Branch tournament, which has for some years been a very popular feature of the closing stages of the season. Last year, unfortunately, this tournament was abandoned on account of difficulties connected with the Dublin transport strike. So popular is the meeting that it would probably have proved a success in any case. However, the organisers thought it wiser not to risk it, but we may expect that nothing fortuitous will interfere with it this season.

We shall also play the annual international match with Wales, probably in December; and in January the international match between Scotland and Ireland is due to be played in Glasgow during the Scottish Open Championship Tournament. The usual inter-provincial matches and Cup fixtures are in course of arrangement, and they have their big list of tournaments in the North of Ireland.

THE NORTHERN BRANCH

The great event of the season in the North of Ireland—and, indeed, in the world of badminton—will be the celebration of the Silver Jubilee of the Northern Branch. The Badminton Union of Ireland, founded in 1899, is the oldest national organisation in badminton, and the Northern Branch, founded twenty-five years ago, is the oldest sub-division of a national organisation. The Northern Branch was founded, indeed, before the second National Association, that of Scotland, was formed, and it thus occupies a unique position. It was taken as a model in forming the Midland and Southern branches of the Irish Union. Similar sub-divisions of the Scottish and Welsh Unions have followed, and in England County Associations on the same lines have been formed.

The Northern branch area is as completely organised as is possible, while travelling teams have been sent outside the area as first badminton visitors to such countries as Denmark, Holland, Norway, Sweden and France. The Council of the Irish Union were anxious to celebrate this event in a special manner, and they appointed a committee to take the matter in hand. It is proposed to hold the celebration in Belfast on Friday and Saturday, November 8 and 9, and it will take the form of an invitation tournament and a match on what may be described as super-international lines.

For the invitation tournament only players of international standard will be included. Doubles will be played, all the greatest players in the home countries will take part, and support has been promised by the continental countries in which badminton is played. The play in this tournament may, therefore, be expected to reach a higher level than any in the past history of the game.

The international match will take the form of a contest in which England, who have never lost a match in the ordinary series, will oppose a team picked from Ireland, Scotland, and Wales, and this, too, should be an event of quite exceptional interest. It will thus be seen that from now till next April Irish badminton players will be fully occupied, and that the events provided offer a wide field, which should apply to every class in all parts of the country.

GOLF

MUNN AND MISS WILSON

Irish Players in Worplesdon Mixed Foursomes

On the long driving capabilities of women golfers depended the issue of many matches at Worplesdon, Surrey, yesterday in the first round of the Worplesdon open mixed foursomes tournament.

Girls of championship class from seven countries standing on the same teeing ground as their male partners and opponents drove the ball a remarkable distance down the fairway, and there was little evidence of the weaker sex in the power with which they dislodged it from the tangled masses of fern and heather.

Of the men with powerful and consistent partners the most fortunate was Lionel Munn, who, with Miss Enid Wilson, the former lady champion, won 8 and 7 against Miss Julia Hill and R. D. Broughton.

Miss Wilson, despite her abstention from competitive golf, drove against Broughton and out-distanced him from the tee, while the quality of her shots up to the flag inspired Munn to produce his best putting form.

Almost as comfortable a victory was gained by last year's winners, Miss Molly Gourlay and T. A. Torrance, an international pair, who beat Guy Bennett (Sunningdale) and his wife by 8 and 6. A stroke of luck at the third, where Torrance holed out from a bunker to give his side the lead when they appeared likely to lose the hole, began a procession in which Miss Gourlay played a prominent part. Her side were level fours for the twelve holes played.

Two women golfers from America were among the losers. Miss Grace Amory and her partner, Captain R. A. Wilson, lost surprisingly to two London golfers, Miss M. Cohen and H. L. Turner, and Miss Iselin and Eric Martin Smith were beaten by an Anglo-Scottish pair, Mrs. George Coats and Rex Hartley.

A woman spectator was standing in the heather watching a match when a ball driven from another tee struck her on the back of the head. A doctor dressed the wound, which he described as not dangerous, but on his advice the spectator returned home. The last game was held up at the home hole when a ball played by J. C. Hanson Lawson, the Oxford Blue, finished behind a motor car. Before Miss Rieben, the Welsh champion, could play the next shot the owner of the car had to be called from the clubhouse to remove the vehicle. Miss Rieben played the shot, and her side won the hole for the match.

THE IRISH PLAYERS

Miss E. Pentony (Hermitage) and A. Raworth (West Hill) lost to Miss Garnham (Naye) and A. S. Thompson (Aldeburgh)—6 and 5.

Miss E. Wilson (Notts.) and L. O. Munn (Royal Cinque Ports) beat Miss J. Hill (West Hill) and H. Delves Broughton (Worplesdon)—8 and 7.

Mrs. Shiffield and Commander H. W. Jackson (Hayling) lost to Mrs. Charles (Sunningdale) and H. S. Mitchell (West Gate)—1 up.

Miss C. Tiernan and D. S. Gordon (Co. Louth) beat Miss R. Rabbidge (Royal Mid-Surrey) and J. S. Morrison (Sunningdale)—6 and 4.

Miss Montgomery (St. Rule) and Major G. N. Martin (Royal Portrush) beat Miss Newell (Worplesdon) and K. S. Morrice (Sunningdale)—4 and 3.

Miss B. Daniell (Berkshire) and W. L. Steele (Royal St. George's) beat Miss D. Ferguson (Royal County Down) and J. V. Moberley (Royal North Devon) at the nineteenth.

Among the partnerships to meet with unexpected defeat were Miss Mervyn Barton and D. H. R. Martin, Miss Doris Park and L. G. Garnett, and Miss Bridget Newell and K. A. Morrice.

The entry was a record one of 216 pairs, but Miss Joyce Wethered was absent for the first time for many years. She won the event eight times with various partners.

LADIES 9 UP AT THE GRANGE

LADY GRANARD CUP WON BY KILKENNY

By Our Golf Correspondent.

Like all inland greens, the Grange is playing heavy and sticky, but "winter conditions" (cleaning and placing through the fairway) operated for the final of the Lady Granard Cup yesterday.

When this competition was instituted in 1933 for the benefit of the Richmond National Institution for the Blind it was won by Kilkenny, and now the trophy was regained for the club by Mrs. Todd and Mrs. Hackett with the remarkable score of nine up, a return which probably has not been equalled in a women's open fourball in this country.

Mrs. Todd played an inspiring game for her partner, who responded right well and made excellent use of her strokes. The best golf was, as a matter of fact, played by the Internationalist, who, holing out on every green, had the magnificent score of 72. The ladies' card gives the length of the course as 5,168 yards and bogey as 75 (76 in winter), and Mrs. Todd's figures were:— 2 3 4 6 4 3 5 3 5=35; 5 2 3 4 5 4 5 5 4=37.

Presenting the Cup, Mrs. Mitchell, a Vice-President of the I.L.G.U., thanked the players and clubs for their hearty co-operation. The Richmond Institution for the Blind, she remarked, is a charity that must appeal to all golfers. It was a terrible thing to think of the blind and their affliction, and she was therefore, delighted at the help the lady golfers had given the Institution during the last three years. In the first year (1933) thirty-nine clubs competed and thirteen were represented in the final, the charity benefiting by £81 5s. Last year there was a drop of twelve clubs, with only fourteen in the final, the receipts being £55; but twenty-eight qualified for the present competition, of which twenty-five took part in the final. They had been able to forward in three years £195 18s. to the Institution, but she thought they could accomplish a deal more, and hoped every one would do her utmost next year in the clubs to encourage the competition. No matter how small the entry it would help; if they could not play in the final, they could play in the club competition. She thanked the Grange Club for its generosity and hospitality; the final and the competition itself had been a great success.

The leading returns were:—

Kilkenny—Mrs. Todd (scr.) and Mrs. Hackett (14)—9 up.
Woodbrook—Mrs. Scully (28) and Mrs. Walsh (19)—5 up.
Rathfarnham—Mrs. Bryan (28) and Miss Blue (29)—4 up.
Dun Laoghaire—Miss N. Donnellan (13) and Miss M Donnellan (10)—2 up.
Milltown—Miss J. Nolan and Miss Buckley (19)—1 up.
Bray—Mrs. Craig (15) and Miss Pim (13)—1 up.

THE POWER OF THE BALL

CLUBS FORCED TO EXTEND THEIR COURSES

For the first time in history a golf championship is to be played on a British course more than 7,000 yards long.

The links of the Royal Liverpool Club at Hoylake (Cheshire), where the Open Championship will be played during the week beginning June 22 next year, will be extended to nearly 7,100 yards by the construction of six new teeing grounds. The course at present measures 6,853 yards, and is the second longest on the championship rota, first place being held by Prince's Sandwich with 6,890 yards.

Major H. C. Forbes-Bell, the secretary of the club, states that the alterations have been planned to keep pace with the improved power of the modern rubber-cored ball.

"Holes of just under or just over 400 yards are almost useless as tests for present-day professional golfers," said Major Forbes-Bell, "and the additional length will demand longer second shots at holes which in recent years have been reached comfortably with a drive and a mashie. This season there have been many scores in the 60's, and we are determined that only superlative play will produce a card of under 70 in the open next year."

THE POSITION IN THIS COUNTRY

The Royal Liverpool Club is not, however, the only club on a national championship rota that is making preparations to cope with the ever-increasing power of the ball and the steel-shafted clubs. The same problem is being considered by the Irish clubs. Royal Portrush, in planning the new links, made ample provision for present and future requirements in the matter of length, and can, if necessary, extend the course to 7,000 yards for championships.

The Committee of the Royal Dublin Club, in view of next year's championships—the Irish Open in July and the Open Amateur in September—contemplate the lengthening of several holes to an extent that will really test the "tigers." Longer tees will be constructed, for instance, for the third (alps), tenth and fourteenth holes, and, if necessary, other holes can be made much longer. Portmarnock can also be stretched to 7,000 yards if the occasion demands it.

Perhaps before it becomes necessary for clubs on the championship rotas to resort to such costly expedients in order to counteract the effect of the modern balls and clubs the Royal and Ancient Club will have made up their minds to assert their authority, once and for all, over the ball manufacturers by standardising a ball at least for championships.

RUGBY FOOTBALL

O'REILLY PROMINENT AT MANCHESTER

BROUGHTON PARK 5 LANSDOWNE ... 9

Lansdowne were popular visitors to Manchester yesterday, and even the fact that they failed at Kendal on Saturday did not detract from the attractive nature of their fixture with Broughton Park at Pendleton. This time the Dublin club won by a penalty goal and 2 tries to a goal. The Park are not the strongest of the Manchester district clubs, but they obtained the services of Claude Davey, the Welsh International, who played at fly-half; C. B. Holmes, a speedy wing, who has appeared in the Lancs' side, and Herbert Toft, the Lancs. and England trial hooker. Lansdowne did not turn out their best side—the absence of Dr. Morgan Crowe in particular was greatly regretted. They accomplished a useful performance, especially as it was not until late in the game that their defence was penetrated. Then Holmes, who had been injured, scored after a fine run, and Davey converted with a great kick from the touch line.

Lansdowne were the lighter team on the whole, but what they lacked in weight they made up for in pace, skill and superior team work, as shown by their clever backing up. Even so, the Park would have been more successful in spite of good tackling had Holmes, in particular, not been crowded so much on to the touch line when on the move. He is about the fastest wing in the North of England, as he showed when he scored his try.

The Lansdowne backs were all good, with Arigho and Fitzpatrick clever in the three-quarters line. O'Reilly was a clever scrum and was the chief source of danger to the Park defence, while Pratt was his usual reliable self at full-back. The Rev. St. J. Pike, Sinnott and Hogan were generally conspicuous in a pack which held their own and were often seen in rousing rushes which got the Park defence into difficulties.

The Park tackling was reliable, and the side as a whole were better in the second half, when their rear division handled much better than they had done earlier on. Crewe, a candidate for a Lancs. "cap," Dorney and Pearson played hard and well in the pack. If not so clever as O'Reilly, Carter was a good scrum-half. Davey was not so brilliant at fly-half as he usually is in the centre, but he made great efforts to get his three-quarters in motion, though he might with advantage have tried to cut through more than he did. Hope was the best of the three-quarters, always having an eye to an opening, and Bolt was quite safe at full-back.

Fitzpatrick scored a try for Lansdowne in the first half and Pratt kicked a penalty goal, while half-way through the second half O'Reilly scored in the corner from a scrum. Teams:—

Lansdowne—R. H. Pratt; E. J. Lightfoot, J. E. Arigho, J. Cagney, J. J. Fitzpatrick; M. J. Burke, T. A. O'Reilly; Rev. St. J. Pike, T. P. Sinnott, T. P. Hogan, J. McDermott, E. Gleeson, M. J. Ryan, G. A. Robinson, J. C. Powell.

ASSOCIATION FOOTBALL

IRISH TEAM TO MEET ENGLAND

BAMBRICK TO LEAD THE ATTACK

The Irish team for the match against England next Saturday will not meet with universal approval. The I.F.A. did not disclose names of players not released by cross-Channel clubs, but apparently Cook (Everton) was not available for back, and Alex Stevenson, of the same club, was not released. The selectors do not seem to have made a wise move in taking McCullough from the half-back line to the forwards. His height would have been utilised to better advantage at half-back. The wing half-backs are on the small side, but Browne, who played well for the Irish League, had been out of the Derry City team through illness before he crossed to Leeds last week. The fact that Bambrick has been released gives intense satisfaction. The team is:—

Goal—Scott (Belfast Celtic)

Backs—Reid (Derry City), Allen (Cliftonville).

Reserve—Gowdy (Linfield).

Scott, Allen, Jones, Browne and Kelly were members of the Irish League XI. that beat the Football League at Blackpool last month. Allen and Browne are new to international honours.

PROBABLE GERMAN XI.

SIDE THAT MAY MAKE TRIP TO ENGLAND

Germany believes she has found a team to meet England in London on December 4. It will be tried out at Leipzig on Sunday against Bulgaria, and is:—

Goal—Buchloh;

Backs—Muenzenberg (Alemannia, Aix-la-Chapelle), Haringer (Wacker, Munich);

Half-backs—Gramlich (Eintracht, Frankfort), Goldbrunner (Bayern, Munich), Warnken (Komet, Bremen);

Forwards—Lehner (Schwaben, Augsburg), Giffling (Waldhoff, Mannheim), Portgen (Schalke 04), Szepan (Schalke 04), Simetsreitzer (Bayern, Munich).

Germany has a sound and resolute defence in Buchloh, Muenzenberg and Haringer, who have often played for their country at home and abroad. Portgen is a dashing leader, and he and Szepan (inside left) have helped to make their club champions of Germany for the last two years. The other players are not so well known, and whether they are chosen for the trip to England depends on how they shape against Bulgaria.

BOXING

JACKIE BROWN'S RETURN

BERT KIRBY BEATEN AT BIRMINGHAM

Jackie Brown (Manchester), the ex-world fly-weight champion, beat Bert Kirby (Birmingham), a former holder of the British title, in the last of a twelve rounds contest at Birmingham last night, the referee stopping the bout midway through the final round to prevent Kirby from taking further punishment. The match was at 8st. 6lb.

This was Brown's first appearance in the ring since he lost his championship to Benny Lynch. Kirby put up a game display, considering that he had to arrange to box Brown less than a fortnight ago. He took the place of Tom Pardoe (Birmingham), the Southern area fly-weight champion, who withdrew owing to an attack of tonsilitis.

Brown, who took the fly-weight championship from Kirby, scored points freely in the first three rounds, and there were indications that the contest would be a one-sided affair, but at length Kirby landed a good blow and he fought back with grit. In the fourth round Kirby forced matters, and afterwards he fought well with both hands. Brown, in the sixth round, rushed Kirby to the ropes, but the Birmingham man gave punch for punch, and some of Kirby's swings seemed to carry more sting than those of Brown.

At one time in that round both men appeared to be rather shaky. Brown showed himself to be the cleverer at close quarters, and in the last three rounds he inflicted considerable punishment on Kirby. At the beginning of the last round it seemed certain that the pair would box the full distance, but Brown forced Kirby into a corner and he landed a succession of blows with both hands before Mr. Deyong stopped the contest.

OTHER BOUTS LAST NIGHT

Dave Crowley (Clerkenwell), the Southern area feather-weight champion, beat Kid Farle (Stepney) in the third round at the Devonshire Sporting Club, London. The match was at 9st. 10lb. and for ten rounds. Crowley conceded height and weight.

BERG AND WALSH TO MEET

Events connected with the light-weight championship were taken a step further by the Stewards of the British Boxing Board of Control at a meeting in London last night. Representations had been made, following Harry Mizler's recent win at Albert Hall London, over Gustave Humery, of France, that Kid Berg and Mizler might meet at Wembley Stadium on November 5 for the title, now held by Berg. The Stewards decided that the match between Berg and Jimmy Walsh, of Chester, the official contender, should stand.

DUBLIN UNCERTAIN

GUINNESS DULL

ALLIANCE GAS HIGHER

There was a little more business passing on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday, but the tone was rather uncertain. Irish issues made an irregular showing and British Industrials were on the dull side.

The National Loans held steady, but Land Bonds lost 7s. 6d War Loan fell 6s. 3d., Corporation issues held up well.

Home Rails showed little life.

Crowe Wilson Ord. further improved, but Carroll Ord. lost 1s. Other changes were very small.

Tobaccos developed a weak tone on some selling and "Bats" and Imperials finished appreciably lower. Coats Ord. relapsed to 61s. 9d., but Courtaulds improved. Ford Motors, Imperial Chemicals and Vickers Ord. all marked small losses.

LONDON UNDECIDED

BRITISH RAILS ADVANCE

With political considerations operating against sentiment, operators on the London Stock Markets yesterday were not disposed to enter into fresh commitments, and in consequence trading was of modest proportions. At the outset an easier tendency prevailed in most sections, but in the later stages of the session there was an inclination to buy at the reduced levels, with the result that a partial rally occurred.

BRITISH FUNDS

Business in the gilt-edged market was on small lines and prices moved irregularly. Old Consols, after declining to 82, closed fractionally easier at 82¼, while War Loan, Funding Loan, and one or two others were able to show slight improvements. India Stocks received quiet support and were generally ½ better.

FOREIGN BONDS

Among Foreign Bonds buying of Germans was resumed and higher prices were quoted for certain Greek and Far Eastern descriptions. On the other hand, Brazilians were out of favour and inclined to sag.

RAILS

Although conditions in the British Rail group were quiet the tone continued firm, and several issues again advanced. Southerns were in demand in anticipation of the rating appeal, and the Preferred added ½ to 76, while the Deferred were ¼ higher at 19⅛. Foreign Rails came in for little attention, and the only movement of note was a decline in San Paulo Ordinary. Colonial and American Rails displayed an easier appearance. Among the latter Union Pacific dropped 2 to 92½.

Some dealers in the Industrial market were fairly busy, but there was no general activity, speculative buying being restrained by events at Geneva. Among the interesting features was a revival of interest in Textile issues on reports of improved trading conditions and continued support for Shipping shares. The demand for the latter was based mainly on the recent advance in freight rates, but partly on the belief that sanctions against Italy will help British shipping companies. The fact that the Motor Show opens this week caused an inquiry for Motor shares. Iron and Steels presented a steady front, but Aircrafts were irregular.

MINES

The Mining Market received more attention than other departments, and several good features were to be seen. Advices from the Cape resulted in an early rise in Kaffirs, but towards the finish profit-taking was responsible for irregularity. West Africans were generally firm and several rises occurred in Westralians. Base metal issues moved in undecided fashion, and closed without important change.

Business in the Oil Share was mostly of a selling nature, the recent sharp improvements in some shares causing profit-taking, and with few exceptions quotations were lowered.

IRISH PHARMACEUTICALS, LIMITED

The third annual meeting of the shareholders of Irish Pharmaceuticals, Ltd., was held at Wynn's Hotel, Dublin, on October 9th, when there was a representative attendance. Mr. C. J. Cremen, chairman of the company, presided. The directors' report and statement of accounts disclosed a successful year's trading. The turnover showed a substantial increase, and the gross and net profit was well maintained.

The Chairman, referring to last year, said it was evident from the report that the success of their initial efforts had not only been well maintained, but that the element of doubt had been entirely eliminated. It also indicated that the company had been established on such a sound basis as to ensure its prominent participation in the industrial development of the country. The report before them was even more gratifying, and the Board feel that the way has been paved for accelerating the expansion of the company's activities. The substantial increase in the issued share capital was alone sufficient proof of the confidence which the company enjoyed. When so much had been achieved in the most difficult and trying period of their existence, it was comparatively easy to visualise the position three years hence. In this respect it must be borne in mind that their business is not dependent on tariffs or import quotas—it had been established on the most reliable and lasting basis—efficiency, quality and merit.

Mr. S. McCauley, managing director, moving the adoption of the report, said the figures required no elaboration; they showed plainly that the company was going ahead. They had now made a successful entry into one of the most difficult markets of all—cosmetics, and in four months they had accomplished what had taken others years to do. They had killed the belief that high-class cosmetics could not be manufactured in Ireland. All available Irish raw materials were used in the manufacture of their goods, and they had reached a point where fully 75 per cent. of their turnover represents money kept in the country. It was unnecessary to emphasise the value of the indirect employment they are giving in other industries. The amount of net profit was equivalent to 10 per cent. of the capital invested, which was surely a healthy outlook for a three years old firm.

On the motion of Mr. P. Brady, seconded by Mr. T. Burke, the retiring directors, Messrs. Patrick Cahill and C. J. Cremen, were re-elected. The retiring auditor, Mr. J. Grehan, was unanimously reappointed.

On the motion of Mr. Brady, a hearty vote of thanks to the chairman was passed.

THE INDUSTRIAL MARKET

SHIPPING ISSUES ACTIVE ARMAMENTS EASIER

Although there was not a great deal of fresh business passing in the Industrial Market yesterday, the general tone continued fairly cheerful. A little profit-taking caused some irregularity during the afternoon, but the majority of movements on balance again favoured holders.

Cable and Wireless stocks received further support in the early dealings, but profit-taking caused prices to slip back to around Friday's closing levels. Iron and Steel descriptions responded only mildly to the peak steel output figures for September, business generally being of a quiet character. Whitehead, however, continued in request on good trading reports and dividend hopes. B.S.A., Vickers and Babcock and Wilcox all finished easier.

AIRCRAFTS IRREGULAR

Aircraft and kindred descriptions were quiet, and developed an irregular tendency. Bristol Aeroplane reacted, and losses occurred in Rolls-Royce and De Havilland.

A fair amount of interest continued to be taken in Motor shares, possibly in view of the opening of the Motor Show this week. Austins came into good demand, and Standards also improved.

Apart from Telegraph Construction, which declined 6d., Electrical Equipments were firm.

There was a fair amount of interest in the Textile group, and some inquiry caused prices to advance. Bleachers were higher on balance, while Fine Spinners were also a very firm spot. Among Rayons, Courtaulds came in for renewed attention and finished 4½d. higher, but American Celanese lost ⅛. British Celanese issues showed little variation.

Drapery and Departmental Stores shares did not develop any definite trend. Marks and Spencers were steady, but Woolworths were a few pence off.

UNILEVERS SUPPORTED.

There were a few bright spots among Provision and Catering descriptions. Unilever came in for support, while the N.V. improved. International Tea were also in demand.

Breweries gave a mixed display. Supporting orders were received for Simonds, Ind Coope, and Courage; but Bass Ratcliff gave way.

The recent advance in freight rates attracted further buyers to Shipping issues. Lamport and Holt Debentures closed 2½ higher at 45½, and African Steam Ship Debentures changed hands up to 77. P. and O. Deferred gained 7½d. at 19s. 4½d., while E.D. and R.M. Realisation also met with additional inquiry.

Business in the Miscellaneous section was rather restricted, and prices moved in irregular fashion. Spillers issues were again favoured. United Molasses, on the other hand, were dull. Dunlop Rubbers declined to 35s. 4½d. Triplex Glass, however, hardened to 3 11/16. British Aluminiums were a few pence lower, but the Swedish issues, British Match, and Levers Preferences were in fair request.

OIL MARKET SMALL

Oil shares started the week in extremely quiet fashion, there being barely sufficient business passing to influence prices during the early hours. Mainly owing to lack of fresh buying, prices were allowed to slip away during the morning, while about midday small Continental sales of Shells and Royal Dutch were encountered, which gave the market as a whole a dull appearance. During the afternoon, however, a better tendency developed. Business, however, remained on a small scale, and leading counters were mostly down on balance. Attocks had a sharp rise, a good demand finding the shares in small supply.

RUBBERS ACTIVE

With the commodity price continuing to improve, active conditions developed in the Rubber share market yesterday, and many issues made fresh headway. Sedenak were outstanding with a gain of 1s. 10½d. to 23s. 9d., while others which showed up well included Pataling, Telegoredjo, Malacca and F.M.S. Among the low-priced shares Yam Seng were 1½d. higher at 2s. 3d. In the commodity section trading was moderate, with spot rubber selling at 6 5/16d. per lb. United Kingdom stocks of rubber decreased by 837 tons last week.

CENTRAL HOTEL COMPANY

The annual meeting of the above company was held at the Central Hotel, Exchequer street, Dublin, yesterday. There was a small attendance of shareholders.

The Chairman, Mr. A. H. Huet, in proposing the adoption of the report and statement of accounts for the year ended 30th June, 1935, stated that business in all departments continues to increase; but for the prolonged tram and 'bus strike the results shown would have been much better. The company has been enabled to clear their loan capital, which will mean a considerable saving. Therefore, providing that normal trading is possible during the next twelve months, really satisfactory results should be shown in the company's next balance sheet.

The motion was seconded by Mr. John Hall Cooper and adopted.

Mr. Cooper moved that a dividend of 5 per cent. per annum, less income tax, be paid on the ordinary share capital of the company for the twelve months ended 30th June, 1935, and this was seconded by Dr. Davitt, T.D., and adopted.

Dr. Robert E. Davitt, T.D., the retiring director, was re-elected upon the motion of Mr. A. H. Huet, who described him as a "great asset to the company."

The auditors of the company, Messrs. Craig, Gardner and Co., were re-appointed.

The meeting concluded with a vote of thanks to the chairman, directors and staff.

THE MONEY MARKET

DISCOUNTS EASY

Conditions in Lombard Street were unchanged yesterday. There was a quiet demand for advances until to-day at ½ per cent., while bill rates kept steady at Saturday's levels. Fine three months' maturities were no better than ⅝ per cent., and dealings in the "hot" Treasuries were on the basis of 9/16 per cent.

Gold to the value of £340,000 was disposed of in the bullion market at the price of 141s. 9½d. per fine oz., being ½d. higher than Saturday's price. There was no premium on the dollar at 4.90⅜, and the premium over the franc was slightly higher at 7d. on an exchange rate of 74 7/16.

Comparatively quiet conditions were experienced in the foreign exchange market yesterday, most quarters showing reluctance to enter into fresh commitments pending some clarification of the international situation. Movements in rates were within narrower limits than for some time, and although this was partly due to the vigilance of the Control, who again pegged the sterling franc exchange immediately after the opening of the market, there were signs that the flow of funds from Europe to New York was slowing down. At the close of business nearly all the principal currencies, including the dollar, were barely altered in relation to sterling. Speculative business was similarly on a small scale. Apart from a further rise in the nominal discounts quoted on the lira, forward quotations were usually almost unaltered.

Rand Mining Taxation

The Johannesburg Correspondent of the Financial News writes:—The Mine Taxation Committee has made substantial progress towards the completion of its task. It has taken a great deal of written and oral evidence, and has examined a large number of witnesses. It is learned that the evidence so far submitted to the committee makes out the strongest case for the replacement of the present formula system by an outright straight tax on profits. Authoritative opinion does not share the fear expressed in some quarters that a flat tax would be open to abuse, unless there was some guarantee ensuring the continuance of the present low-grade ore policy. The grade, it is held, is governed by the price of gold, which itself guarantees the mining of the lowest grade ore consistent with a sound mining policy. Rand mines are at present undermining owing to the benefits obtainable under the formula system, which encourages to a ridiculous extent the use of low-grade ores.

"Rubber Facts and Figures"

The October issue of this valuable little handbook has just been issued by F. C. Mathieson and Sons, 16 Copthall avenue, E.C.2 (2s.), and it is not necessary to add that it is quite up-to-date and thoroughly reliable.

Swedish Trade

Hambros Bank report from Stockholm states:—Timber: Lately (says "Svensk Trävarutidning") business has been concentrated on the British market, where active building operations provide for ample consumption of wood of all kinds and qualities. The need for u/s redwood is particularly prominent this autumn, and most inquiries are for such. Sales from Sweden up to the end of September are estimated at about 675,000 standards. It does not seem as if the auctions of wood from the Swedish Crown Forests will be nearly as large this year as in the previous years. This does not mean, however, that the supply of raw material for the saw and pulp mills will be excessively reduced compared with previous years. "Domänstyrelsen," the Government Department administering the Crown Forests, will itself arrange for considerable lumbering operations, which it is estimated will supply some 24,000,000 cubic feet of raw material for the mills in two districts alone—i.e., the upper and lower Norrbotten districts. The political tension resulting from the war between Italy and Abyssinia has had no marked effect, good or bad, on the paper market, according to "Svensk Pappersmassetidning." The slightly increased activity compared with the immediately preceding months is probably mostly due to the usual recovery in the autumn after the summer lull in business.

Investors Second General Trust

Investors Second General Trust, in an advertisement in this issue, points out that the yields of 5¼ per cent. is the gross annual return at the present price of sub-units calculated only on the dividends paid by the companies in the past year. The list of securities is published in the announcement, and it will be seen that all these concerns are good dividend-payers, and each is considered by itself a sound investment. The investment is readily marketable, as under the terms of the trust deed the managers are under an obligation to purchase sub-units at any time.

To-day's Drawing of Land Bonds

Four and a half per cent. Land Bonds (Reg.), British Government Series, to the nominal value of £171,870, will be drawn in the National City Bank, Dublin, to-day. The serial numbers of the Bonds drawn will be published in the "Iris Oifigiuil" before the end of the present month, and these Bonds will be paid off at par, together with interest accrued up to the 1st January next.

LONDON "STREET" MARKET

Only a small volume of business was transacted in the "street" market, and prices revealed little change. Internationals, where altered, were easier. Nickels changed hands around 31⅞; Tractions were a shade lower at 7 11/16, and Radios gave way to 7⅝. Steels lost ¼ to 45¼, Anaconda receded to 4 11/16, and "Emmies" were mentioned at 25s. 3d. "Canadas" held at 9⅝, but Chryslers were offered at 80½, General Motors being dealt in at 49. American Celanese were maintained at 5½.

LONDON MINING MARKET

GOLD SHARES MOSTLY HIGHER

Happenings over the week-end were not such as to stimulate market activity generally. The Mining Market, however, reopened under cheerful conditions, and as there was a fair accumulation of public orders over the week-end, prices generally had an upward trend. Indeed, in several departments fairly substantial gains were scored. The demand, however, did not last long, and as soon as the outside inquiries began to abate values slipped back virtually all along the line.

The tone, however, remained steady, and as regards Kaffirs early buying here was supplemented by a demand from the Cape for certain of its specialities. Several of the older counters were being picked up, but on the other hand, many shares which have recently been prominent were subject to realisations, and the list at the close presented a somewhat irregular appearance.

Diamonds remained very quiet, and the De Beers issues fell away in the absence of any news regarding the steps which may, or may not, be taken to deal with the arrears of Preference dividend.

While there was a decided increase in the demand for many of the West Africans during the early hours and the general tone of the market was quite strong, inquiries later tailed off and prices closed below the best.

A better tendency developed in the Australian section, where Commonwealth strengthened under the influence of news regarding developments on Yellowdine at the 100-foot level, especially in the South Drive.

Although tin was the only one of the base metals to show an improvement on the day the share market was not particularly impressed. There was, however, still a steady demand for several Malayan concerns, and, supplies being short, prices advanced. Elsewhere base metal descriptions were not much in evidence. Closing prices:—

Bidding was very strong and general, Yorkshire, Continental and Japanese representatives all being in the market. Prices were fully equal to last week's closing rates. DIVIDENDS AND REPORTS

Anglo-Burma Tin Company.—The profit from the mine advanced from £30,696 to £38,205, and the net profit comes out £8,221 higher at £30,306. After bringing in £5,736, there is a total of £36,042. The dividend is raised by 5 per cent. to 35 per cent., and after writing off £4,500 of property account and £1,485 for prospecting, there remains a balance of £5,728 to go forward.

Anglo-South American Bank.—In their report for the year to June 30 last the directors of the Anglo-South American Bank state that, as in the previous year, provision for bad debts has been made out of contingency account. Gross earnings declined from £976,390 to £912,992, while expenses, including fees, were reduced from £894,362 to £854,382, and £21,591, as against £21,245, was reserved for rebate on bills not yet due. The surplus was thus £23,763 lower at £37,020, to which was added £158,962 brought in, making available £195,982. A sum of £7,793, against £5,063, is transferred to legal reserves, and £29,227, against £57,720, placed to contingency account, while the balance of £158,962 (equal to the amount brought in) will be carried forward. Any advantages which the bank might have obtained from the improvement in the internal trade of the country were offset by further depreciation in the exchange and by legislation for protection of debtors, and it is stated that there are now few countries where the bank operates and where business is not subject to arbitrary and often unfair interference. Total assets show a decline of £3,133,877 at £35,385,135, partly owing to the conversion of assets and liabilities in Chile at the export rate of 118.25 pesos to the £1, whereas last year the then official rate of 49 pesos was used. The cash items have declined from £7,319,862 to £6,099,668. British Government securities from £874,773 to £703,120, and advances from £12,669,722 to £12,125,203. Deposits were £1,788,805 smaller at £22,796,475. The dividend on the 5 per Cent. Cumulative Preference shares has not been paid since July 1, 1932.

Ayer Panas Rubber.—Payment of 2½ per cent., against 4 per cent.

Korale Tea Estates.—The accounts for the year ended June 30 last show that net profits declined from £6,412 to £1,904, while £2,900 was brought in. The Preference dividend requires £2,934, leaving £1,870 to be carried forward. The restricted tea crop secured amounted to 693,583lb. The dividend on the Ordinary shares was 5 per cent. for 1930-31.

Keystone Knitting Mills (1928).—Gross profits during the year to June 30 last increased from £42,990 to £47,541. After deducting expenses and depreciation, which together totalled £36,529, compared with £37,045, and again allowing £700 for fees, there remained a net profit of £10,312, which compares with £9,245 for the preceding twelve months. After adding the debit of £8,062 brought in to write £2,000 off preliminary expenses, and carry forward the balance of £250, now proposed to write, as is stated, showed a satisfactory increase for the company, and the dividend on the 8 per Cent. Cumulative Participating Preferred shares has been paid to June 30, 1929. The Ordinary shares has not been paid since ....

Midland Tar Distillers.—Profit £44,588, against £43,128. Final dividend on Ordinary shares of 2½ per cent., tax free, making 5 per cent. (same), £15,083; to obsolescence and depreciation reserve £12,500, to general reserve £5,000, leaving £22,078, against £12,610 brought in.

Price's Trust Co.—Dividend on 5½ per cent. Cumulative Preference shares for half-year will be paid on November 15, 1935.

Rantau Tin Dredging.—Dividend of 6 per cent. on Preference shares.

Stockholders' Investment Trust.—Dividend of 3½ per cent., less tax, on the 5 per cent. Cumulative Preference stock. Last year a dividend of 2½ per cent., less tax, was paid on the Preference stock, and arrears of 8½ per cent. then remained. The last Ordinary stock dividend was a total of 5 per cent. for 1930-31.

Tanganyika Minerals.—Shareholders are informed that the chairman has now returned from his visit to the property in Tanganyika, and the board are satisfied that prospects are encouraging. Considerable development work has been carried out on the company's principal property at Kungutas, and on the advice of the company's consulting engineers the board are arranging for the installation of plant to treat 50 tons a day, which it is hoped will be in operation early in the new year. Negotiations are in progress for the acquisition of further options in the Lupa Field.

United Sua Betong Rubber.—Interim dividend of 5 per cent. (against 6¼ per cent.).

Venesta.—Trading profits have risen from £154,967 to £155,510. Dividends, investments, etc., total £25,984, against £18,998, but profit on exchange has declined from £11,163 to £4,472. After allowing for expenses and depreciation, etc., the net profit is £62,245, compared with £95,120—a decrease of £12,875. In view of the cash required for the repayment of the £100,000 6½ per cent. registered notes on January 1 next and the provision to be made for further capital expenditure owing to the increased demand for factory productions, the directors consider it necessary to conserve the company's cash resources, and they, therefore, do not recommend payment of an Ordinary dividend. The last distribution on these shares was 6 per cent. for 1929-30. It is, however, proposed to issue a scrip bonus at the rate of one new Ordinary Share for every twenty held to the holders of shares numbered 1 to 323,215, and one share for every forty held by holders of shares numbered 323,216 to 324,865. For this purpose £16,202 will be capitalised from the general reserve. The new shares will rank pari passu with the existing Ordinary Shares. Dividends on the 7 per cent. Preference Shares have been brought up to date. This requires £49,000, and, after transferring £50,000 to a reserve for depreciation and loss on Continental assets, there remains £100,389 to go forward, against £117,144 brought in.

William Longmore.—Dividend of 5 per cent. and bonus of 5 per cent., both less tax, making 15 per cent. (same).

The case in which Bernard Hugh Leonard Wood (19) is charged with obtaining by false pretences three cheques of the total value of £73 from the Rev. Hugh Basil Cole, Rector of St. Clement's Church, Hastings, was resumed before the Hastings magistrates yesterday and adjourned until to-day.

AMERICAN FINANCIAL NOTES

REUTER'S TELEGRAMS.

REDISTRIBUTION OF AMERICAN FILM STOCK.

Speculation has been caused in motion picture circles in New York regarding a possible new alignment of the American film industry following an announcement over the week-end that the Atlas Corporation and Lehman Bros. had acquired from the Radio Corporation of America a substantial part of the latter's holdings in the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, with the option of the purchase of the remainder. The Atlas Corporation and Lehman Bros. are the leading financial interests in Paramount Pictures, and are now expected to push for the reorganisation of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation. The Radio Corporation's holdings in Radio-Keith-Orpheum at the end of last year consisted of 46.6 p.c. of the latter's Common Stock and 84 p.c. of the 10-Year Debentures. Some Wall Street quarters are inclined to the belief that the proceeds of the sale will be used by the Radio Corporation of America to pay off the arrears on its "B" Preference shares.

DAYTON POWER BOND OFFER.

The Morgan Stanley Company is offering to-day at $99.5 an issue of $20,000,000 of 3½ p.c. Dayton Power and Light Company's Refunding Bonds due in 1960. The proceeds are for the retirement of $18,860,000 of 5 p.c. Bonds.

UNITED CORPORATION'S PROFIT.

The United Corporation reports for the third quarter a net profit of $2,125,000, compared with $2,575,000 for the corresponding quarter of 1934.

DIVIDEND INDICES.

According to the Standard Statistics Company favourable dividend changes during the past week numbered 23, compared with 20 in the previous week and 37 the week before. The unfavourable actions were 5, 2 and 6 respectively.

AMERICAN BUILDING CONTRACTS IN SEPTEMBER.

The value of building contracts awarded for all classes of construction in the 37 Eastern States during September was $167,380,000, compared with $163,560,000 in August.

LAWN TENNIS

COVERED COURTS TITLES

CLEVER DISPLAY BY YOUNG FRENCHMAN

SOME of the hardest hitting seen on a tennis court thrilled the spectators at Queen's Club, London, yesterday during the match in the first round of the men's singles of the national covered courts championships between B. Destremeau, of France, and J. F. G. Lysaght. Destremeau, perhaps the most promising player who has come from the Continent for many years, lost the first set to love to an opponent who did not attempt anything in the way of finesse, but concentrated upon slashing at the ball on both hands.

However, Destremeau's ability to vary his game and his eagerness to go up to the net for some deadly volleys carried him to success. Lysaght was a fighter to the very last point. Many of his forehand cross-court shots and first services nearly sent the Frenchman's racket spinning out of his hands.

In the first round of the women's singles Miss E. H. Harvey, the former British Wightman Cup captain, defeated Miss V. E. Scott, the junior champion, with the loss of only three games, and Miss Leila Row, of India, won a three sets match against Miss C. Weaver.

It was not a day of surprises. G. Lyttleton-Rogers, the tall Irishman, beat H. A. Coldham by 6-0, 4-6, 8-6, 6-2, and Baron de Morpurgo, until recently a mainstay of the Italian Davis Cup teams, easily accounted for M. W. Fisher.

This is the first year in which the tournament has been designated the national covered courts championships of Great Britain. In future they will rank as national championships with Wimbledon and the hard courts championships at Bournemouth. Results:—

CLYDE LAUNCH HITCH

NEW VESSEL ON SANDBANK

A hitch marred the launch yesterday of the twin screw steamer Clan Macarthur, the first of four new vessels to be launched from Clyde yards on successive days.

When leaving the slipway of the Greenock Dockyard Company she was carried by her own momentum and the strong wind across the channel, and grounded on a sandbank on the opposite side of the river.

For over half an hour she remained there, until four tugs steaming full steam ahead swung the 470-foot cargo steamer into the channel. She was taken to the fitting-out dock.

The Clan Macarthur, specially designed for carrying frozen goods, has been built for the company's trade to and from Australia and South Africa.

Sir A. Cayzer, chairman of the company, intimated at the luncheon the placing of a repeat order with the Greenock Dockyard Company. Since the start of the present month the Clyde has booked approximately 70,000 tons of new shipping. Some 70,000 tons will be launched from Clydeside yards this week—activity without parallel since September of last year.

LASCARS TO APPEAR IN COURT

Shortly before the Henderson cargo steamer Sagaing was due to sail from Glasgow yesterday, five Lascars were seen to run down the gangway to the quayside. The captain endeavoured to persuade the men to go on board, but eventually after some delay the steamer slowly drew away, leaving the gesticulating Lascars on the quayside.

Later at the Glasgow Marine Police Office the men were charged with refusing to obey the lawful order of the captain of their ship. They will appear before the magistrate to-day.

GARDEN, FARM, BEES, ETC.

OUTDOOR OPERATIONS.

Writing on this subject in the Weekly Irish Times, the Garden Correspondent says:—

Get all vacant ground in the vegetable department manured and turned up roughly for the frosts of winter to sweeten. Any plots to be trenched should be put in hands while the weather remains fairly fine. If wireworm is troublesome, give a good dressing of lime—gas-lime, if available—at the rate of one bushel to the square perch. This latter should be allowed to remain on the surface of the ground for at least a week before being dug in. Seakale and started as soon as the leaves come away freely from the crowns. Plant spring cabbages on warm borders, and prepare temporary frames or other means of prorhubarb, if required early, may be tection for cauliflower plants, and prick the plants into them while warmth remains in the soil. Clear off all unnecessary stalks, leaves, etc., and burn all garden refuse which would be likely to harbour slugs and other pests.

QUAINT MARRIAGE CUSTOMS

IN AVIGNON AND THE SOUTH

Avignon, the town with the ancient broken bridge, beloved of the late William J. Locke, is in the centre of a region where ancient customs die hard.

A young girl who contemplates marriage bakes a delicious cake and sets it in a niche with a jar of wine close to her door. He who eats the cake and drinks the wine thereby signifies that he is a suitor, and in the niche he leaves a shawl or a silk handkerchief. The young girl makes known her intention by wearing the shawl or the silk handkerchief to church on the following Sunday, and the wedding follows in a few weeks. If, however, the young man does not suit, a handful of oats offered to him makes the fact known. If a young girl marries a man from another village the fortunate swain cannot take his bride away until he has paid for drinks for all the young people who form a barrier in their path. The more the young men opposing her departure the more flattered is the bride.

Throughout a very large part of the south of France it is customary to serenade the newly married couple. Sometimes the music is sweet, but often the serenade is an excuse to make a dreadful din. As soon as the husband hands out a reward the music stops, and his health is drunk at the nearest inn.

FOOTBALL IN FRANCE

FIVE THOUSAND CLUBS

THE FRENCH GAME IS FAST

FOOTBALL, now the national winter sport of France, was introduced into that country from England between 1880 and 1890. It was first played near the ports of Havre and Rouen, and at Roubaix, in the north, as well as by Englishmen residing in Paris. All the players of the earliest games were English, and there was some comment about the foolishness of finding pleasure in kicking a football around a field. However, the French began to get attracted to the game, and in 1894 the first national competition was held, the winners being the Standard Athletic Club of Paris, an English club which is still in existence in the French capital. But football had no status of its own, and it was not until 1910 that football clubs broke away from the tutelage of the national athletic union of France and founded an independent football association, Baron Pierre de Coubertin, who has always been closely connected with the Olympic Games, donating a challenge shield, known as the "Trophée de France." It may be added that a football competition was a novelty of the Paris Exhibition of 1900.

In the early years of this century it looked as though the French were inclined to favour Rugby rather than Association football, especially in the South of France. The first international Association football match played in Paris, in 1906, between Switzerland and France, drew only 2,000 spectators, most of whom had come to see a Rugby match between two local French teams, which had been given first place on the programme.

GREAT IMPETUS

The War, however, gave a great impetus to Association football in France. The British soldiers showed the French how to play, and in the friendly games behind the lines the latter learned a good deal about the game. The closing stages of the War coincided with the foundation, in 1917, of the French Cup, organised on exactly the same lines as the English Cup. Forty clubs entered for the first Cup contest. Last season 567 clubs took part. Gate receipts at the finals rose from an early record of 34,600 francs to over 500,000 francs (over £6,500) at the last Cup final.

The story of the French Football Cup is a romance in itself, its foundation crowning the ambition of Henri Delaunay, General Secretary of the French Association Football Federation, who was present as a boy at the Crystal Palace when Sheffield United beat Derby County in 1899. Fired with enthusiasm, from that day he never looked back until he had been instrumental in the founding of the French Football Cup.

FIVE THOUSAND CLUBS

The French Football Federation, which numbered a thousand clubs in 1919, now has a total of over 5,000 clubs, with 141,577 players holding membership cards. There are twenty-one regional leagues, of which fifteen are in France, five in North Africa, and one in Corsica.

Growing interest in the game and increasing gate receipts inevitably produced professionalism. Duly authorised four years ago, last season there were 632 professional players registered, of whom about fifty were English, 150 came from Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Jugoslavia, and half a dozen from South America and Spain. English professionals do not easily assimilate with French teams, although they get on well with their team mates individually. The style of play is different. The French game is essentially fast, but French players have much to learn still before they reach the stage of precision and team work which leads up to goals rather than brilliant but ineffective runs by the forwards. A curious point, noted by most English visitors, is that the standard of goal-keeping in the average clubs is much higher than in England, Frenchmen having a gift for this difficult position. There is an interesting rule in professional football regarding foreigners, no more than three of whom can be included in a club's eleven in a league match.

French football enthusiasts know British teams and players well. Their sports journals publish the English League tables and English Cup results regularly, and it is impossible to find a lover of the game in France who has not heard of "l'Arsenal," and Drake, the goal-getter, and Bastin, whose name is quite French, are also football heroes in France.

A WAGNERIAN INDISCRETION

THE INSPIRER OF "LOHENGRIN"

Madame Jessie Laussat, wife of a wine merchant of this city, admired Wagner as a composer, but had a deeper feeling for him as a man. According to M. Ferrus, it was a case of love at first sight, a truly romantic love story, to the accompaniment of impassioned music, moonlight walks, etc. Madame Laussat wanted to provide the musician, then in need, with a pension.

After many furtive meetings, Wagner went to Switzerland, and there he received a letter from the object of his affections, in which she announced her intention to seek a divorce in order to marry him. At the same time, she warned him that her very jealous husband had learned of their intrigue, and she advised Wagner to be prudent. The composer immediately left for Bordeaux, sent a burning declaration of undying love to Jessie and tried to meet her. But she, following the advice of Napoleon in matters of love, found safety in retreat and disappeared with her husband. Wagner was never able to see her again. He wrote other letters to her that were intercepted and destroyed before they could reach their destination. Then, as his passport expired, Wagner was reluctantly compelled to return to Switzerland. Thus ended the great composer's Bordeaux adventure.

But it was at Bordeaux that he began to compose "Lohengrin," under the inspiration of his love for a French woman.

DON'T OVER-TIP THE DRIVER

SIXPENCE IS ENOUGH

Everything is being done in France to make the way of the visitor more pleasant. The irritating problem of the tip has been settled. Ten per cent. has come to be recognised as the right tip for service.

Now the porter tip question has been settled. The French State Railways have posted up in their stations tariffs of tips for porters. The rate is 2 francs for the first and 1 franc for every succeeding piece of luggage. Porters are forbidden to ask more, irrespective of the hour or the nature of the luggage. As 2 francs is roughly 6d., this is one more proof that travel in France is not dear.

Don't over-tip a Paris taxi-driver because his taxi is such a handsome modern vehicle. Ten per cent. of a fare over 10 francs is quite sufficient, and a franc tip for a fare under that figure is enough.

AN ABBE ADVERTISES

For the first time in France newspaper display advertising has been used for a religious purpose. The innovator was Abbé Martin, Curé of the Church of St. Joseph of Nancy. The display advertising of Abbé Martin called the attention of the public to the Passion Play at Nancy, which takes place every Sunday during August and September. It is claimed for this Passion Play that it is the most important on the Continent after that of Oberammergau.
